ONLY THE MEMORY TO LINGER

By FRANK ANDERSON
Staff Writer

Today marks the last mile for Nu-Pike's 38-year-old Cyclone Racer.

At 11 p.m. it will be taken for a final 60-mile-an-hour ride, then be bumped off by progress.

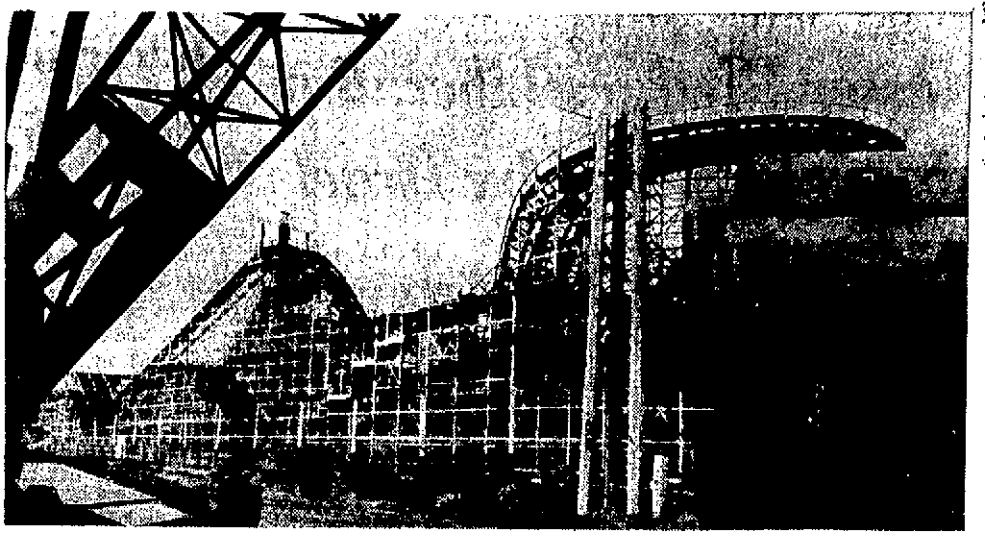

Rest easy, Bonnie and Clyde. You're not under suspicion. The culprit is the access road system to the Magnolia Street bridge complex, aided and abetted by Nu-Pike's plans for major redevelopment.

When they take away the million bolts, the million board feet of prime Oregon lumber and the 50 kegs of nails which have held the roller coaster together through a career of ups-and-downs, they'll take away almost four decades of excitement for 25 million riders.

Anyone who wants to have his breath taken away in Long Beach now will have to settle for a stick of that chewing gum.

They billed the Cyclone as the "highest, fastest, steepest, smoothest in the world" — and the hearts of erstwhile riders will agree.

THE STATE POLL

Nixon Has California Locked Up—As of Today

By DON M. MUCHMORE

If the presidential election were held today, Republican Richard Nixon would defeat the other contenders in California, according to the STATE POLL.

In this, the first State Poll survey since the national nominating conventions, it also appears that Nixon supporters are more strongly committed to their candidate than are the supporters of Vice President Hubert Humphrey, and that minor party candidates George Wallace and Eldridge Cleaver have little effect on the outcome of the presidential contest at this time.

In 1,007 personal "in home" interviews conducted Sept. 7 and 8, among a representative cross-section of the California electorate, the STATE POLL asked registered California voters the following question:

If the general election contest for president of the United States were held today, for which one of these men would you vote?

The results:

Richard Nixon	43%
Hubert Humphrey	34%
George Wallace	7%
Eldridge Cleaver	1%
Don't Know	15%

In an effort to determine how the voters who will actually go to the polls in November are most likely to vote, the State Poll asked a series of questions designed

U. S. Astronauts May Spend Christmas Circling Moon

December Lunar Orbit Blueprinted

By EDWARD K. DeLONG
United Press International

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (UPI) —Three Apollo spacemen may spend Christmas Day circling the moon, it was learned Saturday.

Sources said within the past six weeks the Space Agency planners have created new blueprints to orbit the three-man crew around the moon at an altitude of some 70 miles. The astronauts would spend a full day in lunar orbit, possibly Christmas Day itself.

The new plans call for astronauts Frank Borman, James Lovell and William Anders, the second Apollo crew, to circle the moon 10 times, reliable sources said. They would circle it in what is called a "command module." A lunar landing module, to take the astronauts from command module to moon surface, would not go along this trip.

A prime objective of the mission, sources said, is to photograph in black-and-white and in color the five sites for Apollo landings on the moon. The earliest opportunity for U.S. spacemen actually to land at one of these sites is believed to be the fall of 1969.

Sources pointed out adoption of the December lunar orbit plan depends on the success of America's first manned Apollo, scheduled to fly next month.

If major problems develop on this maiden flight with men, called Apollo 7, it would force a switch to

DIAL 432-3451

ACTION LINE is your service, solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., or 5 p.m. and 9 p.m., Monday through Friday. Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness.

Fish in a Barrel

Q. Where can I buy some edible sized trout to stock a pond belonging to a private club? H. P., Lakewood.

A. ACTION LINE went fishing for your answer at Happy Jack Trout Farm, 8041 N. San Gabriel Canyon Road, Azusa. Jack Corcoran, owner, says he can supply you with three different sizes: fingerlings, 1 to 4 inches; intermediates, 5 to 7 inches; or adults, 8 to 14 inches. The price per hundred ranges from $24 to $75. Corcoran will send you a price list. He also suggested that you contact the California Department of Fish and Game, 217 W. First St., Los Angeles, 620-4327, to find out what special permits you will need.

Philately

Q. I have two boxes full of stamps and I know of another woman who has several boxes full. To whom can we give these used stamps? D. B., Long Beach.

A. You can take the stamps to the Recreation Hall of the Veterans Administration Hospital, Seventh Street and Bellflower Boulevard. Larry Corringan said there are patients at the hospital who collect stamps and would enjoy having them.

Wheelman

Q. Is it true that if a person is on parole, he cannot own a car? A. S., Wilmington.

A. No. But the California Parole Board can prevent a parolee from driving of purchasing a car on contract. "As one of the 14 conditions of parole established by the California Parole Board, a parolee before operating any motor vehicle has to get written permission from the parole agent," explains Oscar Grebner, unit supervisor for the California Parole and Community Services Division. In order to obtain the permission, a parolee must have a valid operator's license, liability insurance and the parole agent must feel that it is desirable for him to operate a car. Parolees who want to buy a car on contract must also get permission from their parole agents. "Any parolee convicted in California loses his civil rights and thus his capacity to enter into a contract. A parole agent will usually give him permission to do so as long as the contract is not for more than $4,000," Grebner adds. He explains that all of these requirements are discussed at a pre-parole school held for prisoners.

Hear, Hear!

Q. On June 16, I sent a $10 check to the James Floyd Ford Co. of Cape Girardeau, Mo., for a "Listen-In Coil" enabling you to listen in on a telephone conversation. My check was cashed promptly by a Ziolack Corp., but I have not received the merchandise. Are these one and the same company? Will I ever receive my order? E. T. F., Long Beach.

A. A spokesman for the Ziolack Corp. in Chicago, Ill., assured ACTION LINE your order will be filled immedi-

GIs Sweep Routes to Cambodia

SAIGON, Sunday (AP) — American infantrymen killed 50 enemy troops in sweeps along invasion routes leading from Cambodia to Saigon, the U.S. Command reported today. It said this brought to 700 the number of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese fatalities in heavy fighting near Tay Ninh and Loc Ninh since last Wednesday.

Armored trucks from the U.S. 25th Infantry Division, heavily laden with 50-caliber machine guns, smashed into an unknown sized enemy force Saturday morning six miles east of Tay Ninh City, 45 miles northwest of Saigon. In a 5½-hour fight, the American troops reported killing 31 enemy soldiers without losing any of their own. Six Americans were reported wounded.

* * * *

FIFTY MILES farther north, on the northeastern arc of Loc Ninh, U.S. 1st Infantry troopers pursued more than 100 North Vietnamese soldiers through thick rubber plantations for three hours Saturday, cutting down 19. The bulk of the enemy force managed to slip away. U.S. casualties were put at one dead.

South Vietnamese paratroopers received a setback, however, when they lost nine men killed and 25 wounded in a fight with North Vietnamese soldiers

Hunt 'Hero' Cop in Girl Killing

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Police charged Saturday the man who called headquarters and said "Please catch me!" after killing a 12 year-old girl was the policeman who later "found" the child's body.

A warrant charging Robert John Erler, 24, with the Aug. 12 murder was issued and a manhunt begun just nine days after Erler quit the Hollywood police force for what he termed personal reasons.

Erler was accused of killing Marilyn Clark with five shots in the head.

Detectives matched tape recordings of Erler's patrol car conversations with tapes of the anonymous caller who began the Aug. 12 conversation by saying, "I just killed three people."

ROBERT J. ERLER

Hollywood routinely tapes all telephone and radio traffic, police said.

Hollywood police refused to disclose the chain of evidence that led to Erler but police in neighboring Dania, Fla., where Erler had worked briefly as a patrolman, said they supplied the missing links.

Dania Police Chief Donald Parton said the break came when the girl's mother, Dorothy Clark, 42, of Clarkston, Ga., recalled Thursday she had met a man in a khaki uniform with a round shoulder patch on Dania Beach the night of the shooting.

Mrs. Clark also was shot six times and remained in a Fort Lauderdale hospital Saturday, recovering from temporary amnesia and fa-

THOUSANDS LINE UP FOR RESERVES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three thousand young men began lining up at 1 a.m. with bedrolls and blankets Saturday to apply for new openings in Army reserve units.

Nine hundred of the openings were announced last week. Getting into the reserve means six months of active duty instead of the draft.

Officers at two armories, the West Los Angeles and George S. Patton Army Reserve centers, began administering mental examinations to the applicants.

One thousand will be selected for physical examinations at an armed forces induction center.

The most physically fit 900 will be sworn in together on Sept. 23 and a Hollywood star will throw them a kiss before they leave for their active duty training.

The openings, announced after a reorganization of the reserve, attracted some men with beards said Maj. Steve Urette.

"They were told no beards would be permitted, and they just shrugged their shoulders and walked away," he said.

"The others, between 18 and 19 years old, slept on the grass around the armories until morning. We're swamped and they are still lined up."

In addition to the Los Angeles applicants, 80 men were bused from San Diego to take the mental tests, Urette said. They will fill vacancies in San Diego units.

APPEARS AFTER SOVIET 'CURE'

Nasser Pledges Liberation of Areas Seized by Israel

President Gamal Abdel Nasser told a cheering audience in Cairo Saturday that liberation of Arab territories seized by Israel in the June 1967 war is approaching.

In his first public appearance since returning from medical treatment in the Soviet Union, Nasser addressed a session of the Arab Socialist Union National Congress at Cairo University. Nasser gave a generally low-keyed statement, however, with few notes of patriotic fervor.

The president drew applause with a tribute to the Egyptian armed forces and their "constantly increasing ability to meet their responsibilities." He declared that the armed forces constitue "our basic fundamental hope" for eventual liberation of areas seized by Israel.

Nasser declared that such liberation is a "sacred duty" which he said would be the third and final stage of the army's rehabilitation. "It is both our right and duty to mobilize all our efforts for this liberation," he said.

In a 15-minute speech, broadcast by Cairo radio, Nasser said his doctors had ordered him to return to work gradually "so that there will be no setback in the treatment."

The exact nature of his ailment has never been announced but is believed to have been a painful inflammation of the leg. Nasser underwent treatment with radioactive water at a Soviet spa.

SCIENTIST DIES

A Polish-born atomic scientist was one of the 95 victims who perished in Wednesday's crash of the Air France Caravelle which went down off Nice in the Mediterranean. Investigators identified him Saturday as Jerzy Sawicki, born 37 years ago in Warsaw.

Sawicki did research in the United States at Princeton in 1958 and at the Berkeley campus of the University of California the following year. In 1967 Sawicki went to Trieste to direct a team of researchers at the International Center of Theoretical Physics.

FIGHT FOR PURSE

Mrs. Mildred Rooker, 44 was crossing a Memphis, Tenn., intersection when an auto eased up alongside and a youth reached out and snatched her purse.

The car took off, with Mrs. Rooker in tow. The driver, apparently panic-stricken, lost control and crashed into a parked truck. The two youths in the car fled. Mrs. Rooker suffered multiple bruises, cuts and a broken collarbone but saved her purse and its $6.

HEIR PROTESTS

Huntington Hartford, heir to the A&P supermarket fortune, protested outside the A&P general offices in New York to show his support for the California grape pickers boycott.

Hartford, 55, has been feuding with A&P management for several years.

KELLY CHIEF

The Kellys of this world who bothered to assemble at their first international conclave on Castlebar, Ireland, chose an Irish noble as their first global chieftan Saturday.

Two hundred Kellys from the United States and Ireland solemnly acclaimed Count Walter O'Kelly, 47, of Dublin as their titular head. The count, slim, sandy haired and red mustached, accepted the accolade and said he would do his best. The decision was reached in a big stone mansion here in County Mayo where Kellys and O'Kellys abound.

The assembly, organized by Mike Kelly, Irish-born radio and travel agent of Albany, N.Y., decided to adopt a program designed to lead to a world wide league of Kellys.

UNIQUE BIRTH

A New Jersey housewife, who four years ago was on the verge of death from kidney failure, has become the world's fourth kidney transplant patient to give birth to a child. The New York Hospital announced Saturday a 6-pound girl was born Monday to Mrs. Immaculata Brennan, 32, of Edison, N.J. Mother and child, Marisa Ann, were reported doing well. It was at the same hospital that Mrs. Brennan received a kidney transplant four years ago from her twin sister, Mrs. Virginia Salvati.

$600,000 SANDS

Entertainer Tommy Sands has signed a $600,000 contract to continue performing at a Waikiki night club for another year.

The 28-year-old singer signed the contract with the management of the Outrigger Hotel, where he has been appearing since June 21. The pact is believed to make Sands the second highest paid entertainer in Honolulu. Entertainer Don Ho signed a 12-year, $6.4-million contract with Duke Kahanamoku's night club in January.

WRITER DIES

Jovial, pipe-smoking Albert E. (Bert) Stoll, who spent much of his life tramping Michigan's woods and fields and extroling the beauties of nature, died Saturday of cancer in Tawas City, Mich.

One of Michigan's most widely known outdoors writers, Stoll was 66 and had entered the hospital July 4.

WEDDING, PARTY

Guests from the worlds of medicine, show business and society attended the wedding in Long Island, N.Y. saturday of Kay Norton Sylvester and Dr. John W. Boland, a leading Irish-born surgeon. The bride is a former film and recording company executive. Dr. Boland, a specialist in cobalt treatment of cancer, is chairman of the radio therapy department of Mt. Sinai Hospital's School of Medicine in New York City.

Guests included actor Jose Ferrer, television entertainer Steve Allen and former Assistant Secretary of Defense Nell McElroy.

TOGETHERNESS

Michael and Christopher Taylor are 3-year-old twins who do everything together, even to open-heart surgery. Michael entered a hospital Monday, underwent surgery two days later and was dismissed from the intensive care unit Friday. Christopher will enter the hospital for his operation Sept. 27. The twins are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Taylor of Memphis, Tenn.

Cyclone Racer in Final Dip

Once they come down from the roofs of mouths, that is.

The false teeth often found under the tracks after a shaking, veering, jerking, bouncing tour of the mile-long track will clack assent.

And every girl who has been hugged by a sailor on the Cyclone will want to squeeze back — preferably with her hands around the neck of Father Time and his henchman — Progress.

Nu-Pike will remain where it is, but the roller coaster's bound for the junk heap, it's not included in plans calling for an internationally-themed amusement complex similar to Copenhagen's Tivoli Gardens.

Long Beach Amsuement Co., the private firm which operates the Nu-Pike rides and carnival attractions, hopes to have the new park in operation by the mid-1970s.

The Magnolia Street bridge complex will serve the Queen Mary at her new, permanent Pier J berth in Long Beach Harbor.

No disrespect to the Queen, but for lovers of the Cyclone Racer the bridge will be a "bridge of sighs." For eyes will ever turn shoreward to where the roller coaster used to be.

Eyes that were closed in terror during the rocking and rolling rides of the coaster will mist with tears for what was, and is no more.

But tears did not bring back the Twenteith Century Limited, the Pony Express, the nickel cup of coffee and the Toonerville Trolley.

Nor will they resurrect the Cyclone Racer, soon to be buried deep in memory with only an RIP inscription to mark its passing.

There it rockets on a journey into oblivion — carrying with it your lost equilibrium, heart palpitations and nerve.

Mine, too.

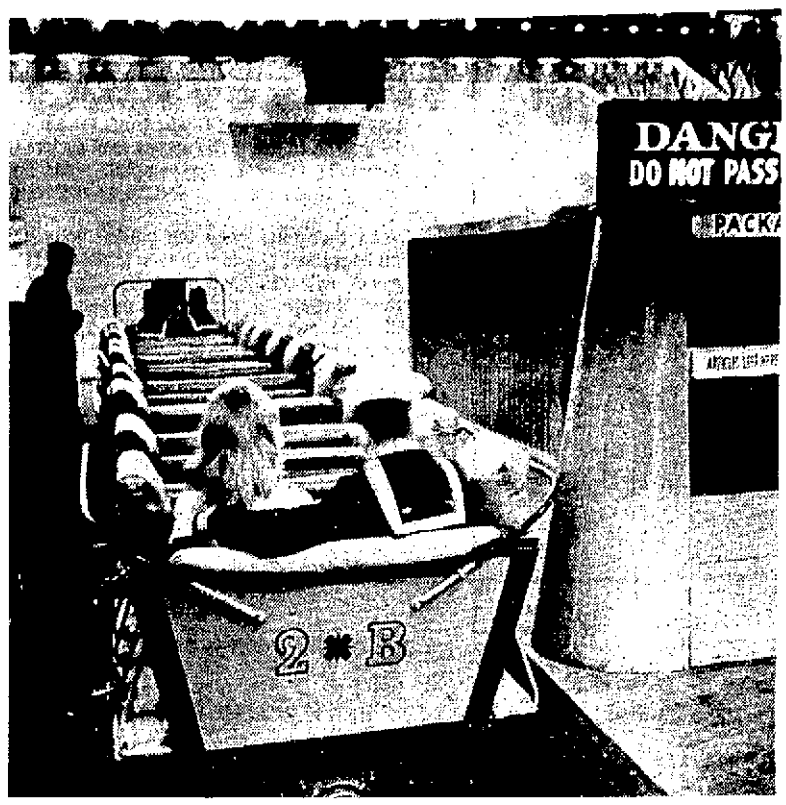

I was among the Cyclone Racer's last riders — and it was downhill all the way.

N.Y. City Opera, Labor OK Accord

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York City Opera Company, whose opening had been delayed by labor troubles, Saturday announced it had reached agreement with the musicians' union.

Julius Rudell, the company's director, said agreement on the major issues had been reached with Local 802 of the Federation of Musicians although negotiations would continue. He said no further threat of a strike existed.

Quarantine Russia --Reagan

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gov. Reagan called Saturday for a "trade and communications" quarantine of the Soviet Union — including an end to the recently inaugurated New York-Moscow commercial airline service — to retaliate for the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Reagan told newsmen before addressing a fund-raising luncheon for a Republican congressional candidate, that the quarantine should include a halt to cultural exchange programs.

He said he was disgusted with the Johnson administration "which continues to hold out and offer bridges of friendship to our enemies at a time when they seem to be kicking our brains out."

* * * *

BUT REAGAN said the United States should not use military force to change Soviet minds about the liberal reforms of the Czech regime.

The governor said he feels vice presidential nominee Spiro T. Agnew has explained what he meant by the "soft on communism" charge against Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

THE GOVERNOR defended his policy of sending one measure at a time to the Senate and the Assembly, meeting in a special session in Sacramento.

He said he spaced the bills so they will be viewed on their own merits, instead of being traded through legislative bargaining.

Unbilled Costar Steals Show at the Palladium

LONDON (UPI) — Tom Markvick caught every eye in the London Palladium audience when he vaulted on to the stage during a performance of the musical "Golden Boy" and handed a piece of paper to the star, Sammy Davis Jr.

"Mr. Sammy Davis Jr., this is a writ," Markvick declared in a manner London's lofty Royal Academy of Dramatic Art would have acclaimed.

"Yeah," murmured the surprised Davis. "Thank you."

Markvick is a private detective. The writ was a high court order demanding payment and damages from "Golden Boy" choreographer Lester Wilson for show business sketches and designs. The complainant was Pussey Galore, Ltd., a firm that does business in London's swinging Carnaby Street.

"Some sketches were lost — mislaid, rather — by me," said Wilson after the performance. "If I'd found them, there wouldn't have been all this trouble. I am tired of it all."

As he entered the Palladium, Wilson received a similar court order concerning sketches and designs Pussey Galore manager Henry Moss said "must be worth at least 500 pounds" ($1,200).

Moss said he understood the sketches and designs were for a tour of "Golden Boy."

Wallace Turns Guns on Nixon

ALBANY, Ga. (UPI) — George Wallace accused the Republican Party of desegregating the South's schools Saturday and laid the blame to Richard Nixon and Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Standing beside Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia and speaking from a flatbed truck, Wallace drew roars of approval from 10,000 persons when he said the "destruction of the public school system" began under the Eisenhower-Nixon Administration.

"As soon as they were elected, they appointed Mr. Earl Warren as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court," Wallace told the crowd at a high school football field in this south Georgia city.

Attacking the GOP and its nominee on the south's most volatile issue, Wallace said Nixon had "agreed in advance" to putting Warren on the Supreme Court.

Wallace had told an airport rally in Columbia, S.C., earlier in the day that the Eisenhower-Nixon administration and the GOP had "agreed" to put Warren in the court in the expectation that he would take part in the famed 1954 school desegregation decision.

Questioned by reporters during the plane trip from Columbia to Albany, Wallace admitted he had no "personal knowledge" of such an agreement.

"However, in my judgment, Warren was placed on the court with the idea that he would render that decision," Wallace said. He claimed this was done to "get certain votes."

He also told the Columbia rally "the destruction of the public school system" began under the Eisenhower-Nixon Administration.

Nixon in Southland, Bids for Youth Vote

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon told young people in a crowd welcoming him to California Saturday that he would institute a new foreign policy that would see to it that their generation did not go through three wars as his had done.

The GOP presidential nominee flew here from Des Moines for four days of campaigning.

An enthusiastic crowd estimated by police at 7,500 was on hand at the airport.

In Des Moines, Nixon drove a giant corn picker like a veteran farmer Saturday and then pledged his Republican presidential candidacy to curbing inflation and increasing farm aid.

Nixon, concentrating on the midwest farm belt, drove down a dusty country road to inspect a barnyard and then addressed an enthusiastic, sun-drenched crowd of 35,000 in a Des Moines shopping center.

* * * *

BEFORE FLYING on to California, he promised "dedicated efforts to improve market prices" and "responsible management of our nation's economic policies to brake inflation and ease interest rates."

Nixon's reception was a boisterous, family-type affair. The crowd began gathering in the shopping center as early as 10:30 in the morning. When a few Humphrey posters sprouted in the crowd, they were grabbed from their holders and torn up.

Before his speech, Nixon and his party took a 20-minute ride down a country road to the farm of Elbert Goode near Indianola, south of Des Moines.

In a cornfield, Nixon watched a big John Deere corn picker-sheller in operation.

"Drive it, Dick. Drive it to the White House," former Rep. Ben Jensen yelled.

Grinning widely, Nixon climbed a ladder up to the cab and drove the picker for about 25 yards down the corn rows with dust and husks flying. He needed only an occasional assist from Goode's 18-year-old son, Larry.

* * * *

NIXON FLEW to Des Moines from Cleveland, where a crowd estimated by police at between 35,000 and 40,000 at a suburban shopping center heard him talk about law and order. If elected, he said he will "make America free from fear, and I am going to do that."

Nixon will make a major address at a free-admission rally starting at 8 p.m. Monday in the Anaheim Convention Center, across Katella from Disneyland.

Agnew Again Compares HHH to Chamberlain

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. Spiro T. Agnew admitted again Saturday that his description of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey as being "soft on Communism" was a blunder.

"Id forgotten about its unpleasant connotations," he said. But the Republican vice presidential nominee defended his comparison of Humphrey to former British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who is popularly identified as an appeaser of Nazi Germany in 1938.

In an hour-long appearance on a television talk show, Agnew said he thinks the comparison between Humphrey, the Democratic presidential nominee, and Chamberlain was "an apt comparison, particularly when I see Vice President Humphrey attempting to jump from the hawk to the dove back to the hawk position in apparent attempt to placate the schism that exists within the Democratic party."

Agnew's statements were taped for airing on Saturday night's Kup's Show on WMAQ-TV.

He again denied that he had been ordered by his running mate, Richard M. Nixon, to abandon his emphasis on alleged Communist influences within recent student disorders and to retract his criticism of Humphrey.

"He (Nixon) relied on my judgment and felt that if I couldn't extricate myself from that blunder unilaterally I was in trouble," the Maryland governor said.

On other issues, Agnew said he is opposed to the busing of pupils to achieve racial balance in schools, favors some form of gun legislation, and believes the Senate shold be very cautious about ratifying a nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Bernstein Cheered

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic orchestra were warmly applauded Saturday night at La Scala. But Bernstein refused to comply with shouts for "encores," he pleaded sleepiness.

HHH Not 'Wobbling' on Vietnam

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey appeared Saturday to bar any future change in his Vietnam stand, saying that the Democratic party's plank "is my position."

Humphrey explained that sometimes he varies his answers on Vietnam in order to keep from boring people.

But when he changes a word, Humphrey complained, "Then someone says, 'I think he has changed his mind. He is wobbling.'"

* * * *

"I SAY some things and, gosh, I wish I hadn't said it," said Humphrey.

Humphrey said he approved of orderly dissent. But he blasted violent demonstrators as storm troopers. He said that burners of draft cards and flags were cowards — afraid to take the tougher avenues of orderly dissent.

Humphrey said it was not freedom of speech when candidates — whether George Wallace, Richard Nixon or Hubert Humphrey — are shouted down.

* * * *

STEPHEN MITCHELL, an active supporter of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, Saturday announced he will serve as vice chairman of the national Citizens for Humphrey and Muskie.

Humphrey reiterated his endorsement of pending legislation to ban the interstate sale of rifles, shotguns and ammunition and to provide federal registration and licensing of gun owners if states do not establish their own regulations in these fields.

The vice president said Nixon has taken no stand on this issue and asked:

"Is the high rate of gun murders in this country not an important issue? Or does Mr. Nixon refuse to support concrete steps that will help us to have effective, fair and just law enforcement in America?"

McCarthy to Campaign for Cranston

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy intends to force the presidential candidates to speak out without ambiguity on the Vietnam issue through his own campaigning for dovish Senate candidates.

McCarthy's strategy emerged in an interview with UPI before his departure on a vacation in Nice, France, this week.

California, a state crucial in the plans of both Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and his Republican rival, Richard M. Nixon, may be the battleground in McCarthy's attempt to smoke out the candidates on the Vietnam issue.

"I'll be going into California" to campaign for Alan Cranston, the Democratic senatorial candidate who shares McCarthy's views on how to terminate America's role in Vietnam, the Minnesotan said.

McCarthy has yet to say whether he will support Humphrey. He said he would if Humphrey shifts his position on Vietnam to make it closer to his own.

seven miles southwest of Tay Ninh city. Only two enemy soldiers were reported killed.

Enemy gunners also shelled two government bases around Tay Ninh Saturday night, but no casualties were reported.

America's heaviest bombers, the Air Force B52s, continued their saturation strikes on enemy base camps and supply routes stretching from the Cambodian border northwest of Tay Ninh to the eastern coast of South Vietnam. The B52s dropped nearly 2-million pounds of explosives on the enemy positions in nine missions Saturday and Sunday. Some of the strikes were only 22 miles from Saigon.

The U.S. Command announced only one other significant ground action.

TROOPS of the U.S. American Division killed 35 North Vietnamese soldiers Saturday in two separate skirmishes near the provincial capital of Quang Ngai midway between Saigon and the 17th parallel. U.S. losses were put at 13 men wounded.

It marked the third straight day of sharp fighting around Quang Ngai. Eighty-eight enemy troops were reported killed by allied forces in the area the day before.

Far to the north along the demilitarized zone, U.S. Marines uncovered a 10-ton enemy food and weapons cache six miles west of the outpost called The Rockpile. It was the second big find this week. The latest cache reportedly included 763 rounds of rockets and mortars, 27 antitank mines, 650 pounds of TNT and 6½ tons of rice.

Over North Vietnam, U.S. tactical fighter-bombers concentrated again Saturday on Communist supply routes below the 19th parallel. Navy pilots from the carriers Hancock and Constellation reported destroying or damaging at least 12 barges and supply boats.

The command announced earlier that American tanks, warships and fighter bombers hammered enemy bunkers in the southern half of the demilitarized zone for 14 hours Friday in an all-service blitzkrieg supporting South Vietnamese infantrymen.

'Hero' Cop Hunted

cial paralysis, still unaware her child was dead.

Parton said Mrs. Clark said she had gone with the man to a trailer on U.S. 1. She described two sofas inside the trailer and a framed group photograph of policemen hanging on the wall.

Parton said he had bought such a trailer Sept. 1 from Erler. He said Dania police wore khaki uniforms when Erler was an officer there and Erler still had his uniforms in the trailer.

Parton said he had seen .22-caliber cartridges on the trailer floor.

THEN Dania Patrolman Henry Peterman recalled, "He's the hero. He found the body in the industrial park." And Parton went to Hollywood police.

Two other Dania officers, Lt. Donald Dalziel and Patrolman William White, identified the voice on the phone tapes as Erler's, Parton said.

Hollywood Police Lt. Irvin Goetz said the anonymous caller's first report was received at 6:18 a.m., on Aug. 12, The man called again at 6:30 a.m., Goetz said, to tell police where the three "victims" could be found.

Erler went on duty at 7 a.m. and, at 7:15 a.m., reported finding the girl's body, Goetz said Erler told detectives he had been stopped by a man and woman who spotted the girl's body in a clump of roadside weeds. He said the couple left before he got their identification.

Eight minutes later the mother was found, near death, in her car four miles away at Hollywood-Fort Lauderdale International Airport. Police had been searching that area since the earlier calls from the man who said he had committed the killings.

IN A SECOND call, the man said, "Go down to the airport and there's one in the water there's one on a side street."

Police never found a victim in the water.

Judge Robert O'Toole, who issued the warrant about midnight Friday night, said Erler apparently left the area four days earlier.

Erler's wife and child had moved, reportedly to the Midwest, before the killings because of domestic trouble, police said.

Astronauts May Spend Yule in Lunar Orbit less ambitious plans for the second flight, sources said. Apollo 7 is scheduled to circle the earth up to11 days, starting around Oct. 11.

* * * *

GROUND equipment problems at Cape Kennedy forced a day's delay Saturday in the completion of the Apollo 7 countdown and the test is scheduled now to end Monday morning. There was no word what effect that would have on the start of the Apollo 7 trip itself, because there is some leeway in scheduling.

The space agency's official position on the second manned Apollo, called Apollo 8, is that it will be a low earth orbit mission. Officially, the only difference between the first and second flights is that the second will be launched by a Saturn 5 moon rocket instead of the smaller Saturn 1.

It will be the first manned flight on Saturn 5.

The Space Agency announced its official version of Apollo 8, inserting it into the moonflight timetable as an extra flight, on Aug. 19 It said time-consuming problems with the moon lander had forced the change, placing the moon lander aboard the third flight instead of the second.

At the time he made this announcement, Apollo chief, Lt. Gen. Samuel Phillips, said the Apollo 8 mission might be expanded if all goes well with Apollo 7.

He opened the door to a lunar orbit mission, calling it "a technically and operationally feasible possibility." But he said he was "in no position to speculate on the possibility itself or the probability."

* * * *

SOURCES close to the Space Agency said flight planners have worked in high gear to create the lunar orbit plan, the prime flight plan unless something bad happens on Apollo 7.

They said, however, it still must be approved by Space Agency Administrator James E. Webb. The most likely launch dates would run from Dec. 20-25.

The astronauts would ride into space from Cape Kennedy atop the 7.5-million-pound-thrust Saturn 5. Their trip out would last two and one-half days. If all went well, they would drop into orbit around the moon for 20-26 hours.

The lowest they might safely come, sources said, would be about eight miles from the moon in an egg-shaped orbit.

Sources said the astronauts' path around the moon would carry them over the five sites across the center of the moon's face where Apollo spacemen plan to land.

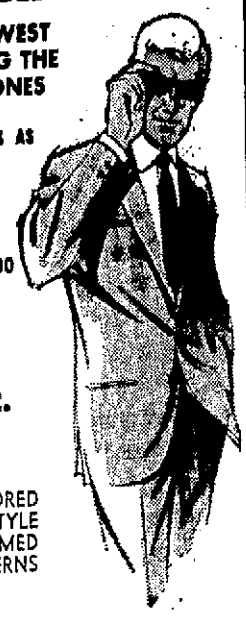

Fighter Jet Crashes

Newsmen See Crew of Pueblo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new North Korean exposure of the Pueblo crew has strengthened an assessment here that the Reds will eventually set the men free. But it produced no signs of an imminent breakthrough in the deadlocked talks at Panmunjom.

This conclusion came Saturday from U.S. officials who combed through extensive reports of the four hour news conference staged by the North Koreans Thursday. For the first time since the Pueblo's Jan. 23 capture, some non-Communist newsmen saw the U.S. prisoners.

* * * *

WHAT seemed new from the affair was North Korean disclosure of a U.S. intelligence ship order, expanded allegation of U.S. spy-boat intrusions and non-Communist accounts indicating the crewmen are in relatively good physical condition.

The U.S. government has already sought to demolish the Red claim that the February 1966 Navy reconnaissance order carried aboard the Pueblo authorized the electronic eavesdropping vessel to snoop within three miles of the North Korean coastline.

It made public what it said were specific Jan. 5, 1968, sailing orders to the Pueblo telling its skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, to steer outside the Communists' claimed 12-mile limit.

* * * *

AS FOR the Reds' new claim of 17 Pueblo penetrations inside the 12-mile limit—previously they listed only six—the Washington officials noted the North Koreans produced no more evidence for such charges than before. Actually, since the Pueblo kept radio silence until the day of her seizure, neither side has produced proof of her exact whereabouts.

The reports by Japanese newsmen invited to the news conference with Bucher and 19 of the 82 surviving crew confirmed accounts from earlier news conferences attended only by Communist journalists that the men appeared to be in good health.

The pains which North Korea is taking to portray the prisoners as well treated, indicates to U.S. authorities the captors intend evenually to release the men — rather than carry out veiled threats to sentence them to death on allegations of criminal espionage.

* * * *

THE THEORY here has been that the North Koreans will hold on to the Pueblo captives as long as they think they can use them to score propaganda gains, to wring a humiliating confession from the United States and to demonstrate alleged impotence of the world's foremost "capitalist imperialist" power to rescue its sailors.

Since he North Koreans vigorously pushed their charges again at the Thursday exposure of the crew, the presumption by U.S. authorities is that no breakthrough is likely soon in the Panmunjom stalemate.

At the Korean truce site, U.S. negotiators have been demanding prompt release of the ship and crew which they say was seized by North Korean gunboats in international waters. The Reds are calling for a U.S. confession to spying inside Korean territory, an apology and a promise to cease such operations in the future.

* * * *

THERE HAVE been 20 Panmunjon sessions on the Pueblo so far. Another is expected shortly.

Bucher was quoted on Thursday, as he has been before, as acknowledging that he sailed deep inside North Korean waters.

He was quoted by the North Korean News Agency as saying that the U.S. should assume responsibility for their spying and obtain release of the 82 crewmen before Christmas.

U.S. officials observed that the words used by the Pueblo skipper and his men, as previously, sounded like a North Korean propaganda version rather than what an American would say of his own free will.

Letters from crewmen, which came to a virtual halt late last spring, are once again beginning to arrive in the United States, officials said.

CAPTURED CREWMAN IN NORTH KOREA
Pueblo Executive Officer Lt. Edward R. Murphy Jr.

Captured U. S. Crewmen Write Home

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

For some families of the 82 captured Pueblo crewmen, the past week brought at least a trace of good news to help ease disappointment that reports of the ship's imminent release proved false.

Some relatives of men who were on the U.S. intelligence ship report receiving letters that, unlike earlier mail from North Korea, seem genuine. Generally, the letters said that the prisoners were well treated and are permitted to receive mail from their families.

But for many families, there was still no word from sons, brothers, husbands or fathers seized with their ship on Jan. 23. Still others report only a brief letter which they think was dictated by the North Koreans.

Mrs. Carol Murphy of San Diego, wife of the executive officer of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo, says she has received a letter from her captured husband.

Mrs. Murphy, wife of Lt. Edward Murphy, Jr., 30, said the eight-page, handwritten letter had a New York postmark.

"He said they have morning and mid-day exercise periods and a sports hour," Mrs. Murphy said. "He also said the crew receives meals consisting basically of meat and vegetable soup with rice or bread."

Mrs. Murphy gave birth to a girl, Victoria Lyn, March 29. Her husband has not seen his daughter.

Two other California families, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Russell of Glendale and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ellis of Culver City, said they got letters this week — the first since March. Both families said the style of the letters differed from the previous ones and indicated that the men were at least allowed to write them themselves, even if the North Koreans directed the subject matter.

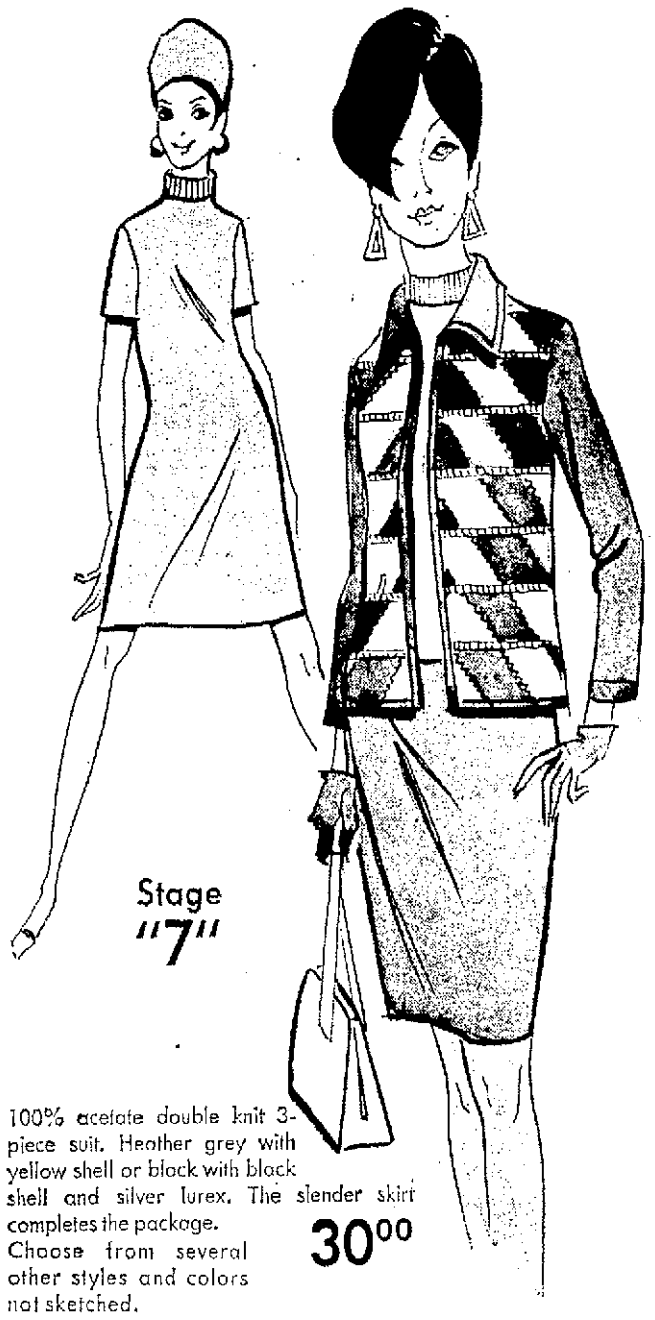

Mrs. Peter Bandera, of Carson City, Nev.; Mrs. Don Bailey of Portland, Ind.; Mrs. Grant Bouden of Nampa, Idaho; Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hayes of Columbus, Ohio; J. Alton Sterling of Omaha, Neb.; Mrs. James Sheppard of Williamstown, Mass.; Mrs. Charles M. Kisler, of the St. Louis suburb of Moline Acres; and Vincent Strano of Hartford, Conn., were among the families to receive letters from captured crewmen.

Other families say there have been no recent letters and, in some cases, no letters at all.

A few families refused comment or said they had received letters but did not want to discuss them or had been ordered not to.

U.S. Pilots Rush Food to Refugees of Nigerian War

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — American pilots who won medals in Vietnam have joined former Peace Corps volunteers in an attempt to launch a million-dollar helicopter shuttle to bring relief to starving refugees of the Nigerian civil war.

Under the auspices of the U.N. Childrens Emergency Fund, the project is a high-powered American operation which already has made an offer to buy 10 helicopters the Nigerians have hardly used for lack of parts and pilots since their war started with the secessionist Biafrans in Eastern Nigeria 14 months ago.

Former pilots with combat experience in Vietnam and Korea have come from civilian jobs to fly helicopters in southeastern Nigeria where at least a quarter of a million refugees have crowded through lines into federally held territory.

* * * *

TWO WEEKS after landing in Nigeria after recruiting in the United States, pilots and support crews await clearance from the Nigerians to fly to Calabar two H19 helicopters purchased for $50,000 from a used helicopter lot in Tucson, Ariz.

The two helicopters will shuttle at the rate of two round trips an hour between Calabar and Uyo, 30 miles west, in the heart of the refugee concentration, according to Charles C. Robards, 38, of Dansville, N.Y., head of the project. The aircraft will carry 1,500 pounds of food and medicine on each trip in a parachute hanging from a hook under the belly.

Robards said the pilots will slip the chute off the hook, drop it at the destination and then return to base for another load without landing.

Eventually he hopes to have 20 helicopters "daisy chaining" 500 feet over the rain forest and swampland. Hence the offer to buy 10 Nigerian helicopters, most of which are old British-made craft sold to the air force by Austrians.

But two craft will fly the first two weeks "just to prove the concept," said Brandt Berk, 35, a financial analyst from Old Lyme, Conn., who plans to spend three months with the outfit as chief pilot. He is a lieutenant commander in the Navy Reserve flying out of Floyd Bennet Field, N.Y.

"The Nigerians have not seen this," he said, "The United Nations has not seen it. It makes no difference that Marine pilots in Vietnam did it."

* * * *

IF THE SHUTTLE works it could move nearly 15 tons an hour. Food is now piling up in Calabar, 400 miles east of Lagos in an area recaptured by the federals between last October and March.

Distribution problems have hampered relief in the hardest hit area under federal control. The food is not designed immediately for Ibo tribesmen now encircled in Biafra but for non-Ibo refugees fleeing the fighting.

Plans for the project started in August with a conference between Robards and U.S. State Department officials. Although the program is under the U.N. agency, most of the money comes from the United States. In addition to the cost of helicopters, $90,000 was spent to ship them in a huge "Guppy" Boeing 377 freighter plane.

Estimates of early costs hit a quarter of a million dollars.

Find Bombs Near Biafra Food Planes

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Four bombs apparently intended for Biafra airlift planes have been discovered at Lisbon Airport, informed sources reported Saturday.

They said the discovery halted operations of Henry Wharton, who has been reported shipping arms and supplies to the embattled secessionist territory in planes based here.

Airport police declined comment. It is known that none of Wharton's planes has left since last Wednesday.

Informants said three time devices were found by Portuguese security officers on ramps near Wharton's four planes Sept. 5 and one Friday.

Other planes, chartered by international relief organizations, continue to leave Lisbon with food and medicines for refugees, though there is scant hope of carrying them on to Biafra.

GENEVA (AP) — The International Red Cross Committee said Saturday it has resumed flights of food and medicine to starving Biafrans, despite the increasing danger.

The committee suspended flights two days ago after learning that one of two available airstrips was bombed and damaged and the other was too close to the combat zone.

Army's New Chopper Stirs Hassle on Cost

By DONALD H. MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army is preparing to introduce its first million-dollar helicopter next year amid some controversy over whether the new flying gunship is worth its price.

The Army's view is that the AH-56A Cheyenne, carrying three times as much payload twice as fast and firing with much greater accuracy, will be eight times more effective than the AH-1G Cobra which is now riding shotgun for helicopters in Vietnam.

It bases this formula on the expectation that the Cheyenne, while it will cost five or six times as much as the Cobra, should have a better chance for survival because of its speed and sophistication.

On the other hand, a projected fleet of 375 Cheyennes may cost in excess of $500 million, or more than $1.3 million each. That is more than half the price of the 1,400-mile-an-hour Phantom II fighter jet, which costs from $2 million to $2.4 million each depending on the version.

REP. OTIS PIKE, D-N.Y., claiming that the cost of the Cheyenne program has skyrocketed and the end is not in sight, sought to delete from military appropriations the first $138 million in a four-year plan for its production. His amendment was defeated 121 to 47.

The first production models are scheduled for delivery in September 1969, and the fleet is to be completed by 1972. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, is known to feel that the full program is vital to the future of the ground forces.

The two-man Cheyenne is the first helicopter to be designed from the ground up as a gunship. A swiveling belly "turret" contains a 30mm automatic gun, while the nose turret can accommodate either a grenade launcher or a 7.62mm minigun capable of firing 6,000 rounds a minute.

* * * *

TO IMPROVE its stability and also provide a rack for weapons, the Cheyenne has been given stubby wings with six pylons from which 2.75-inch rockets and tube-launched, wire guided missiles can be hung.

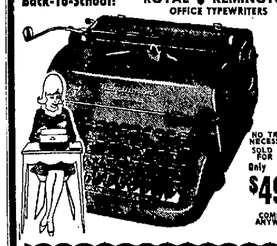

Its speed comes partly from a 10-foot pusher propeller installed in the tail behind its four-bladed, fifty foot rotor. It is designed to fly at 250 mph and an experimental model has already been clocked in a record run at 302 mph.

As to whether helicopters can continue to survive in combat theaters, the Army believes that the choppers have compiled a good record in Vietnam and will have an excellent chance against improvements such as the long-expected enemy introduction of shoulder-fired, heat-seeking anti-aircraft missiles.

THE RECORD for Vietnam shows the Army has lost 430 helicopters to ground fire in the course of more than 12 million flights averaging 20 minutes each since the beginning of 1962. That is about one helicopter lost for each 28,000 flights.

One-man missiles might force them to adopt new evasive tactics, but these have already been devised for use against a more sophisticated enemy than was found in Vietnam. They involve flying at tree-top level and following the contour of the earth as much as possible.

U. S. Plans Military Exercise in Europe

By FLORA LEWIS
Exclusive to the I,P-T

NEW YORK — The U.S. has decided on a major troop deployment exercise to Europe so America still can and will hold the line against Russia. The exercise, larger than the Big Lift Lift maneuver of several years ago, was planned anyway for fall of 1969 but it's being advanced for political reasons.

The airlift demonstration will probably come after the harvest, when the crops won't be spoiled and the ground is hard enough for tanks to maneuver easily. The announcement, however, is expected soon in an effort to rebut the nation that the U.S. feels too weak to do anything about the big Soviet buildup along the East-West front line.

That and a special NATO meeting calling for tightened defenses is about all that is planned at this stage to give Moscow pause on its new policy line in Central Europe.

But despite Soviet assurances to Washington and President Johnson's wanning hopes, it is getting clearer that Moscow has embarked on a tough new line. So far, the line has only applied to Communists straining at the leash, mostly to Czechoslovakia — 35 divisions worth including nuclear-capable battlefield missiles.

Czechoslovakia isn't the only country touched by Moscow's hard policy, though it was hit worst. Intense pressure is still being applied to Romania to give up its independent foreign policy. The Russians have put their troops in position to strike there too if the Romanians refuse to knuckle. No doubt some men in the Kremlin feel that since they got away with the Czech move without major trouble, they could plug up all the leaks in the Soviet bloc while they're at it.

The Yugoslavs are feeling the heat too. If Moscow should go that far, military geography present a dangerous possibility the Red Army will be tempted to go through Austria, a neutral country with no allies at all but a crucial threat between NATO forces in West Germany and Italy. That is the road to world war and that is how gravely the menace must be seen. Nobody knows Moscow's intentions. Nobody in the West even knows how the argument is going inside the Kremlin and who is on which side.

What is known is that the tough line is being applied inside the Soviet Union as well, to musicians and painters as much as to writers and movie-makers whose work can be critical. It is the kind of crack-down applied when the Kremlin plans to move in a direction it knows will be broadly unpopular.

Many top U.S. officials still hope, though, that this doesn't mean a change in the Soviet desire for mutual detente with the West. They argue that Moscow decided, after a couple of years of sulking, that it could pursue East-West agreements despite the Vietnam war, so Washington should try to keep the East-West thaw going despite the Czechoslovakia invasion.

But there is also danger that Moscow will conclude that a turbulent America is too preoccupied with domestic affairs and the war in Vietnam to be resolute in Europe.

Navy Gets Hydrofoil Gunboat

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A 73-foot-long hydrofoil gunboat, the PGH 1 Flagstaff, was delivered to the Navy here Saturday as a revolutionary addition to the nation's defense force.

The combat craft, built by Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., is one of two high-riding hydrofoil prototypes involved in a competition for Navy production contracts. The other, named the PGH.2 Tucumcari, was built by the Boeing Co.

* * * *

TOP SPEED oft he hydrofoil gunboats is a secret. The Navy says only they can exceed 40 knots, or 46 miles an hour.

When high speeds are required, struts which support foils that resemble a section of airplane wing are lowered into the water. The vessel rises on these foils, lifting its hull above the water and practically eliminating all drag.

Stay Out of It, Leading GOP Fortas Opponent Tells Nixon

(WASHINGTON (UPI — The leader of Senate Republican opposition to the appointment of Abe Fortas as Chief Justice told Richard Nixon Saturday to "stay out of this" and urged President Johnson to withdraw Fortas' name.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., said he now questions Fortas' "judicial ethics" in accepting a $15,000 lecture fee, while a Supreme Court Justice. He said Senate opposition to Fortas "is on the increase."

Griffin began his campaign before Johnson named Fortas, contending a president in the final year of his tenure should leave Supreme Court appointments to his successor.

But he told a news conference Saturday that disclosures before the Senate Judiciary Committee, which has tied up the Fortas nomination since June 26, indicated "we have uncovered only the top of an iceberg" in the case against Fortas himself.

A law school dean testified Friday that Fortas was paid $15,000 to give nine lecturers this summer at American University here. Griffin said this was "the last straw."

"President Johnson should withdraw the nomination of Abe Fortas to be Chief Justice," he said. Acceptance of the fee "raises serious questions as to whether the spirit and intent of the canon of judicial ethics has been complied with," Griffin said.

Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee, told newsmen in Cleveland Friday that he opposed a Senate filibuster against Fortas. A reporter asked Griffin whether Nixon's comment might swing some GOP votes to Fortas' side.

"Mr. Nixon said at the outset he was going to stay out of this and frankly I wish he would," Griffin said.

"I think our strength is on the increase, well over 40," Griffin said of the senators opposing Fortas. "I think in the neighborhood of 45."

Griffin also critized Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, who Friday accused Fortas opponents of prejudice and partisan politicking. He said Clark frequently takes cases before the court and "has no business coming to Capitol Hill and lobbying for a justice."

Meanwhile, the Judiciary Committee made public a letter from Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford asking to be excused from testifying but discussing briefly Fortas's participation in White House policy meetings.

Clifford said while he kept no detailed record, the meetings generally concerned "basic issues arising from our involvement in Vietnam."

"I am sure that on none of these occasions was there discussed with Justice Fortas, or in his presence, any matter pending before the Supreme Court, or, indeed, any other judicial matter," Clifford wrote.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., predicted Saturday the Senate will not act this year on the Fortas nomination or the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Claims U.S. Pushed Huks to Red Camp

MANILA (AP) — Luis Taruc, freed this week after spending 14 years in prison for leading a bloody peasant rebellion that nearly toppled the Philippine government Saturday blamed the post-world war II American military command for pushing his "patriots into the laps of the Communists." Taruc said the American occupation force in the Philippines in the early 1950s "initiated and created a ragtag police command made up of former Filipino collaborators with the Japanese" who forced farmer revolutionaries to side with the Communist movement.

"Those mercenary police, headed by U.S. Army officers, raided the places of the Huks (as the revolutionaries were called) embittered our men who had fought the Japanese during the war, and kicked us into the laps of the Communists," Taruc said.

Taruc, now 55, said he is ready to renew his struggle for social revolution, but he added: "I'm hoping this revolution will be peaceful."

Racial Unrest Plagues 5 Cities

United Press International

Racial outbreaks in five cities from the Rockies to the Great Lakes, three of them at high school football games, injured 17 persons and brought arrest of 52 persons Friday night and early Saturday.

One of the most serious disorders occurred at Waterloo, Iowa, where a seven-hour disturbance resulted in injury to six policemen and brought arrest of 13 Negro youths.

At Decatur, Ill., police usod tear gas to disperse battling whites and Negroes. Eight persons were injured, two of them policemen. One white man was arrested.

In Chicago, two suburban white youths were beaten by a band of Negroes on the Far South Side.

The Chicago, Waterloo and Decatur outbreaks began at high school football games Friday night. In Decatur authorities canceled a scheduled Saturday night high school football game in an effort to avert renewal of the disorder.

* * * *

GANGS OF Negroes hurled bricks at police early Saturday in Toledo, Ohio. One white man was hurt and 18 Negroes arrested.

Snipers shot at firemen and police in Denver, which had its second successive night of racial violence. One man was seriously wounded by police pursuing him after he fired on a police cruiser. Twenty Negroes were arrested.

The Decatur outburst began at a Friday night football game between Decatur Eisenhower and Peoria Central High Schools. Cause of the disturbance remained undetermined, but Illinois state police said there were black militant leaders present and "about six of them knocked a police sergeant down three times."

One Decatur policeman suffered a broken jaw in the melee and a 15-year-old youth was stabbed in the abdomen. A white man was arrested for carrying an unloaded gun. After the crowd was dispersed with tear gas, bands of youths roamed the streets for hours.

The Waterloo outbreak began with the arrest of several Negro youths during a halftime fracas at a Friday night football game between Waterloo East and Westchester (Ill.) St. Joseph's High Schools. Waterloo East was closed Wednesday due to unrest among the 340 Negroes among the school's 1,700 students.

* * * *

AFTER THE football game, the disturbance spread through a 25-block area of a predominantly Negro area of Waterloo's north side.

The most seriously injured of the six policemen hurt was Sgt. Don Brauth, who suffered a fractured skull when a bullet struck his riot helmet.

Friday night's Denver outburst began when firemen responded to a blaze in a home and were met with gunfire. Sniper fire crackled in the night for three hours afterward. One bullet struck a police helicopter. A patrol car was struck twice by gunfire. Three fire bombs were thrown at a farm machinery firm.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, at Grand Rapids, Mich., Racially troubled Grand Rapids Union High School, closed Friday by student brawling, will reopen Monday with special self-examination sessions for the student body.

Principal Emery Freeman announced his plans for what he termed "reconstruction" at the school following two meetings Friday with school officials, police, parents, teachers and other community leaders.

Hoping to spike a movement by concerned parents who said they wouldn't send their children back to school, he explained there would be adequate security and no one from outside the school would be permitted to enter the building.

11 Days of Fear Told by Girl Held Captive by Rejected Suitor

PORTAL, N.D. (AP) — A confused and frightened girl, held captive 11 days by a rejected suitor who finally killed himself, told authorities Saturday she had frequent chances to escape but was afraid to try.

"I had no money, no place to go and I was afraid of him," Florence Bley, 17, told the Associated Press in an interview after an ordeal that went as far as the West Coast.

* * * *

SHE RELATED earlier to the Mountrail County sheriff's office that Clifford Peterson, 21, had shot himself in the chest with a .30-caliber rifle Friday evening along a country road in this northwestern part of North Dakota.

It happened 35 miles from where Miss Bley had been abducted from her home near Portal late Sept. 2. Peterson held the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bley, off at gunpoint and cut telephone lines before driving off, authorities said. He was charged with abduction with intent to compel marriage.

* * * *

MISS BLEY said she could have fled from Peterson, "like when he was sleeping," but that she was afraid of what he might do to her.

"It was 11 days of constant fear," she said. "No, he never threatened to kill me, but he did threaten me if I tried to get away. He stayed with me all the time."

She said once he mentioned he was going to find a job and keep her with him. "He didn't say where or what kind of job," she added. "Just a job."

Miss Bley said they ate in cafes most of the time and slept in Peterson's car and motels. She said she never got a chance to tip off anyone while at a cafe.

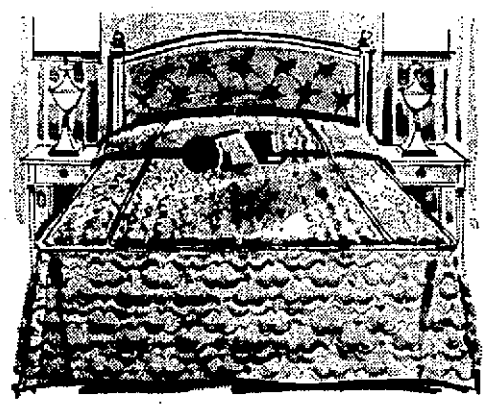

"FINALLY, he ran out of money in Montana and decided to take me home," said the girl.

While the two of them were on a lonely road, Peterson heard a radio broadcast that the search for the pair was continuing. She told officers Peterson got out of the car, took the rifle and shot himself.

She hailed a farmer, Chester Colbenson of rural Lundsvalley, N.D., and he notified authorities.

ROTC BUILDING GAPES OPEN AFTER BOMBING

FBI agents inspect the University of California campus building which housed the ROTC offices at Berkeley. The building, Callahan Hall, was damaged by a bomb Friday which blew a hole in the porch and took out the entryway, the doorway and surrounding woodworks. No one was injured in the blast. Callahan Hall also contains classrooms for the Reserve Officers Training Corps. It was locked at the time of the explosion.

State Suspends Brooklyn's School Board in Wake of Teacher Walkout

NEW YORK (AP) —The state commissioner of education Saturday night ordered the suspension of all members of a community-run school board in Brooklyn that precipitated a city-wide teachers' strike this past week. He told the city Board of Education to take back control of the district.

The commissioner also directed the board to transfer, temporarily at least, 10 teachers the local group sought to oust from the district, and he urged the teachers' union to end its walkout "immediately."

James E. Allen Jr. issued the orders after a day-long series of meetings in his Manhattan office during which he met with representatives of all sides in the dispute which kept the city's schools closed three days last week. Some 1.1 million pupils are affected.

In directing the central board to suspend the community officials, Allen said the means used by the Ocean Hill-Brownsville governing board violated "sound educational principles." He said the local group also violated the agreement under which the Board of Education allowed it to operate.

Allen was critical of the United Federation of Teachers, whose members struck the schools Monday and Tuesday, went back to work Wednesday, then struck again Friday.

"The action of the United Federation of Teachers in staging a strike is not only unlawful but disregards the legitimate concerns of the people of the city," Allen said.

Allen urged the teachers "to take steps immediately to end the strike and to return all teachers to their classes so that all schools may be in full operation on Monday."

He directed the central board to submit to him a "report as to the steps taken by the board in accordance with these directions" no later than 6 p.m. today.

Allen said "local administration of the district should be restored as soon as the issues which gave rise to the current dispute have been resolved among all the parties and present tensions have been alleviated."

The commissioner said he remained "fully committed to the principle of decentralization."

Allen was asked to intervene by the Board of Education.

Order Aid Rushed to Flooded Mexico

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexican President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz Saturday ordered emergency relief aid into parts of Mexico's northwest flooded by the passage of Hurricane Naomi.

Constant rains during the past four days caused the overflowing of six dams and five rivers in the states of Durango, Coahuila, Nayarit, Sinaloa, Chihuahua and Jalisco, the Federal Water Resources Department said.

Missiles Promised

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — The newspaper Dong-A Ilbo said Saturday the United States has agreed to arm South Korean naval vessels with guided missiles. The paper said North Korean vessels have been equipped with Soviet-made rockets.

File Fewer Protests on Taxes

Oil companies, hotels, shopping centers and the Los Angeles Dodgers are protesting their property tax assessments this year.

But the small homeowners apparently feel it's as inevitable as death. They're paying quietly and lodging fewer protests than ever before.

In 1966 the board handled 17,172 protests and granted 5,360 reductions. This year, they say the total appeals may not reach 5,000.

THE DEADLINE for filing appeals is 5 p.m. Monday.

Among those who have filed, saying their property is over-evaluated, are Walter O'Malley's Los Angeles Dodgers Inc. The petition says Dodger Stadium is worth $18,637,320. County Assessor Philip E. Watson says it's worth $27,037,700.

Others filing petitions for reduced assessments include the Biltmore Hotel, the Radio Corp of America, The United States Steel Corp., and Thums, a group of oil companies which holds land in the East Wilmington field at Long Beach.

FBI HUNTS BOMBER OF UC ROTC OFFICE

BERKELEY (UPI)—FBI agents Saturday joined the hunt for saboteurs who bombed a naval ROTC building on the University of California campus.

The black powder bomb, carried in a black satchel, was planted on the doorstep of the one-story building Friday night and exploded a few minutes later.

* * * *

THE BLAST ripped up a reinforced concrete porch, shattered the heavy front doors, smashed furniture and shattered nearly all its windows.

The bombing was witnessed by a campus policeman who saw two young men drive up to the building in a small car. One of them ran over to the building carrying what appeared to be a black leather satchel, dropped it on the doorstep and hustled back to the car.

The patrolman chased the car through the twisty campus streets until it sped off-campus, where he lost sight of it.

* * * *

NO ONE was inside the building at the time of the explosion and there was no fire.

It was the third attempt to destroy the naval facility and the second dynamiting on campus this year. In the previous attacks on the wood-frame building, fire bombs were used.

The FBI said it was called into the case because "government property was involved."

Spain Envoy, Rusk Talk

MADRID (UPI) — Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella flew to Washington Saturday to negotiate the future of the United States military bases in Spain.

Castiella will begin talks with Secretary of State Dean Rusk Monday concerning the bases now covered by agreements that expire Sept. 26.

The Spanish foreign minister is believed to be taking several political, economic and military demands with him for the negotiations on renewal of the three accords at stake — the mutual defense assistance agreement, the economic aid agreement and the defense pact.

Tensions Sharpen in Mideast

United Press International

Tensions sharpened in the Middle East Saturday with an anti-Israeli demonstration in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan, shooting along Israel's frontiers with Jordan and Syria, and renewed talk of a war of liberation by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt.

In New York, the U.N. Security Council was on a standby alert and prepared to meet over the weekend in the event of any new major outbreak of hostilities similar to last Sunday's artillery battle along the Suez Canal cease-fire line.

U.N. peace envoy Gunnar Jarring flew to Paris from his Cyprus headquarters for meetings today with U.N. General Secretary U Thant on the situation.

Arab unrest in occupied Jordan was underlined by a strike at Nablus of hundreds of students who marched through the streets of the city chanting "We Want Unity With Jordan." Israeli security forces dispersed the demonstrators, but there was no mention of casualties or arrests.

50-State Survey of Experts Gives Nixon Sweeping Win

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—If the presidential election were held now, Richard M. Nixon would win a sweeping Republican victory, a national political survey conducted by the New York Times indicates.

Reports reflecting the judgment of party leaders in all 50 states showed Nixon carrying 30 states with a combined electoral vote of 346. For election, a presidential candidate must receive 270 electoral votes, or an absolute majority of the total of 538.

* * * *

THE SURVEY, conducted this week, indicated that George C. Wallace, the former Alabama governor, is now leading in eight states with a total electoral vote of 77, while vice president Humphrey is favored in six states plus the District of Columbia with 42 votes in all.

There are six states with 73 electoral votes in which the election was considered too close to call at this point by the political reporters who conducted the survey for the Times. These were Massachusetts, Delaware, Missouri, Florida, Michigan and Washington.

The figures are designed to reflect realistic estimates of the most knowledgable political leaders in each state. Their predictions applied to an election held today, however, and may change as the campaign progresses, new issues develop and public sentiment shifts.

If the state-by-state assessment is reasonably accurate, however, it would appear difficult for Humphrey to win the election in the three-cornered race in which Wallace is providing serious competition for the Democrats.

FOR EXAMPLE, if the vice president carried all the six states regarded as too close to call and all the six states in which the Nixon advantage is considered narrow, his electoral vote would total only 222.

With Wallace retaining his 77 electoral votes, this would reduce Nixon to 239, a plurality but not the majority 270 needed for election. In this case, the election would be decided by the members of the House of Representatives elected in November, with each of the 50 state delegations given one vote.

The states in which the survey found Nixon leading, but by a relatively narrow margin subject to possible reversal, were New York, Ohio, South Dakota, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

However, Humphrey's lead was regarded as similarly narrow in four of his six states: Maine, West Virginia, Minnesota and Hawaii. His only solid strength appeared in Rhode Island, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

At this stage of the campaign with more than seven weeks to go, Wallace came close to a clean sweep of the South but was not given much chance of carrying any other states.

VIRGINIA political leaders thought Nixon was ahead there. In Florida, the election was rated a draw between Nixon and Wallace, with Vice President Humphrey trailing.

Elsewhere in the South, Wallace was rated a strong favorite in Alabam and Louisiana, given a moderate lead in Georgia, Mississippi and North Carolina, and a narrow margin subject to possible elimination in Arkansas, South Carolina and Tennessee.

According to the survey, the largest single issue is "law and order," sending voters toward Nixon as the representative of the party out of power both in the nation and most of the cities where riots have occurred.

At the same time, resentment in many states over civil disturbances has greatly strengthened the potential vote of Wallace, and that vote appears to be hurting Vice President Humphrey seriously in a number of Northern states.

N.Y. Ship Talks Still Deadlocked

NEW YORK — (AP) — Shippers increased their contract offer a fourth time Saturday to avert a possible strike by 60,000 longshoremen on the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts.

But a spokesman for the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association said it still wasn't large enough.

The union has flatly rejected the three previous offers by the New York Shipping Association and threatens a strike on Sept. 30.

The union spokesman said the latest offer was a 63-cent package spread over two years, a rise of a nickel over the previous proposal.

The longshoremen now earn $3.62 an hour.

The talks Saturday broke off at dinner time and were scheduled to resume today.

In the Swim

Q. My 9-year-old daughter has her "Swimmers Card" and is now interested in joining a club where she can swim and have more instruction. Also, where in Long Beach can she get instruction in water ballet? M. L. N., Long Beach.

A. Children under 10 may take part in novice beginning competitive swimming sponsored by the Long Beach Recreation Department, says Bob Cotter, assistant aquatic supervisor. Help in learning flip turns, racing starts and improving the stroke is offered at these sessions for 25 cents a swim at 8:45 a.m. Saturdays at Wilson, Jordan and Millikan High School pools. It is also offered at 6:30 p.m. on Monday at Millikan High, Tuesday at Jordan, Wednesday at Wilson and Thursday at Silverado Pool. If they are especially talented and interested beyond that, Cotter said, they might join either the Long Beach Aquatic Club by calling Ted Ackel, 433-0273 or the Phillips 66 Long Beach Aquatic Club by calling Dr. Barbara Kalbus, 598-3440. These clubs charge monthly fees to help pay for coaching, traveling and meets. They offer competitive swimming, water polo and diving and will probably expand to water ballet as member interest expands. Members of the clubs range from 6-year-old intermediate swimmers all the way to national champions and Olympic stars. Your daughter may register for a class in water ballet at the YWCA, 550 Pacific Ave., during the week of September 16, according to Esther Newman, director. The fee will be $6 for 6 lessons and the first class meeting will be Saturday, September 28 at 10 a.m. Your daughter should be at least a strong intermediate swimmer to enter this class, Mrs. Newman said.

SOUND OFF!

For many years, I have observed the growth of Long Beach and our airport and it has always seemed ridiculous to me that there is no porter to help emplaning or deplaning passengers with their luggage. Many, particularly older passengers, need assistance with their bags to taxis and cars. This is a large city with an excellent airport. Why such an oversight? If expense is the factor, why couldn't the employe serve other purposes such as custodial work between planes? J.C.C., Long Beach.

World Law Day Proclaimed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson declared Saturday "a series of tragic acts that have denied human rights by aggression, terror, starvation and other forms of coercion" is leading men to understand they must follow the rule of law and justice.

In a proclamation designating Sept. 16 as World Law Day in this country, Johnson said the world has witnessed the tragic acts on several continents, and added:

"The conscience of the world has been stunned by these acts. Men are beginning to understand that the rule of law and justice is imperative if nations are not to perish under a reign of force and violence.

Poll Shows Nixon Has Big California Lead to determine the respondents' propensity to vote. The preceding responses are based on an expected general election turnout of eighty-five per cent:

The State Poll found that a lighter than expected voter turnout on November 5 would favor Republican Nixon; that a heavier turnout would be favorable to Democrat Humphrey.

In order to determine the degree to which voters are committed to the candidate of their choice, the State Poll asked:

How strongly do you feel about your choice?

The results:

	Humphrey	Cleaver	Nixon	Wallace
Very strongly	46%	57%	62%	61%
Somewhat strongly	23%	7%	20%	24%
Not very strongly	29%	36%	18%	13%
Don't Know	2%	0%	0%	2%

Consistent with traditional California voting patterns, Democrat Humphrey makes his strongest showing in Northern California, Republican Nixon does his best in the South.

Also following California tradition, Nixon receives a substantially higher amount of "cross-over" Democratic support than Humphrey does "cross-over" Republican support, as shown below:

	Rep.	Dem.	Others
Nixon	76%	18%	34%
Humphrey	9%	54%	9%
Wallace	6%	4%	35%
Cleaver	1%	2%	4%
Don't Know	8%	22%	18%

More than twice as many Democrats as Republicans are at present undecided about whom to support in the November election Should most of these voters in the end remain in the Democratic fold, Humphrey's chances for victory in California would be substantially increased.

Among independent and minor party voters, Nixon runs more than four times as strongly as Humphrey. Former Governor George Wallace of Alabama also picks up a very large bloc of these votes.

At present in California it appears that the candidacy of George Wallace is marginally more damaging to the Republican candidate than to the Democratic, but is less damaging to either than has been predicted by some observers.

Eldridge Cleaver, the Peace and Freedom Party candidate, at this time appears to be having little effect on the presidential contest.

An analysis of the supporters of the two major candidates indicates the following:

Support for Nixon increases as respondent's educational level and annual income increase; he does better among Protestants than among Catholics, and he receives very little support from Jews; he runs very well among Caucasians and Orientals; and his support is greater among male voters than among female.

Humphrey's support is stronger among the lower income groups and the less educated; he runs better than Nixon among Catholics, and runs extremely well with Jews; he is very strongly preferred to Nixon by Mexican-Americans, overwhelmingly so by Negroes; and he runs as strongly as Nixon among female voters.

'OLYMPIC' SATELLITE READIED

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — The most powerful communications payload ever built is scheduled for launching Wednesday night to serve as a space switchboard for telecasting the 1968 Olympic games and to more than double transatlantic satellite telephone and television links.

A three-stage Delta rocket is to blast off at 8:09 p.m. to hoist the Atlantic 3 satellite toward a stationary orbit 22,300 miles above the Equator, just east of Brazil.

Once on station, the satellite will be able to relay up to 1,200 two-way telephone conversations or four color telecasts between ground stations in North and South America, Europe and Africa. Its first major assignment will be television transmission of the Olympic games scheduled to start Oct. 12 in Mexico City.

Atlantic 3 is the first of a series of six satellites ordered under a $32-million contract by the International Telecommunications Satellite Consortium (INTELSAT). Sixty-two nations with 95 per cent of the world's communications traffic are INTELSAT members.

INTELSAT now has two satellites on station over the Atlantic and two over the Pacific. Each can relay up to 240 voice links or one telecast.

Fair Campaign Pledges Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nonpartisan Fair Campaign Practices Committee has asked the almost 1,000 candidates for congressional and gubernatorial offices this year to sign pledges they will be fair in their electioneering.

The pledges state the signer will not resort to vilification, scurrilous attacks or racial appeals in seeking election to office Nov. 5.

Balloon's Data Hunted

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (UPI) — Military officials will begin searching a 1,200-square-mile area of California desert Sunday for an instrument package that measured high-altitude atmospheric conditions during a 17-hour flight by the world's largest balloon.

The flight began Wednesday when the 587-foot-tall balloon was launched from White Sands Missile Range in southern New Mexico. The $20,000-instrument package separated from the balloon and was believed to have dropped onto the Marine Corps artillery range at Twenty-nine Palms, Calif.

Guard on the Scene Friday the 13th

SAIGON (UPI) — The first battalion-sized Army National Guard unit to serve in Vietnam has arrived complete with 105 sets of brothers and two father-and-sons. The unit, called to active duty April 13, is the 116th Combat Engineer Battalion from Idaho Falls, Idaho.

DISCOURAGING FIRST WEEK

Humphrey Stubs Toe on Vietnam—Twice

By AL EISELE
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — It didn't take Vice-President Hubert Humphrey long to learn why the Vietnam war is the most dangerous campaign issue he faces as the Democratic presidential candidate.

Humphrey stubbed his toe badly on Vietnam, not once but twice, on the very first day of his opening campaign swing last week, demonstrating vividly that he has little room to maneuver on that issue.

Altogether, Humphrey's first week on the presidential campaign trail was not an auspicious one. He left a cross-country trail of confusion about his Vietnam position, was plagued by campaign organizational difficulties and was greeted with widespread indifference and even hostility on the part of politicians and the public.

He did manage to regain his stride by the end of the week after apparently resigning himself to the fact that President Johnson is still calling the shots on Vietnam and deciding to concentrate his own energies on presenting himself as the least objectionable alternative to Richard Nixon and George Wallace.

* * * *

IN FACT, Humphrey seemed to be launching a campaign in the "give 'em hell" style of Harry Truman, with the brunt of his attack aimed not at a do-nothing Congress but a say-nothing Nixon.

Nevertheless it was the Vietnam issue — and specifically, Humphrey's ineptitude in handling it — that emerged during the first week of his campaign as the albatross around Humphrey's neck.

HUBERT HUMPHREY

At his first stop, in Philadelphia Munday, Humphrey expressed the hope that in early 1969 — and possibly even later this year — American troop units might begin coming home from Vietnam as South Vietnamese forces began to carry a larger share of the military burden of the war.

Humphrey was forced to back down from the statement when President Johnson, in a tough speech to the American Legion convention in New Orleans the next day, declared that "no man can predict" when American troops will be brought home from Vietnam.

Humphrey at first compounded his error during a question and answer session in Houston Tuesday night by waving a local newspaper which reported that the 27th Marine Regiment was coming home.

HOWEVER, he didn't read the part of the story which said the regiment had been only temporarily assigned to Vietnam

Humphrey also had to untangle himself from a statement he made in Denver Monday in which he said he could have accepted the minority plank of Vietnam offered at the Democratic Convention in Chicago which asked for an "unconditional halt" to the bombing of North Vietnam.

He had to explain at nearly every stop that he was against halting the bombing without some response from North Vietnam and that he had meant to say in Denver that he could have "lived with" the minority report even though he didn't agree with it.

His unsuccessful attempts to stake out a more moderate position on Vietnam were only part of his first week troubles, however. Everywhere he went, he either ran into indifference in the form of meager crowds and noticeable absent local political leaders, or hostility in the form of noisy demonstrators.

Such party bigwigs as California Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh and Texas Gov. John Connally weren't even on hand to greet Humphrey when he visited their states.

* * * *

AS HIS troubles compounded, Humphrey apparently decided that if he goes down, he'll go down swinging. He did just that after returning to Washington briefly at midweek, zeroing in on his GOP opponent at a Delaware bridge dedication, a party rally and strolling seaside news conference in New Jersey, and another rally in Pittsburgh in the last half of the week.

He warned squabbling Democrats in all three states that unless they put aside their differences, they will "sacrifice a quarter century of progressive, liberal accomplishments" and hand the election to Nixon.

Humphrey repeatedly challenged Nixon to abandon his opposition to immediate ratification of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty and to quit what Humphrey called his "unholy alliance" with southerners in opposition to the confirmation of Abe Fortas as Chief Justice of the United States.

* * * *

HUMPHREY'S language became stronger as the week went on. At Flint, Mich., on Wednesday, where he ran into noisy anti-Vietnam hecklers and some Wallace partisans, he called Nixon a "wiggler and a wobbler" on the most crucial issues and charged that the Republican candidate was hiding in a "sort of in-between" position on these issues.

But Humphrey aimed his strongest broadside at Nixon Friday, turning a barefoot job along the New Jersey seacoast, where he'd spent the night at Gov. Richard Hughes' summer home, into a bare-knuckled attack on the GOP candidate.

Humphrey accused Nixon of sacrificing the national interest for political demogoguery in opposing immediate adoption of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, charged that he was in league with extremists in opposing the Fortas nomination and pictured him as a "fearless Fosdick" selling counterfeit solutions to crime.

* * * *

FLYING TO Pittsburgh Friday night to meet with Democratic party and labor union leaders, Humphrey assailed Nixon for allegedly calling him "naive" about law and order.

"Let me tell you something," Humphrey told a reception at the William Penn Hotel. "I doubt if he's even got one of those Cracker Jack badges." He promised "no monkey business" in dealing with violence, but added, "we're not electing a sheriff to put in the White House. We're electing a president of these United States."

Given Humphrey's severely-limited alternatives on Vietnam, attacking Nixon looks like the best way he can take the offensive and inject some life into his campaign. That's the painful but valuable lesson Humphrey learned in his first week of presidential campaigning.

Facts You Should Know About Diamonds

by
ARCH SHINDER

LAWSON'S JEWELERS
Downtown Long Beach Only

STAR SAPPHIRES, the most unique and perhaps the most desirable of the sapphire family is the birthstone for this month, September.

Star sapphires are found in all colors. We believe that the star in the star sapphire gemstone looks the best when the color of the sapphire is BLACK or shades of black.

Genuine black star sapphires are mined extensively in Thailand and gray-black star sapphires come from Australia. Man has been unable to properly produce synthetic black star sapphires that look as good as the genuine star sapphire. In fact, the man-made black stars usually cost more than a genuine black star sapphire.

Man has been able to produce blue stars that look as well as a genuine blue star sapphire. The star is always in a fixed location and will not move towards the light as the genuine star will. This is the easiest test to determine if the blue star you are viewing is genuine or not. Man-made blue stars will usually be much less expensive than a genuine blue star sapphire.

We are very fortunate to specialize in genuine black star sapphires and man-made blue stars. We have the largest selection in this area, featuring all qualities and the latest in styling. We design all our jewelry which contains these lovely star sapphires.

Our buyer visits Thailand at least once a year and we are constantly importing genuine black star sapphires of all qualities, sizes, shapes and colors. By designing and manufacturing ring mountings and other types of jewelry, we are able to mount genuine black star sapphires into fine jewelry relatively inexpensively. As a result, we pass these savings directly to the consumer to enable you to purchase genuine black star sapphires in rings and other jewelry at far less than you would ordinarily expect to pay.

If you are interested in further information, please contact us at Lawson's Jewelers, 250 Pine Avenue, Downtown Long Beach Only.

FISCHER QUINTS FIVE

LIVE AN ORDINARY LIFE

S. Dakota Quints Now 5 Years Old

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) — The Fischer quintuplets, whose birth brought almost immediate wealth and Social Security numbers before they were 6 months old, observed their fifth birthday Saturday.

If it was like previous birthdays for the four girls and boy, it was a quiet, family-only event in the Fischers' 20-room farmhouse on the prairie about one mile southwest of Aberdeen.

The birthday cake was a gift from a local bakery, which also provides birthday cakes for the other Fischer youngsters.

Four years ago, this farming center of 25,000 planned a big civic event to mark the quints' first birthday. It was canceled at the request of the family.

Home to the quints and the other six children of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fischer is a posh, 72 by 44-foot house surrounded by trees, shrubbery and flowers. It's also the headquarters for Fischer's 800-acre cattle raising operation.

* * * *

THE QUINTS have lived in relative seclusion since the news of their birth in the early morning hours of Sept. 14, 1963, made them public figures.

Perhaps it was the traumatic experience of worldwide publicity that caused the Fischers to decide the five babies should have as ordinary a life as possible.

James Andrew, Mary Margaret, Mary Magdalen, Mary Catherine and Mary Ann are as lively and interesting as any 5-year-olds, according to family friends.

THE QUINTS were barely old enough to begin kindergarten this fall but they did not enter school.

Life has changed markedly for the Fischers since the quintuplets were born.

The red-haired mother, now 35, canned 100 quarts of pickles from her big garden in the summer of 1963. Andrew J. Fischer, eight years older than his wife, was a $76-per-week shipping clerk. They had a cow, five children, and rented a ramshackle house one mile from the city.

After intense bidding, exclusive contracts were signed with certain magazines and advertising media giving the Fischers an estimated annual income of up to $250,000. The bulk of it goes into a trust fund for the nine girls and two boys.

A local firm gives the Fischers $110 for toys each year.

AFTER THE Fischers moved to their new home, Mrs. Mary Ann Fischer revealed that she still did not like publicity.

The Fischers consented to ride in a college homecoming parade on the stipulation that out-of-town news media not be advised of the appearance.

Kim Novak Back on Job After Stinging by Hornets

SONORA (UPI) — Actress Kim Novak was reported well and back on location Saturday after she was stung by a stirred-up nest of hornets while horseback riding.

Miss Novak, her stand-in, Diane Cummings, and her hairdresser, Jane Chabra, were riding for recreation here Thursday. They are part of the Warner Bros.-Seven Arts cast filming "The Great Train Robbery."

A spokesman for the Hollywood film company said one of the girls' horses trampled a hornets nest. All the girls suffered stings and Miss Cummings was thrown from her mount, which was also a hornet's target.

Miss Novak was credited with rescuing her stand-in from the swarm of hornets after Miss Cummings sprained her ankle in the fall. The girls were treated by a doctor on the set.

Plane Fails on Takeoff, Kills Two

LITTLETON, Colo.—(AP)—Two doctors were killed and two other persons seriously injured Saturday when a single-engine plane crashed on takeoff at Columbine Airport in Jefferson County.

The Jefferson County coroner's office identified the pilot, one of the two fatalities, as Dr. Roger D. Tippetts, 35, of Littleton. The other fatality was identified tentatively as Dr. Joseph E. Stapleton of Denver.

Seriously injured and taken to Swedish Hospital in Englewood were Miss Joyce Stalgren, 23, of Aurora, Colo., and Henry Husinga, 60, of Freeport, Ill.

Commission to Guide Urban Growth Urged

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A new state commission should be formed to help guide the growth of California's sprawling cities, a state development report recommended Saturday.

The California State Development Plan Program predicted that the combined populations of the Los Angeles, San Francisco and San Diego areas would increase by 10 million persons by 1980.

GOV. REAGAN praised the 363-page report prepared by the State Office of Planning.

He urged the recommendations be "given the fullest possible attention and support so that the state can proceed in an orderly manner in planning and developing the most effective use of our total resources."

But the report and the governor's comments left it to legislators and state administrators to come up with specific proposals to allocate use of land, fight air pollution, reduce minority group unemployment and establish other programs.

"PERHAPS the single most challenging problem of urban life is the need to create new revived central cores in our metropolitan areas," the report said.

The report said functions of various levels of government in growth and development should be spelled out more clearly.

The report also advocated conservation of resources, including urban land, and better education for minority groups.

Dear World

MY YOUNG SON starts to school today . . . It's all going to be sort of strange and new to him for awhile, and I wish you would sort of treat him gently.

You see, up to now he's been king of the roost . . . He's been boss of the backyard . . . His mother has always been near to soothe his wounds and repair his feelings.

But now things are going to be different.

This morning he's going to walk down the front steps, wave his hand, and start out on the great adventure . . . It is an adventure that might take him across continents, across oceans . . . It's an adventure that will probably include wars and tragedy and sorrow . . . To live his life in the world he will have to live in will require faith and love and courage.

So, World, I wish you would sort of look after him . . . Take him by the hand and teach him things he will have to know.

But do it gently, if you can.

He will have to learn, I know, that all men are not just, that all men are not true.

But teach him also that for every scoundrel there is a hero . . . that for every crooked politician there is a great and dedicated leader . . . Teach him that for every enemy, there is a friend.

Steer him away from envy, if you can . . . and teach him the secret of quiet laughter.

In school, World, teach him it is far more honorable to fail than to cheat . . . Teach him to have faith in his own ideas, even if everyone says they are wrong . . . Teach him to be gentle with gentle people and tough with tough people.

Try to give my son the strength not to follow the crowd when everyone is getting on the bandwagon . . . Teach him to listen to all men—but teach him also to filter all he hears on a screen of truth and take just the good that siphons through.

Teach him, if you can, how to laugh when he's sad . . . Teach him there is no shame in tears . . . Teach him there can be glory in failure and despair in success.

Treat him gently, World, if you can. But don't coddle him . . . Because only the test of fire makes fine steel . . . Let him have the courage to be impatient . . . Let him have the patience to be brave.

Let him be no man's man . . . Teach him always to have sublime faith in himself.

Because then he will always have sublime faith in mankind.

This is quite an order, World, but see what you can do . . . He's such a nice little fellow, my son!

BACHELOR DAY FLOPS

Bashful Farmers Stay Unhitched

NEW SALEM, N.D. (AP) — The bashful prairie farmers of New Salem, N.D., apparently are bogged down in their bachelorhood for another year.

Their prospective brides from that spiffy eastern school, Radcliffe College, didn't show for what could pass as a tame version of Sadie Hawkins Day.

Maybe the fact it was Friday the 13th had something to do with it.

Last February, an anonymous New Salem bachelor supposedly ran an ad in the form of a story in the Harvard Crimson campus newspaper.

It made a pitch for some eastern belles to come out and get acquainted with the farmers and ranchers, some of whom were said to be modestly wealthy, with up to $100,000 in savings. And, the ad noted the bachelor's only fault is that he's "bashful around women."

Radcliffe, the coed complement of Harvard at Boston, was the target of the lonely bachelors, who complain that the local farm gals have quit the prairies for big-city jobs and male companionship.

The plea brought responses from around the country.

So the local townsfolk decided to make Friday the 13th Bachelor Day.

They paraded the bachelors down Main Street, led by the local police chief, who holstered two guns and rode horseback.

The bachelors drove autos which showed placards reading "It's cold in here alone," "Drastic Action Committee," "One empty saddle," and "I'm still available."

Ten gals with discerning eyes admitted they'd turned out for the celebration. All were from North Dakota and included two reporters.

After the parade, the women were wined, dined and waltzed. And there was a bowling tourney to keep up the men's interest.

But the Sadie Hawkins tradition, in which a gal is supposed to be able to latch onto any man she catches before sundown, didn't make any dents in the bachelor ranks, and you could probably pin it on Midwest conservatism.

One of those who'd responded by letter described herself as a Boston-educated girl of 21 from Saugus, Mass. "I already have a name picked out for one of our sons — Christian Peter," she wrote. As a postscript she confided, "I've always wanted to marry a rancher and this is the only way I know how to."

"A girl from a finishing school would be a disaster," warned an interested respondent from Silver Spring, Md.

Durwood Toepke, chairman of the Bachelor Day celebration at this town of 946 persons, said about 25 letters had been received and he added: "These men need women, and it'd be a home to some cotton-pickin' lonely ladies."

Apparently the local bachelors, in spite of their rumored interest in romance, are enjoying the farmer's life. They're harvesting another good crop in fine, summery weather.

At night the town's six bars come to life when the men have finished in the fields and the milking is done. Still in overalls, their nails black with soil, they find some joking hours to themselves.

Middle-aged Alton Graf says he's been "too busy farming all these years" to find himself a wife.

Aldon Eggers, only 24, remarked, "Nobody's calling all over town looking for me when I'm late for supper." He didn't say whether he's glad or sad about that.

At any rate, Toepke says New Salem folks may make Bachelor Day an annual event until it gets some of its best bachelor bait hitched up.

Moscow Czech Supporters in Prison Awaiting Trial

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Six Soviet intellectuals arrested in Moscow after demonstrating their support for occupied Czechoslovakia still are in prison and are awaiting trial, an underground letter smuggled out of the Soviet Union said Saturday.

Physicist Pavel Litvinov, grandson of the late foreign minister Maxim Litvinov, and Mrs. Larisa Daniel, wife of imprisoned writer Yuri Daniel, were among demonstrators seized by Soviet police as they tried to march through Red Square Aug. 25 with signs saying, "Long Live Free and Independent Czechoslovakia."

The underground letter, brought here by a Western tourist, said the protesters remained in Lefortovskaya Prison in Moscow. They will be tried for violating the Soviet criminal code forbidding group actions that violate public order, the letter said. The charge carries a maximum sentence of three years in prison camps.

Teen-Age Girl Dies in Headon Crash

UKIAH (AP) — A motorcycle and a pickup truck collided head on at the south entrance to Ridgewood Park on Highway 101 north of Ukiah Friday, killing a teen-age girl.

Ludene Scott, 19, of Newcastle, a passenger on the motorcycle, died several hours after the accident

Sight Oil Slick, Hunt Shipwreck

HALIFAX, N.S. (AP) — The tugboat Foundation Vigilant reported sighting an oil slick and some wreckage Saturday in an area about 60 miles northeast of Anticosti Island where the West German freighter Elisabeth Schulte was abandoned by her 24-man crew Thursday night.

The vessel had run aground off Cape Whittle and damaged her hull and lost her rudder trying to free herself. The crew left the vessel as water poured into all holds.

An Italian freighter rescued the crewmen and took them to Montreal.

A spokesman for M.I.L. Tug and Salvage Ltd., owners of the Foundation Vigilant, said the tug would continue her search for the 1,554-ton Elisabeth Schulte.

Anticosti Island is in the Gulf of St. Lawrence at the mouth of the St. Lawrence River.

Mass Vaccination

COTABATO, Philippines (UPI) — Authorities began a mass vaccination program Saturday against an outbreak of typhoid. Forty-nine cases of the disease were confirmed in the Mindanao city.

Explosion Kills 15

MANILA (UPI) — An explosion last Wednesday in a village on a small island in the southern Philippines killed 15 people and injured 20, constabulary authroities reported Saturday.

Freighter Still Hard Aground

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — The Great Lakes freighter August Ziesing, carrying a cargo of 14,951 tons of iron ore, remained hard aground broadside across the mouth of the downbound channel around Neebish Island in the lower St. Marys River Saturday.

Four tugs were unsuccessful in first attempts to drag the freighter free from the bottom on which she went aground Friday in a fog.

None of the ship's crew of 35 was injured.

Russ Scientists Invited to Cape Kennedy Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department spokesman said Saturday that Soviet scientists as well as those from other countries have been invited to a Cape Kennedy Space Center tour next month.

Whether the Russians will accept the invitation is not yet known, the spokesman added.

The Soviets have turned down similar invitations in the past — presumably because they did not want to open their space facilities to similar visits from American scientists.

However, about 40 Russians were reported registered for an International Astronautical Federal meeting in New York Oct. 13-19.

While the U.S. has been canceling some U.S.-Soviet cultural exchanges as a gesture of U.S. disapproval of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, the spokesman said Washington has decided not to extend such cancellations to international meetings and conferences.

Testimonial Dinner Set for Rep. Hanna

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

John E. Horne, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, will be the main speaker at a $100-a-plate testimonial dinner for Rep. Richard T. Hanna, D-Fullerton, Thursday in the Grand Hotel, Anaheim.

Rep. Hanna is seeking a third term in the 34th District, which was recently reapportioned to include Lakewood and a northeast portion of Long Beach as well as western Orange County. The dinner will honor Hanna's 12 years' service as an elected legislator from Orange County; he served in the State Assembly before Congress.

The event is sponsored by the Committee for Richard T. Hanna. Honorary co-chairmen for the dinner are Ben Deane, president of a home building firm, and Allen Parkinson, creator of the Movieland Wax Museum.

EVENING GOP

State Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, will speak for the Evening Division, Long Beach Council of Republican Women Federated at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the O'Donnell Conference Room, 3350 Olive Ave. Friends are welcome.

CONVENTION REPORT

North Long Beach Republican Women Federated will hear a report on the party's Miami Beach national convention at the Monday noon meeting in Houghton Park Clubhouse by Mrs. Elizabeth Phillips, parliamentarian for the Los Angeles County Federation of Republican Women.

Members are asked to bring a covered dish or $1. The public is invited.

LOS ALTOS GOP

The Rev. Claude Bunzel, curator of Independence Hall at Knott's Berry Farm, will speak on "Christian Responsibility in Politics and Civic Affairs" at the Tuesday noon luncheon meeting of South Los Altos Republican Women Federated in the Elks Club.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. Walter L. Powell, 6258 E. Sixth St., or Mrs. William E. Bowers, 3045 E. Sixth St. New club members will be honored at a business meeting after the luncheon.

CRANSTON COFFEE

A coffee for Democratic U.S. Senate nominee Alan Cranston will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 26 in the Robert Tower residence, 4608 Guava, Seal Beach. Guest speaker will be Arthur Gottlieb, Democratic nominee for Congress in the Long Beach area 32nd District.

The event is sponsored by Californians for Cranston in the West Orange County area, a bipartisan citizens group coordinated by Mrs. Sherry Baum. Mrs. Baum said those interested in attending or in hosting future coffees for Cranston may contact Mrs. Julia Ann Cunningham, 712 Taper Dr., Seal Beach.

ANDERSON KICKOFF

Glenn M. Anderson, Democratic nominee for Congress, 17th District, will kick off his campaign at an 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. picnic today at the Compton Hunting and Fishing Park, 1625 Sportsman Dr., Compton.

Admission is free. Families may bring a picnic lunch or buy food at booths operated by district Democratic clubs. A day-long program of events has been planned.

Arthur Gottlieb, Democratic nominee for Congress in the 32nd District (Long Beach area), will speak at a 12:30 p.m. Tuesday luncheon meeting of the Leisure World Democratic Club in Clubhouse No. 3, Leisure World, Seal Beach.

HUMPHREY'S YOUTH

Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Monterey Park, a supporter of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, has been named Southern California chairman of Young Citizens for Humphrey-Muskie, according to Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Montebello, state cochairman of Californians for Humphrey-Muskie.

Two Ships Collide

ROTTERDAM (UPI) — The German freighter Johannes Fritzen collided with the Dutch coaster Confid in darkness on the Niuwe Waterweg connecting Rotterdam harbor with the North Sea Saturday. The coaster was heavily damaged, but there were no injuries.

Hong Kong Faces Refugee 'Invasion'

HONG KONG (UPI) — Hong Kong Saturday faced the threat of a mass "invasion" by refugees fleeing from terror and chaos in Communist China for the second time in six years.

In the past two weeks, more than 400 Chinese fishermen and their families have sought asylum in this British Crown Colony already struggling with serious refugee settlement problems.

Hong Kong authorities tried to force the Chinese to return to the mainland, sending patrol boats to escort the fishing junks back into Red China's waters. But the refugees refused to go.

Immigration Director William Collard finally ruled they could stay after the fishermen told of terror and murder they said were rampant in the villages and towns of politically chaotic Kwangtung province.

In 1962, Crown Colony authorities turned back thousands of refugees when Peking temporarily dropped its barriers and opened the border to all who wanted to leave. About 100,000 refugees poured into Hong Kong before colonial officials stopped the exodus because of housing, sanitary and other problems.

Senate Panel OKs FCC Nominee Lee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nominatin of H. Rex Lee to the Federal Communications Commission has been approved by the Senate Commerce Committee after he testified "there is an over-emphasis of violence on television."

Lee declared "It is the obligation of the FCC to provide suitable programming" in the industry. The Senate was expected to approve the nomination shortly.

SKETCH OF BOEING'S PROPOSED SUPERSONIC PLANE

Boeing Now Leery of Swing Wing for Supersonic Jet

By RICHARD WITKIN
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The Boeing Company has all but abandoned the "swing wing" concept that helped it win the government contest to build America's supersonic airliner.

After at least five years and tens of millions had been devoted to "swing wing" development, the company has told the Federal Aviation Administration it would not put main emphasis on a "fixed wing" supersonic transport (SST).

Industry sources said Boeing was still allotting only 3 per cent of its effort to the "swing wing" concept — a hedge against a technical breakthrough between now and the deadline for a company decision four months from now.

The Russians and a British-French team have both built fixed-wing SST's that are expected to make their first flights soon.

* * * *

BOEING WAS given the United States' SST assignment two years ago after an intensive contest with the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, which proposed a fixed-wing design. Boeing's victory was due in good measure to advantages seen in the "swing wing" approach.

It is a bold approach whereby the wings are positioned almost perpendicular to the fuselage for takeoff, and pivot sharply backward for high-speed flight. The Air Force F-111 attack bomber is the first mass-produced plane to use such a system.

Boeing encountered the first big danger signs last winter when calculations indicated that initial estimates on the weight of its "swing wing" SST were more than 25 tons low.

THE SEATTLE manufacturer has until Jan. 15 to submit its finished proposal to the FAA. The decision must then be confirmed by a team of government specialists.

Whatever the final design, it now looks as if America's first test SST will not be ready for its initial flight until well into 1972. That is two years behind the original schedule.

Well-placed informants predicted that the plane would not be ready for regular airline service before 1976 or 1977.

Both the Russian SST, the TU-144, and the Anglo Concorde are scheduled to enter regular service by 1972.

RAPPORT WITH YOUTH, PRESS

"New" Compassionate Nixon Image Catching On

By ERNIE HERNANDEZ
From Our National Bureau

CLEVELAND — The "new" Richard M. Nixon, a man of confidence and compassion, one with rapport with the youth and the press, seems to be catching on.

One can't be sure yet, after traveling with the Republican nominee for four days. But it is becoming clear that his image as "Tricky Dick" is fading.

Nixon, the 1968 candidate, is beginning to show himself as a very human person — sometimes serious, sometimes jovial, talkative, considerate, outgoing.

His reconcillation with the press is something short of unusual, considering 1960 when he lost the presidency to John F. Kennedy and 1962 when he made his "farewell to politics" statement after his defeat in the California gubernatorial contest.

His new appeal to the young — even the squealing teen-ager — is something one has to witness to believe.

In Charlotte, N.C., New Orleans, and Indianapolis, the youngsters literally crawled over each other to touch him.

* * * *

TO SOME extent, Nixon also is reaching the Negroes. He was aided considerably in Cleveland by having Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass. at his side.

Probably of bigger help is the Nixon tactic of making the same pitch in New York and Cleveland as in Charlotte and Raleigh. His offer to Negroes is "payrolls, not welfare rolls" and "law and order, yes, but with justice and hope."

Nixon's relations with the 1968 press can be attributed partly to his well picked staff, which has been catering to newsmen's needs and demands.

Questions are answered soon after they're asked. Press needs — teletype, working space, lounge, filing time — are always considered. And Nixon has tried to reach the newsmen traveling with him individually.

"Every one will have an equal chance to see the candidate," he assured reporters. There are two planes on this Nixon tour — the "Julie" occupied by the media, and the "Tricia" occupied by Nixon and his staff.

* * * *

BUT THERE are always staff men on the Julie and aides have devised a rotation system which gives newsmen a chance to be on the same plane with the candidate and his wife.

The New Orleans, Nixon invited the traveling national press (67 members that day) to lunch at the 128-year old restaurant, Antoine's. There, he let his hair down, chatted with the reporters, and led them through the restaurant's famous picture gallery and kitchen.

RICHARD M. NIXON
A New Look

He allowed them glimpses into his personal life. His 1940 two-week honeymoon to Mexico which cost him $178. His seasickness while on a South America cruise in 1941. His first visit to Antoine's.

The local press is also given special treatment. Part of Nixon's new format is a briefing just for the locals. At Indianapolis, he talked to each one and spent half an hour answering questions.

"I've come to understand that candidates are more expendable than press men," he said with a smile.

ONE NIXON technique in reaching the youth is by asking his audience questions like "How many here were born when I came here in 1934?" (Charlotte, N.C.) and "How many were born less than 25 years ago?"

His crowds have included many youngsters — a majority at the Raleigh-Durham Airport, one-third of the mass at Indianapolis. Nixon invites them to "become involved, to take part of the action."

Robert Ellsworth, Nixon's national political director, attributes the new rapport with youth, to Nixon's "outgoing character." Nixon isn't really shy, he loves people, he said.

He noted that the youthful public is becoming more aware that Nixon's staff has many young men and women in key positions.

Dwight Chapin, personal aide, is 27; Pat Buchanan, top speech writer, is 29; Ron Ziegler traveling press aide, is 27; Alan Woods, Ziegler's assistant, is 22; Jeannette Lerner, economic researcher, is 25; Bruce Whelehan, press assistant, is 28.

* * * *

CONTRIBUTING to the new rapport also are the vivacious Nixon girls — blonde Tricia and brunette Julie, who is engaged to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's grandson, David. Today's youth identify with Julie, David and Tricia, Ellsworth noted.

The past week saw Nixon stopping in Charlotte, to visit the mother of evangelist Billy Graham; in New Orleans to address the American Legion convention; in Indianapolis for a political rally, and in Cleveland for the first of a series of one hour television shows.

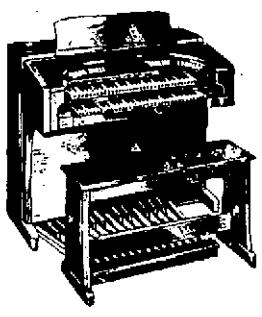

At each stop, Nixon didn't fail to link himself with the region. He has many second homes — North Carolina, because he studied law at Duke University in Durham: Indiana, the home of his mother; Ohio, the home of his father.

His audiences seem to like what he has to say to them. He calls them "forgotten Americans" and "the quiet majority." He appeals to "new leadership."

Essentially, Hubert H. Humphrey is offering the same. But Hubert, in the public mind, is an extension of Lyndon Baines Johnson. There is no attempt to present a "New Humphrey."

Nixon's publicists came up with the term "New Nixon," which is now overused. This is so, perhaps, because it is acquiring more meaning as more crowds reach for him and their enthusiasm grows stronger.

Humphrey People, Nixon Computers Woo Voters

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Behind deceptive facades here, separate organizations are cranking up efforts to persuade voters to the causes of Hubert Humphrey and Richard M. Nixon.

The rococco walls of an ancient hotel contain the smoothly-functioning, supremely-confident United Citizens for Nixon-Agnew. A newly-built, steel and glass office building holds the helter-skelter Citizens for Humphrey-Muskie.

As much as anything else, comparison of the two groups emphasizes the differences that existed at the onset of the two presidential campaigns: the jerky, disorganized first week of Humphrey's bid as contrasted with the almost martial precision of Nixon's swing during the same period.

Both organizations have essentially the same mission: to stir up votes from among various segments of the electorate — the ethnic groups, the professions, the geographic and economic subdivisions of the nation.

The Nixon organization was formed in April, outgrew its original quarters and smoothly underwent a move last week into the historic Willard Hotel, which went out of business this summer.

HUMPHREY'S citizen organization was formed four months ago in the Connecticut Ave. office building it still occupies.

Some 500 staff members and volunteers last week occupied most of the first five floors of the creaking Willard, where there was a place for everyone and everyone was in his place.

No more than 150 workers were in the Humphrey headquarters, taking up only half of the office building's eighth floor, and if anyone was in his place it usually was unknown to newly-recruited switchboard operators or receptionists.

The stony front of the Willard was festooned with bunting and giant portraits of the GOP nominees. In the office building, the Humphrey-Muskie group is not even listed in the directory in the lobby.

The machine-like functioning of the Nixon organization is the handiwork of its chairman, Washington attorney Charles Rhyne, who began building it in April with a staff of skilled planners focusing on its post-convention function.

The scrambling of the Democratic organization probably is attributable to the shake-up it underwent just after Humphrey's nomination. The former chairman, Minnesota trucking executive Robert Short, an old friend of Humphrey's, was removed to become treasurer of the Democratic National Committee. He was replaced last week by former North Carolina Governor Terry Sanford.

ONE OF the few survivors of the change said the preconvention organization hadn't been sure of its aims and tended more to play a subsidiary role in delegate-hunting rather than preparing for general election vote-seeking.

Rhyne last week proudly unveiled some of the fruits of his planning to reporters in the crystal-chandeliered grand ballroom of the Willard.

As staffers displayed diagrams, Rhyne told of electronic systems to be employed in getting votes for Nixon and Agnew.

One is a set of 150 booths equipped with tape recorders in which citizens may put down messages to Nixon, with the implication that each will come to the attention of the nominee. However, Rhyne conceded that Nixon will only see syntheses of these enunciations after they have been filtered through staffers.

And each of those delivering such a message will receive a "personal" letter from Nixon, as will writers of letters to the candidate and persons rounding up prospective voters and contributions.

Each of the letters will have in its body the addressee's name and address as well as a general comment on the appropriate subject and will bear Nixon's signature. But the "personal" communication will have been turned out by a carefully-programmed computer in Dallas, leased by the Nixon organization.

Sanford somewhat ruefully admitted that he will have no such sophisticated tools at his disposal. Although the Humphrey organization's communications hardly will be the product of little old ladies with quill pens, its automation will be limited to more conventional machines such as automatic typewriters.

"If you write to us, you'll get an answer written by a human hand," said Sanford. "You can fold, spindle or mutilate our people."

* * * *

THE HUMPHREY group's expectation is to match mechanization with manpower, and they can expect help from such as the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE).

The Democratic organization also is bidding for the help of young people who supported the preconvention efforts of Robert Kennedy, Nelson Rockefeller and Eugene McCarthy.

Attorney Stephen Mitchell, a prime mover in the McCarthy campaign, was named vice chairman of the citizen's organization on Saturday and the hope is that he can attract thousands of young workers who weren't too badly folded, spindled or mutilated by the outcome of the Minnesotan's campaign.

Harriman Flies Home for Rites

PARIS (UPI) — Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, chief U.S. negotiater at the Vietnam war talks with North Vietnam, was to fly to the United States today for the funeral of his mother-in-law, it was announced Saturday.

Well-informed sources said the 78-year-old diplomat was expected to take the opportunity of his visit to brief President Johnson and top foreign policy aides on the deadlocked talks.

Harriman will fly to New York for the services scheduled for Monday, then on to Washington before returning to Paris later in the week, the sources said.

It will be Harriman's third trip to the United States since the talks began on May 13 and promptly bogged down over Hanoi's demand for an unconditional end to all bombing and other "acts of war" against North Vietnam.

He returned in June for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's funeral and went back several weeks later for a granddaughter's wedding in Washington.

Harriman is not expected to bring any news to brighten Johnson's hope that a peaceful solution can be worked out before he leaves the White House in January.

U.S. delegation sources said the two sides are as far from an agreement as they were when the talks began four months ago.

While no progress has been made in the conversations, American delegation sources said "we have learned much about each other — we have mostly been feeling each other out and now we know a lot more about each other and our respective stands."

If Harriman does not return by next Wednesday, Vance will head the U.S. delegation at the 22nd session.

EARL WILSON

Sonja, Mate Give Museum to Norway

OSLO — King Olav in a brown suit and carrying a brown hat and gloves, strode up the aisle with Sonja Henie, and Trygvie Lie made one of the speeches, when our girl Sonja and her husband, shipping magnate Niels Onstad, opened a $10 million art center they gave to Norway.

The B.W. and I had flown here to attend this milestone in the life of Sonja, who remains a U.S. citizen and flies frequently to California to skate, though she's Norway's favorite daughter.

"Sonja" was on all lips. It was "Sonja weather" — lucky weather — just ideal.

And the crown princess, also a Sonja (Haroldsen), a commoner and the bride of Crown Prince Harold, mingled with us in the beautiful museum and gaped through the trophy room where Sonja displays medals for 10 world's championships as well as Olympic titles going back to St. Moritz, 1928.

"That's quite a trophy Sonja has around her neck, too," the B.W. said.

(A star sapphire on two pendants of diamonds and "another one just as large on her finger," the B.W. added.)

* * * *

SONJA WAS in a short white mink-trimmed cotton dress and matching hat, and her waist was narrow from her constant skating. In the only English spoken at the ceremony, she asked the king to accept the museum for Norway.

That night there was a party at their home. "Oh, everybody in Norway knows where Sonja lives," our driver said as we were leaving the Grand Hotel.

Sonja was at the door laughing. Sonja is a perpetual laugher, she was laughing as she talked to Mrs. Harry Cohn, Mrs. Jules Stein, Gayelord Hauser, George Frehlinghuysen, Tillie Losch, the Andre Dubonnets, the Ray Holmeses, Cynthia Wirtz MacArthur, Luis Estevez, Earl Blackwell and numerous foreign titles and ambassadors.

"We've got enough pictures here for another museum," Sonja said.

Especially autographed photographs, including Ike, Nixon, FDR, Adlai Stevenson.

"Yes, and there's Hitler and Mussolini," Sonja laughed.

WHEN THE GERMANS came into her home during the war, they saw the picture of der fuehrer prominently displayed. They said "Heil Hitler." They did not damage her home.

Sonja might have figured it would happen that way. The talk was largely of Naw York, Los Angeles and Chicago (where Sonja visited frequently when she was roaming the world as a great ice star and also making movies).

"I knew Sonja from the time she was 5," her pleasant husband said.

"When the war came, I went to Chicago and lived there on about a dollar a day. Her mother would invite me to dinner."

Sonja laughed again. "I would get him dates with the girls in the ice show," Sonja laughed. "When I was free, I married him myself."

THE WEEKEND WIND-UP IN N.Y. . . . Comic Norm Crosby, about to step on stage at the Las Vegas Sahara, discovered his hearing aid was dead. "Hold the show," he yelled, "—I'm not electrified!" . . . Robert Goulet cut his Christmas album on a steamy August day . . . Gene Kelly said at L'Etoile he's like Warren Beatty for his big "Tom Swift" epic . . . Lana Cantrell, off on a South African concert tour, shlepped her golf clubs along.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Taffy Tuttle says her boy friend's pretty smart: "When he was a life guard he gave Raquel Welch mouth-to-mouth resuscitation for 20 minutes — and she hadn't even been drowning."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: The most fattening thing you can put into a banana split is — a spoon. — Franklin P. Jones.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: An old toast: "May misfortune follow you all the days of your life — and never overtake you."

EARL'S PEARLS: Lee Allen complains of the thin walls in his apartment: "When my neighbors fight, I get hit."

Dustin Hoffman, now filming "Midnight Cowboy," was named after his mother's favorite movie star, Dustin Farnum. He says it could have been worse: "She might have been a fan of Gloria Swanson's." . . . That's earl, brother.

COWBOY'S CUPID
Curvacious Susan Berens, star of Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies, portrays the heroine in this year's "sophisticated western" when the show opens for a 20 run Tuesday in the Inglewood Forum.

'Teahouse of August Moon' Refreshing Season Opener

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Drama Critic

Wise and witty "Teahouse of the August Moon," Community Playhouse's 39th seasonal opener, offers a fine rare evening of rediscovery to the theatergoer.

For there is an always-present quality of warmth and humanity, of an old-style theatrical magic, shining more brightly than the warm August moon of Okinawa itself.

"Teahouse" says many things that need constant resaying: of the worth and dignity inherent in alien peoples; that human beings, though often bumblingly stupid, are not essentially bad; and right can prevail even in this less than best of all possible worlds.

Cornball? Square? Of course, refreshingly so, especially in a theatrical season marked with a series of futile, episodic nonplays.

Much of the magical quality must be credited to director Elaine Herman, who weaves together the basic ingredients — an able cast and beautifully constructed set — into a well-balanced entity.

It is a large cast, with many of its occidental members portraying Orientals — with a large degree of success.

In the lead roles, Jerry Anderson as Okinawan interpreter Sakini is exceptional. A gently sardonic observer of the human, always ready to laugh, he makes clear Sakini's — and the play's — central theme: ". . . Pain makes man think . . . thinking makes man wise . . . wisdom makes man able to endure life . . ."

His American opposite number, Captain Fisby, emerges with equal humanity in a characterization by Jerry Adams, which is completely believable in its bumbling stumble toward understanding.

Ron Albertsen, as Colonel Purdy, turns what probably is the most thankless part into a minor classic. Purdy may not be the smartest officer in the U.S. Army, but he does, in this interpretation, prove himself capable of learning and understanding the truth.

There are additional bits of magic:

Actress Keiko Ito's beautiful, presumably authentic geisha dances; a very funny takeoff on classic Japanese wrestling by Tom Campos and Ed Little; a smartly engineered set by George Herman in which the teahouse itself is constructed, demolished and rebuilt on stage.

As should be apparent, I very much liked this show, which for all the fact it's a revival, comes off with the freshness of a new hit. It shouldn't be missed by anyone with the slightest affection for the theater.

San Diego Rated Top Cruiser

The best cruiser in the 7th Fleet for the past year was recognized in a weekend ceremony at Long Beach Naval Shipyard.

She is the San Diego-based USS Chicago, winner of the Navy's Meritorious Unit Commendation, and the Battle Efficiency E in all departments — weapons, operations and engineering.

Rear Adm. Sheldon H. Kinney, the missile cruiser's Flotilla 11 boss, came up from San Diego to make the presentations.

He told Capt. John DeLargy and the crew:

"It is great to make awards that can show tangibly on each man involved. I know you will all be proud of your commendation ribbon and Es."

The MUC was for the periods June to December 1966 and October 1967 to May 1968 and involved Chicago's pioneering of PIRAZ (positive identification radar advisory zone) and enlarging upon it.

The ship received the initial operations order on PIRAZ.

And the Es were for the last fiscal operating year.

Capt. DeLargy, after ordering the green, gold, blue and red MUC and the "meatball" E hoisted, said, "I accept the awards for the ship with pride and gratitude."

Chicago is undergoing alterations and overhaul in the shipyard.

Hashbury Clinic Closes; No Funds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A Haight-Ashbury medical clinic treating hippies has closed for lack of funds.

The last hope for raising of finances had been a jazz and rock festival at the Palace of Fine Arts, but it made no money.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: You face a difficult readjustment. You will be unable to back away from seeing the need for human dignity. The coming year has an extreme impact on today's natives, all hard workers with many ups and downs in their lives. Often they are slow about social graces and consequently badly misunderstood.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Now is the time to straighten out any differences with the people you care for. Meet their needs while not losing sight of your own. Your intuition will find the delicate balance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Your routines turn out to be pleasant, satisfying today. The temptation to do as little as you can get by with, just when you should try to do something extra.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Think about ways to increase your power. Clear off the leftover details. Skip the entertaining this evening, and concentrate on sorting out your belongings.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It is time to express your views more strongly. Put your whole weight into your effort at present.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If your basic purposes are constructive, your luck will likely hold today no matter what you do. Plan a quiet evening concerning your distant goals.

VIRGO (Aug. 22-Sept. 23): For once all your friends are apt to be in a good humor at the same time. But remember that your friends may not all like each other as well as you like them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): You are able to secure marvelous cooperation today, provided you can forget any past recriminations. Make a diligent effort, at a reasonable pace.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Find some way to be more effective. This is a good time to begin a new line of study. It is also worthwhile to invest in books and working tools.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Line up your accounts; simplify your situation financially. Then let well enough alone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Seek beauty today and tonight. Bring your loved one along for a sunset, or companionship during a meal this evening. There should be something interesting to talk about later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your pace sets the standard for those around you. Start right on time. Take your rest early tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Your avocation, hobbies, and sports deserve some of your free time. Take any opportunity to catch up for recent neglect.

L. B. Schools Adopt Tighter Discipline Code

A newly-revised discipline code more tightly controlling secret social clubs, student disruptions and off-campus behavior goes into effect Monday for Long Beach's 33,000-plus junior and senior high school pupils.

"Firmness but fairness" is the basis philosophy followed, says Neil W. Philips Jr., who, as director of high schools, was one of the code's chief architects.

See Page 1 of today's Women's News section for details of new dress codes describing how junior and senior high school students of both sexes should dress for class.

"It is broader in scope than last year's code," says Philips, "but is not essentially tougher."

Although 1967-68's general provisions remain basically unchanged, the code — for the first time — precisely spells-out what is meant by "secret society" and "undemocratic procedures" as they involve off-campus clubs.

Such groups became the subject of heated public controversy in April when Dr. Paul Woudenberg, then pastor of California Heights Methodist Church, attacked their "evils" in a sermon. To eliminate future misunderstanding, new definitions of previously unclear points were drafted for inclusion in the revised discipline code.

Membership now is prohibited in those "secret fraternities, sororities or clubs (which) have been adjudged by the courts to include clubs operating off-campus which derive their membership wholly or in part from the public schools."

Such illegal clubs, California law states and Long Beach Unified School District repeats, are those "which practice a process of selection designed to create an exclusive membership, seeking by this to maintain that club's segregation distinction, and caste system by self-perpetuation, rushing, pledging and (further) undemocratic selection of new members."

"Democratic selection of membership" is mandatory for all groups. This means, Philips says, "that no student may be denied membership in any organization whose membership is made up (wholly or in part) of high school students, because of race, religion, national origin, family and economic or social status.

"Candidates eligible for membership shall be elected by a majority vote of the membership" — with no blackballing permitted.

Organizations violating these rules, he says, shall be deemed, by definition, to be illegal secret clubs.

Individual violators, the rules state unequivocally, "shall be ineligible to represent the school and are subject to suspension or exclusion from school."

("Exclusion" in the new disciplinary code equates with the "expulsion" of other years. It "indicates the pupil has forfeited all rights to attend the LBUSD" for any time set by the Board of Education.)

During last spring's controversy, wild — and largely unprovable — stories regarding club initiation hazing circulated through the city. Dealing now directly with this aspect, the revised code declares:

"Hazing in any form, on or off public school campuses, is prohibited. Any act that injures, degrades or tends to injure, degrade or disgrace any fellow student or person shall be defined as hazing. Any method of initiation into a student organization . . . which causes or is likely to cause bodily danger or physical harm . . . is prohibited."

The penalty: "Any student who participates in the hazing of another student or person shall forfeit any entitlement to public funds, scholarships or awards (and) be deprived of any approval or recommendation granted by the school, and be immediately suspended pending action of the district discipline committee."

The key phrase there, Philips points out, is "approval or recommendation." Conceivably that

CLASS OF 1972 GETS WELCOME FROM PRESIDENT
Dr. Carl W. McIntosh, president of California State College, Long Beach, greets half of the incoming Class of 1972 during two-day freshman orientation at the college. About 3,000 new students could help set another record at the college. Total fall enrollment is expected to reach or top 26,000—making Cal State, Long Beach, the "largest" college in the statewide system.

100,000 Trek Back to Schools

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Education Editor

Monday is the first, shortened school day for nearly 100,000 Long Beach youngsters.

And here are a few last-minute reminders that may ease the day's strains and pains for mothers and their kids — eager beavers and foot-draggers alike.

—Junior and senior high school pupils are expected in their seats by 8:30 a.m., the grade school set at 9.

It will be a day of getting acquainted or reacquainted — with fellow pupils, teachers — and those study habits happily tucked away since classes closed in June. Because teachers and other educational staffers need time to evaluate the day's work before the next's begins:

—All first through 12th-graders will be dismissed at 2 p.m.

Slightly special ground rules will be in effect for kindergartners. Morning sessions, normally 9-11:30 a.m., will be individually abbreviated, if the attending mother so desires. Afternoon classes will run from 12:40 p.m. until 2, instead of through the regular 3:10 p.m.

"A Day of High Adventure" —the first day of kindergarten, is described in a Women's News front-page article today.

In either instance it's permissible for mothers who so desire to stay and ease the "home withdrawal pangs."

Regular school hours prevail Tuesday except:

At Poly, Millikan and Wilson High Schools, where schedules will be modified to permit attendance in up to 8 classes between 7:30 a.m.—the regular starting time—and 3 p.m. Both Jordan and Lakewood remain this year on old class schedules.

IT'S ELEMENTARY, MY DEAR CYNTHIA!
Cynthia Kam Ching, 23, of Lakewood, examines Jane Adams Elementary School kindergarten where she begins her first teaching assignment 17 years after being a pupil in that very room. Guiding her first return visit is Principal James D. Churchill. Miss Ching, a native of Long Beach, continued her education at Lindbergh Junior High, Jordan High, City College and California State College at Long Beach. BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor
(pinch-hitting for Malcolm Epley)

A VETERAN editor once said to me:

"OK, so you're going to be a medical writer. Well, just remember this: There's nothing funny about death, disease, injury and pain. So in writing about medicine, no humor — ever."

The editor was right, of course. But funny things DO happen from time to time in this business of medical writing.

And I aim to tell you about some of them — mainly because that editor is 2,000 miles away.

THE "IN" story right now in medical circles concerns a hospital parking lot in Houston, Tex. Dr. Michael DeBakey, internationally known cardiovascular surgeon, drives up to find a new attendant on duty.

"Sorry, no parking here."

"But I'm Dr. DeBakey."

Recognizing neither the famous face or name, the attendant blurts:

"Listen, Buster, I don't care if you're Dr. Denton Cooley."

This story — and it may be apocryphal for all I know — evokes spasms of laughter throughout the medical profession. Possible exceptions: Drs. DeBakey and Cooley.

I WASN'T there, Charlie, so I can't really vouch for the authenticity of that yarn.

But I was on hand for the next one.

After a lengthy interview with Dr. Ancel Keys, one of the world's foremost authorities on nutrition, the two of us started through the cafeteria line of a Long Beach hospital. Dr. Keys paused to ponder the salad selection.

A young girl server behind the line, unaware to this day of Dr. Key's identity, apparently thought Dr. Keys was taking too much time and holding up the line.

She picked up a salad and thrust it toward him.

"Here — eat this!" she commanded. "It's good for you."

Dr. Keys took the salad and humbly moved on without a word.

THEN THERE was the time I was sitting in an operating-room lounge waiting for a patient to come up from his room for surgery. Big operation to cover for the newspaper.

I was attired in one of those green-pajama scrub suits, so the surgeons present thought I was one of the clan. One small bevy of surgeons kept complaining about the frequent appearance of a certain code number on the lighted paging board.

One says: "Boy, that No. 1457 is getting all the calls. That guy's got to be getting rich. Must have the biggest practice in town."

New scrub suit ambles through the lounge

"Say," one of the complainers asks, "who is that No. 1457 anyway?"

"Him? Oh, that's the page for the orderly."

SPEAKING of surgeons, some of them can be terrors in the operating room — just like in the movies. Cussing. Throwing things.

Well, I was observing, along with a news photographer, a new surgical operation. Suddenly things started going bad for the surgeon.

So when complications began, the surgeon first heaped criticism on the anesthesiologist. Next he bawled out the scrub nurse — the instrument nurse. Then it was the turn for the "dirty nurse" — that's the vernacular for the circulating nurse.

Suddenly he whirled on the photographer.

I thought: We're next. Out we go. No story, no pictures.

"Sir," said the surgeon politely to the cameraman, "I don't want to be getting in your way. Should I stand here? Or would you rather I stand over there?"

A few more choice words for the nurses, the resident physician, the anesthesiologist, and then —

"That's a nice camera you have there. You know, I used to be a photographer myself . . ."

AWAITS DEDICATION

Martin L. King Park a Big Hit

By GEORGE LAINE
Staff Writer

They haven't gotten around to dedicating Long Beach's new Martin Luther King Park yet and may not get to a formal opening for another month.

But swarms of youngsters from the city's Central District are already flocking to the new facility which—when dedicated and completed—will be one of the most complete and best-equipped of all Long Beach recreation complexes.

MORE THAN 400 persons—children accompanied by mothers and fathers—gathered in the spacious, modern auditorium in the park's main building last week for what Senior Recreation Leader Herb Smith called a "family night."

"We like to get the mothers and fathers in once a year and let them see how their sons and daughters have been doing," Smith said. "We give some awards to outstanding youngsters, try to encourage them to do better and others to do as well."

Smith used to direct the activities of his youngsters from a single small building —still part of the the King Park complex—when the facility was known as the 19th Street Playground.

"WE DIDN'T have much equipment then," Smith recalls, "and we had to play ball on the asphalt which produced a few cuts and bruises.

"But we turned out some good athletes and some good teams."

This year the last of the 19th Street Playground teams won the city's Junior Olympics, handily, and it is probably just as well— in view of morale at other parks—that the 19th Street name is disappearing.

It once terrorized the competition.

This fall there will be football teams playing at the new park but they'll be Martin Luther King Park teams, not 19th Street teams. Smith says the youngsters are pleased with their new name.

AIDED BY Doris Topsy, Curtis Lynch and Charles Knight, Smith got the family-night program off to a good start by presenting Robert Willis, the park's Athlete of the Year. Willis won six first-place medals in the city's Junior Olympics which would have been nearly enough to give him the city title instead of the 19th Street Playground.

Others singled out for honors were Gregory King, Herb Smith Jr., Stephen Topsy, Ricky Gibson, D. D. Butler, Charles Moore, Jimmy Bumper, Tony Volair, Kenneth Washington, Tony Gibson, Leo Giles, Gerry Williams and Larry Meyers. Girls had their moment, too, with Connie Bass, Winnie Moore, Anto-

'WE DARE NOT FAIL . . .'

Era of Challenge—Wright

"We dare not fail . . ."

School Supt. W. Odie Wright thus capped the educational challenges he had just extended to the Long Beach Unified School District's 3,000-plus teachers at the start of a new year

His was the keynote speech in the annual teachers meeting at the Auditorium, attended Friday by a majority of the district's professionals.

Presiding was Board Of Education President Elizabeth Wallace. Mayor Edwin W. Wade and Mrs. James Spencer, Long Beach PTA Council president, also greeted the teachers.

Wright noted that "children who enter our kindergartens Monday will reach their 21st birthdays in the year 1984. Shall we abandon them to an Orwellian world of faceless, nameless, totalitarianism?" he asked rhetorically.

"Of course not!"

He suggested education as an antidote to the horrors of novelist George Orwell's predictions for "1984."

"Our mission is to assist each one of our 100,000 young people to develop his abilities and talents to the greatest extent . . . so he will become an individual able to enjoy self-fulfillment and function among his fellow beings in a constructive manner."

Wright told the teachers:

—"Demands on us are greater than ever today. We must continue to teach the 3R's well — but the public expects much more" — in preparing youth for a changing, complex world.

—"We must continue to improve communication between all employes, between all of us who represent the district and the public we serve."

W. ODIE WRIGHT

—"We must understand today's youth if we hope to serve it well." And, "Tell it, teach it, like it is."

—"While these are serious times calling for serious answers, we must have faith that this nation is worth preserving, that it will not only survive but grow better . . . that life is really worth living and that good teachers are vital to our survival and success."

13 NEW CLASSROOMS AWAITING STUDENTS

When the estimated 16,000 students of the Bellflower Unified School District return to classes Monday there will be 13 classroom additions costing $154,000 awaiting them.

The new facilities will house increased enrollment or special programs at a Woodruff and Las Flores Elementary schools, Roosevelt Junior High School, and Bellflower, Mayfair and Somerset high schools.

Included in the package is a new school library at Las Flores School according to Dr. David Shelver, superintendent. The new classrooms are portable, trailer-type structures purchased from Design Facilities Corp. of El Monte under a 7 year, lease-purchase agreement.

Vote for 9 Or Just One Councilman?

EVERY FEW years the argument over how we elect our City Councilmen surfaces.

It has done so again, just as it did in 1962 and 1956-57.

In 1962 the problem — whether we should elect councilmen by districts (the ward system) or by the present system — was studied by the city's Advisory Charter Revision Committee. Unanimous endorsement of the present system was the result.

Just what is the present system? Simply this. The city is divided into nine districts of roughly equal population. Each three years a primary election is held and each district nominates two persons for City Council. Only the voters in a district can participate in that district's election. Hence, voters from the First District, for example, do not note for prospective nominees from the Second or Third and so on.

FOLLOWING the primary the two top vote-getters from each district stand for election by all the voters of the city. The one receiving the most votes citywide is elected.

So what we have is a combination — nomination by district and election at large.

Proponents of a change advocate electing only by district. This would in effect do away with the at-large general city election for councilmen.

The argument is that this would make councilmen more responsible to their districts. It is possible, these critics point out, for a man to be nominated in first place in his district and still lose to the district's second-place nominee when the general election is held. This has happened.

The question that arises is this: Is a man (first or second nominee) who must stand for nomination in his district less responsive to that district because he also has to gain approval of the whole community? We think not.

There seems to be little doubt in anyone's mind that legally and in practice each councilman represents all of the city. In addition, however, each c o u n c i l m a n is looked to both by his constituents who nominated him and by his colleagues on the council as the prime representative of the district in which he lives. He is, in other words, a specialist on his own district.

Some of the p r o p o n e n t s of change — as well as others who like the present system — are concerned that v a r i o u s minorities have not n o m i n a t e d or elected members of their groups to the Council. District election would offer no guarantee that this situation would change.

WHAT DISTRICT election might do, however, is divide the city even farther, make it more difficult for minority views to be heard and effectively handled. If only one councilman is responsible to a minority area that leaves eight others who are not directly concerned. Now all nine are directly concerned.

Advocates of changing our city e l e c t i o n system are planning public meetings and have said they propose to circulate petitions to place a charter change issue on the ballot sometime next year.

The big question each individual must face when the petitioners come around is whether he wants to give up his present right to vote for all nine councilmen in return for the right to vote for only one.

Now Let's Overhaul Congress

MEMBERS OF CONGRESS are alert to provide the physical facilities and staff required by bigger government. In less than 10 years they have more than doubled their budget to almost $300 million.

The House now has three office buildings, the latest costing $134 million. Senators must get along with only two, but they have passed a bill to take over most of a block as the site for a third.

ONE REASON for the building expansion is that the lawmakers' staffs have grown rapidly, as have the employes' salaries. A representative's payroll may run above $100,000, and a Senator's several times that amount. And for themselves the lawmakers have adopted a plan under which the President has the responsibility for raising congressional salaries, without a vote.

But Congress has refused to apply to its rules, organization and procedures the same diligence lavished on patronage and perquisites. A reorganization bill passed by the Senate 18 months ago by a 79-5 vote is stalled in the House and expected to die with the 90th Congress.

Capitol reporters say the main reason is hostility in the House Rules Committee to sections curtailing the power of committee chairmen and removing congressional patronage in the appointment of postmasters.

THE BILL would improve efficiency by standardizing budget procedures in federal agencies and providing for computerized research programs to simplify complex questions brought before Congress.

So far, however, efficiency seems less important to House members than the privileges of office.

Shocked, Disgusted

EDITOR:

I am indeed shocked and disgusted over the articles written by David Shaw on Max Rafferty. I think that he is both prejudiced and not very intelligent. Consulting a divorced wife for an opinion about a former husband is an absurdity. Mr. Rafferty could not have reached the position he has if he had not had the qualifications. I think he is extremely wise and has the courage of his convictions. I have found that disgruntled people will often say detrimental things because they are jealous of another's success.

EDITOR:

I was a student at Big Bear High School when Dr. Rafferty became principal there and I find you over zealous in your remarks about him chastising officials at sporting events, (what ever this has to do with his qualifications for Senator).

Dr. Rafferty was a fine principal and gained the respect of students and teachers alike by letting them know where they stood with him at all times (A unique quality for a politician these days).

L.A. City Sales Tax Could Help L.B.

From Our L.A. Bureau

THERE ARE reports Long Beach may reap a bonanza from the fiscal follies of Los Angeles.

It will begin, according to the speculation, when the City of Los Angeles begins collection of a one-cent city sales tax Oct. 1.

That means purchasers will be paying six-cents-on-the-dollar in sales tax for goods purchased in Los Angeles, including the present five-cent state sales tax.

A "cut-rate" five cent sales tax rate will be available elsewhere in the county — a fact that hasn't escaped cost-conscious businessmen.

JAMES McCAULEY

ONE LOS ANGELES business operator, who doesn't wish to be identified for obvious reasons, was farsighted enough that he has arranged for all of his Southern California purchases to be invoiced from a Long Beach rather than a Los Angeles warehouse — a maneuver that ultimately will give him a 1 per cent price break.

He began the buy-Long Beach strategy before imposition of the tax so the pattern already would be established. The wholesale brokerage firm has counseled other big-customers to duck the Los Angeles tax in a like manner.

Any erosion of tradional Los Angeles sales to Long Beach would create a major economic problem for Los Angeles.

Not only would it generate less income than the new one-cent tax is geared to create, but it also would slash existing tax allocations from Sacramento.

UNDER STATE law, the Franchise Tax Board returns to the municipalities one cent of the five cents in state sales taxes collected within their respective jurisdictions. This Los Angeles source of revenue also would decline if buy-Long Beach becomes the trend in Los Angeles. For Long Beach, it would rise.

Why buy Long Beach? The impact of even only a one-cent city sales tax can be felt in the bank account. The purchaser of a $10,000 truck, for instance, would pay $100 more in Los Angeles. It is obvious he will try to buy the vehicle at a Long Beach outlet.

However, Long Beach city fathers shouldn't chortle. There's a proposition on the Nov. 5 ballot to impose a half-cent sales tax in Los Angeles County to finance a $2.5 billion rapid transit system.

If the half-cent county sales tax for transit passes, the tax-spawned bonanza in Long Beach may shift to Orange County or Riverside.

LOS ANGELES city officials wanted to clamp on that city sales tax as a permanent feature. But mercifully, the 1968 legislature limited the legality of it to six months.

Downtown Los Angeles really must be counting its blessings these days: smog, congestion and urban decay. As a further incentive, there's now the extra soak-the-shopper sales tax of one-cent-on-the-dollar. Little wonder the silky smogville set are pushing projects to force taxpayers to build more public buildings in downtown Los Angeles.

Dove Waters Does Image Job on HHH

UNDERSTATEMENT, in dress, is an often chic device the woman uses to press bold intention.

But that wasn't what Virginia Waters had in mind when she was invited last Tuesday to have her picture taken with Vice President Humphrey. Virginia is the Democratic nominee for Assembly in the East Long Beach-Signal Hill 39th District.

"I thought and thought about how I could state my case," she said. "So I wore my black suit with two white paper doves pinned to my shoulders, and carrying another dove on a branch."

And that's how she appeared at the Cocoanut Grove as she walked in to a breakfast meeting with Humphrey. And she carried a sign above her head which told who she was.

You may remember, Mrs. Waters — a blue-eyed blonde — crashed a black caucus at the recent Democratic State Convention in Sacramento protesting, "I'm black," when Negro Assemblyman Willie Brown asked her to leave.

Virginia had a letter for the Vice President. He put it in his pocket. For 10 years, the letter said, the Waters home has been a center of cultural and political acivity. Among guests entertained there have been Richard Nixon, Congressmen Craig Hosmer and Richard Hanna, composer Aaron Copeland, Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson and Dr. Benjamin Spock.

THE LETTER made a point of her belief in free speech from diverse parts of the spectrum, acknowledged Humphrey's concurrence in that regard, and then wrote:

"We doves have no place to go. We would love to flock to you. Go to Vietnam, go to Paris, but take with you some of the brilliant minds and some of the leaders representing the doves. You and President Johnson are, in my opinion, too close to the Pentagon to see your people.

"You won't lose any votes and you'll gain millions from Democrats (88 per cent voted McCarthy, Kennedy slates) if you come home from your consideration of the problem abroad and, raising your arms like St. Francis, announce a change in policy — and let us doves love you.

"With all sincerity from a loyal Democrat and mother of two sons approaching draft age."

ANOTHER RECENT campaign piece from candidate Waters: "At the risk of trying to appear interesting," she wrote, "I am opening the question of sex and how it relates to legislation."

Among things obscene to her — "the maiming and killing and bleeding" of battle; "the indoctrination of a child through open means or subtle to a belief that he is in any way inferior because of his circumstances or color; to portray the human animal in any way that exploits his evil incarnate."

It is not proved, she said, that pornography provokes crimes of any kind. Those emotionally involved over the issue, she adds, should make a thorough study and are likely to find that "with continuous exposure, pornography becomes just plain boring."

On prostitution, Mrs. Waters deplores the "wastes" attaching to all principles — to t h e "skinny-legged teeny bopper with her tell-tale purse . . . Give her a course in typing and some group therapy to build up her self-image "and she couldn't get off the street fast enough."

Mrs. Waters' discussion ends in a recommendation for sex education in the schools.

She advocates getting the police officer back on the beat with training in "street corner sociology . . . upgrade our officers to the professional status they deserve."

There are some familiar landmarks in the Waters campaign, but not many. Paper doves on the shoulders??

Hubert Pushes Nixon on Race

Register and Tribune Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Vice President Humphrey's carefully thought out campaign strategy would place former Vice President Nixon under pressure on the race issue.

If the strategy works, Nixon would lose either way as he woos those who are attracted to George C. Wallace, or as he does not.

This is a clever approach, and it may work, but as Humphrey undertakes it he virtually apologizes to Nixon by quickly asserting that the former vice president is "no racist" but a "fair and just man." A fair and just man who is "joining forces with the most reactionary elements in American society" to compete with Wallace for the votes of the fearful and apprehensive.

THE POLITICAL strategy of this attack is based on an assumption that Nixon cannot win big northern states necessary for his election without getting some of the white backlash vote along with most of the regular and moderate Republican vote. Nor, the assumption continues, can Nixon win southern states without wooing away Wallace support.

Therefore, it is concluded, there is a basic conflict in Nixon's political posture. As he competes for the

RICHARD WILSON

Wallace votes he loses the margin he needs among moderate Republicans. As he fails to compete for the Wallace vote he loses states in the South which a Republican candidate could be expected to win this year.

Consequently, in a three-way split of the vote, Humphrey can emerge with an electoral majority.

Humphrey concedes that he is running "short run political dangers" in defining the issues this way. These dangers could prove more long than short.

IN THE FIRST PLACE, it is readily recognizable that Humphrey places little less emphasis on law and order than Nixon. Humphrey is talking about passing some kind of federal law to control Negro militant "guerilla bands" — a law, apparently, which would inject the federal authority into every Negro city ghetto on a full-time basis.

So, while he talks about "human rights" in one breath, in the next he is talking about stern law and order measures to quiet "the fears and tensions that grip significant portions of our people."

This double position may seem all too clever to moderate or left-wing northerners still burning over Humphrey's endorsement of M a y o r Daley's police action. More importantly, it might not seem clever at all to that fateful margin of northern Democratic "blue collar" labor which could deny Humphrey the plurality he needs in northern states in a three-way race.

And, finally Humphrey defends the immediate past and promises four more years of the same measures and same attitudes which have as yet promised no solution of an excruciating internal problem.

STILL, IT IS a calculated risk. The attack Humphrey makes on Nixon may revive the distaste and apprehension of Republicans who saw in Nixon's choice of his running mate, Spiro T. Agnew, a fatal concession to the attitudes of southern leaders like Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and John Tower of Texas.

However clever the Humphrey strategy, in the end, there is one point about it that is clear. Former Vice President Nixon cannot safely ignore it. He cannot follow in the path of Thomas E. Dewey by assuming that the public was not listening to Harry S. Truman. Nixon cannot safely fritter away his greatest asset, the desire for a change from the Johnson-Humphrey administration, by failure to deal directly and promptly with what many people consider to be valid issues.

L. A. C. SAYS

Are You Prepared for a Fire?

By L. A. COLLINS Sr.

RECENTLY WE saw a lovely home almost completely destroyed by fire. The occupants had recently moved into their home — brought with them many treasured pieces of art and family treasures. All were destroyed by the flames which quickly engulfed the structure. It was a terrifying sight for the many people who witnessed disaster. It caused me to wonder if it was all covered by insurance in a way that would protect the family from a great loss.

It raised the question of what people do to protect themselves from such disasters. The best protection is to have a licensed, capable insurance agent — representing a good company — looking after the insurance. Such an agent should have advised the family of the many pitfalls that occur when such damage is suffered. Were all the many dishes and art treasures properly listed in an inventory attached to the policy? In far too many cases this is not done. In that event settlement can be a serious problem.

ONE LOCAL business man told us of how his firm had just paid over $700 just to have a complete inventory taken to show every possible item that was to be insured. This should not be necessary for the average home owner. But it may be if there are very costly items involved such an inventory is essential to proper protection. The home owner can do this himself in most cases. But it is tragic that so many do not do so. Many insurance agencies provide forms for such inventories.

The next question is where do you keep your insurance policies, inventory, stocks, jewels and other important papers. If they are in a drawer in the house they will probably be destroyed. Of course the best place to keep them is in a safe deposit box. Copies can be kept in the home. But another copy should be available away from the house.

If you are keeping stocks or bonds or other securities in the home the serial numbers of the certificates should be kept with the inventory of what you expect to replace in event of their destruction. A very large percentage of the people have not taken these precautions. It takes only a short time to make out the inventory and arrange for its safekeeping. They never realize the importance of doing so until they suffer a serious fire loss or see it happen to a neighbor.

While the above applies to fire insurance — it also applies in other forms of insurance. You have your car insured against loss by fire. But if you are accustomed to carry personal items in the car you may not be covered for loss of them. It may be a camera or some other expensive piece of equipment. In such a case you should be sure you have given this information to your insurance agent who will include it in the policy. But if you do not have an inventory and statement on the policy you may find yourself experiencing an unnecessary loss.

MANY PEOPLE do not know the exact coverage they have in their medical insurance policy. They have never read the policy carefully. In far too many cases they never heard of the company carrying the insurance. The result is in some cases they find they are not covered for some illness and accidents that occur.

The responsibility for proper coverage is first that of the agent who carries your insurance. If he is a qualified agent with a properly licensed company in this state he will properly inform the client on all aspects of the coverage. It may be additional coverage may be desired. In either case the policy holder would be wise to carefully read the policy. The greatest protection policy holders can have is to deal with an agent they know and a company with a long record of adequate protection.

Inflation or Unemployment Only Choice?

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The new administration, color it Nixon, color it Humphrey, is beginning in despair. Both not only are telling us that nothing much can be done about Vietnam, but they are also suggesting that nothing much can be done about the Phillips curve.

The Phillips curve was named after Professor A. W. Phillips of the London School of Economics. He studied data for Great Britain over the past century and concluded that, in the short-run at least, a lower rate of price inflation means a higher rate of unemployment and vice versa. His curve graphically expresses this conclusion.

Humphrey in his campaign last week established a theme. Under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, he said, prices had gone up, but jobs and real incomes — incomes, that is, adjusted for price increases — had gone up too. The average family's 1968 real income, he said, was sufficiently higher than that in 1960 to buy an automobile or a year of college education.

UNLESS the Phillips cruve can be altered, the nation is faced with a Hobson's choice; a higher rate of inflation than is acceptable to hold down unemployment, or an intolerable level of unemployment to limit inflation.

Under President Eisenhower, Humphrey added, prices had gone up as much as under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson but there had been little real growth. The information probably came from Walter W. Heller, a Humphrey adviser and former chairman of the Kennedy Council of Economic Advisers.

A different reading of the same data is given by Paul A. Samuelson, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology economist, also closely identified with the Kennedy administration. The Eisenhower administration, he said last year, was deeply troubled by the tendency of prices to creep upward even when business was slack.

SO IT WAS understandable, Professor Samuelson said, when the Federal Reserve and the Eisenhower administration moved toward austerity. He termed their persistence in this effort an "investment in sadism" from which the Kennedy-Johnson administration benefitted. He commented that " . . . President Kennedy's predecessor made him look good. I think this was true because of Eisenhower's inactivism and errors of omission. But he also created conditions which were helpful to the long expansion which we have had in the 1960s."

Dr. Arthur F. Burns, an Eisenhower economic aide, agreed with Professor Samuelson that the Kennedy and early Johnson years were ones of active experimentation and accomplishment. But he phrased a question many must have asked themselves:

"Why did the nation's policymakers, who for years had succeeded so well in monitoring a business expansion under difficult conditions, finally unleash the forces of inflation? Why did men who showed the ability to profit from experience succumb to one of the oldest weaknesses of governmental practice?"

DR. BURNS' thoughts on the subject suggested that the "new economists" were growth-oriented rather than cycle-oriented, and that the paucity of meaningful statistics, such as those on job vacancies, contributed to their downfall.

Historical judgment, however, is less important than another question: Can inflation be subdued without another "investment in sadism"?

One answer is that nobody knows. Professor Samuelson notes that there just isn't enough information to say whether inflation can be cooled without excessive cooling of the economy.

Professor Samuelson thinks it might be. The wage-price guideposts, he suggests, might have worked if they had been given a better chance.

Dr. Burns offers nothing specifically on the point. He calls for fewer changes in the economic state-setting, less fine-tuning, fewer reversals of tax policy. Dr. Burns is one of Nixon's advisers.

THE MATTER, of course, may already have been decided. Many forecasters believe that the turnabout in government tax and spending policy — from a $25 billion deficit in the year ended June 30 to a $5 billion or smaller one this fiscal year — plus a tighter credit policy this year than last will mean a recession early in 1969.

Professor Samuelson says that conceivably the Phillips curve could be altered — that is, the rate of inflation could be lowered permanently without increasing employment — by more vigorous enforcement of the antitrust laws, by getting rid of the minimum wage, by encouraging flexibility and structural changes in the economy, and by stepping up the training of the labor force.

But an administration committed to keeping the boat from rocking seems unlikely to achieve much in this direction. And this above all seems the committment of both Nixon and Humphrey.

Johnson Said to Think Nixon Is Going to Win

DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has told intimates that he now expects to be succeeded by Richard Nixon. More than a few dismayed Democrats believe that LBJ is helping to install the Republican candidate in the White House.

Every time Hubert Humphrey tries to extend an olive branch to the peace dissidents, the President adorns it with thorns. Humphrey simply has been unable to soften his stand on Vietnam without being undercut in public by the President.

PRIVATELY, LBJ has assured intimates that he will do all he can to elect Humphrey. The President insists that he has no use for Nixon, who once labeled the late Speaker Sam Rayburn as pro-communist, Rayburn was LBJ's closest friend and political mentor.

Yet the President bristles more over Humphrey's campaign statements than Nixon's. The reason for Johnson's supersensitivity toward Humphrey, insiders believe, is two fold:

1. LBJ can't quite reconcile himself to playing second fiddle to his Vice President; and

2. The President is more concerned about his own place in history than he is interested in electing Humphrey.

To make sure the LBJ version of history is written, government departments have been ordered to produce exhaustive material for a history of the Johnson administration. The project is directed by White House aide Joseph Califano.

Lyndon Johnson's view of history can be surmised from an earlier publication "The Living White House," which was produced under his auspices. This was supposed to be a souvenir booklet giving the history of the people who had lived in the White House.

If the reader flips through the pages of the booklet too fast, he may get the impression that LBJ succeeded George Washington and was reelected at frequent intervals thereafter. There are 63 pictures of LBJ and his family in the brochure. The Father of Our Country rates only two photos, and Abraham Lincoln is shown six times.

THE NATIONAL Geographic Society gets credit for supervising production of the booklet as a public service. For its contribution to LBJ lore, the society has not gone wholly unrewarded. Its photographers have been given the run of the White House, and pictures of interior from attic to basement have appeared profusely in the National Geographic Magazine.

The society was even granted exclusive rights to photograph Luci Johnson Nugent's wedding and reception. And in return for an exclusive article from Lynda Johnson Robb, the society donated some shade trees to help beautify Johnson City, Tex.

Ostensibly, "The Living White House" was published by the White House Historical Association which, in fact, provides anything from instant history to personal portraiture at the President's whim.

It masquerades as a private, nonprofit outfit though its directors are all public officials. They are an august group recruited from the National Park Service, the Fine Arts Commission, the Smithsonian Institution, and the National Gallery of Art.

The association operates under a statute that applies only to bona fide private organizations, but it has no real members, no membership meetings, and renders no accounting to anyone but itself. It raises and dispenses funds amounting to millions, without the usual government auditing. Most of its money comes from the sale of its publications through government agencies.

Shock of Fear Runs Through Europe

RALPH McGILL

WASHINGTON NOTES — In no other city in America is it possible to feel the seismograph-like shock of the Soviet-Czech problem as it is here in the national capital.

Fear runs through all Europe. It is an old fear. The rhetoric expressing this fear runs all the way from somber and melancholy alarm to the more dramatic statement by a French journalist that "The mice are nibbling again in the cellar of destiny." For most Americans the heavy hand of Soviet intervention in Czechoslovakian affairs was a much lesser shock. Some, indeed, assumed the usual attitude of saying this was something happening far away between two Communist countries and it did not matter to us. Others experienced a sense of outrage that the liberal and more democratic processes in Czechoslovakia had been so abruptly and harshly halted.

But here in Washington one learns how deep was the shock of fear that shook all Europe.

THERE IS a certain irony in the sudden demands from Europe that NATO be strengthened and that there be no further reduction in the American troop presence in Europe. It was really only a few days ago, as time measures, that these same voices in Europe were saying NATO was an anachronism, that it no longer fitted today's reality. And now that fear has shaken Europe, and that for many there is an increasing fear, the voices grow almost shrill.

In Great Britain, for example, much of the press is literally strident in its condemnation of the Soviets, in its demands for a reaffirming of NATO principles and, curiously, in condemnation of the United States for not going to the aid of the embattled Czechs. British stridency, of course, reflects that nation's own internal fears and concerns. Britain is deeply involved in support of the Nigerian federal government against the Biafrans. This pricks the British conscience. The Russians also are assisting the government in Lagos. This further complicates the British attitude.

Great Britain has twinges of conscience about her own racial restrictions. She is further frustrated and embarrassed by the defiant independence of Rhodesia, which reveals a contempt for the crown in London and proceeds toward establishing an apartheid state, partner of South Africa.

All of this adds to the shrillness of the British press, which is discovering a lack of morality in American failure to aid the Czechs.

In Paris there also is fear, but General de Gaulle, with a renewal of his own arrogance, privately and publicly is reminding the French people that, after all, he was right in disassociating himself from NATO and building his own "force de frappe" in the nuclear bomb. Here in Washington French channels say that because of Czechoslovakia, there will be no student riots in Paris or France this autumn. There may be a small gesture toward violence, but it will not be serious. The Czech crisis has stunned the radical left in France.

WEST GERMANY also is fearful. It was, indeed, the old Stalinist, Walter Ulbricht, of East Germany, who is credited with precipitating Soviet intervention in Prague. He informed Moscow that a virus of individual freedom was about to infect his own tightly held Communist area of Germany.

Despite all these factors of fear, it will be folly if the United States does not pursue earnestly a search for a detente with Russia, which hopefully can lead to speeding Vietnam negotiations in Paris. There is fear in the world. There is danger. But it is necessary to remind ourselves, and for everyone else to comprehend that there are now but three world powers, two great navies — and the third up-coming power, China, already possesses a nuclear weapon.

It is an uneasy time in man's life. It may grow worse. It could ease.

Cerritos Joins Crusade Drive

Latest addition to the Long Beach Area United Crusade is the City of Cerritos, which will join hands with five adjacent communities in the annual campaign beginning Sept. 25.

Bud Holton, chairman of the Crusade, announced Saturday the selection of chairman and vice chairmen for the Cerritos campaign. Don Kruse is chairman with Mayor Frank Leal and Mrs. Maryls Azevedo as vice chairmen, Holton said.

The 1968 campaign will again be a joint venture of United Way agencies and the Red Cross in support of 33 area health, welfare and youth service agencies.

Holton had previously named chairmen for the campaign in Bellflower, Long Beach, Signal Hill, Lakewood and Paramount.

Also named Saturday were five Long Beach area advisor who include:

Newton L. McLaughlin, for commerce and industry.

Harvey Freeman, for business.

Paul McClaughry, for professionals.

Mrs. David A. Gean, for residential division.

Barney Walczak, for public employes.

The McDonnell Douglas Corp. will remain as a corporate sponsor, Holton and Nichol advised.

The goal of the 1968 drive in the five-city Long Beach Area is expected to be about $1.7 million.

NAMED DIRECTOR

William H. Spurgeon III, who was Irvine Co. vice president for 16 years, was named director of development for Children's Hospital of Orange County and the Children's Hospital Foundation. Spurgeon, 52, is grandson of the founder of Santa Ana.

Land of the Free on Griddle Again

The Orange County Board of Education will take its third look at the controversial history text, Land of the Free, at a meeting Sept. 26 at 1 p.m. at the schools office at Santa Ana.

It will act in response to mounting demands that the eighth-grade text be reexamined and possibly revised as to content — or relegated to the role of "supplementary" textbook.

Mrs. Jane Malott of Garden Grove, chairman of an organization known as Land of the Free Protestors, said it has 2,500 signatures on petitions pleading for county Board of Education action.

Whatever statement the county Board of Education would make about the textbook would be merely advisory, since it has been approved for use by the State Curriculum Commission and went into the classrooms last fall after it was revised to meet objections that it was biased.

The charges of bias and "slanting" of material were filed with the county board by J. Ray Risser, a trustee of the Pasadena Junior College District, a retired social science teacher. He said "it contains no adjective of praise for the United States."

Earlier, the county board had heard objections from State Senator John G. Schmitz, R-Santa Ana, a history teacher at Santa Ana College.

The board first examined Land of the Free when a dispute arose two years ago over its approval for classroom use — and before it was put into hands of eighth-graders. Subsequently the county board explained that the textbook had to be usetd because the state ordered it used.

Dr. Robert D. Peterson, county superintendent of schools, said that the book still is "objectionable" but its use is required.

Take Power Mower

L.F. Rose, of 2900 Easy Ave., told Long Beach police Saturday burglars broke into his garage and removed a power mower valued at $175.

Deserter Arrives in U.S. for Trial

Edwin Carl Arnett, 30, of 40½, W. Walnut St., Santa Ana, an Army deserter who fled Vietnam through Tokyo, Moscow and Stockholm, arrived in New York Saturday night and was taken into custody by military police, it was learned here today.

Spec. 4 Arnett, who was jailed at the Ft. Dix, N.J., post stockade pending court martial, said he will oppose the Vietnam war in any way he can.

"My view hasn't changed on Vietnam," Arnett said after stepping off a plane from Sweden at New York's Kennedy Airport.

"I will still fight in any way I can to end that ungodly war," he said.

Arnett, who was attached to a Marine maintenance unit at Cam Ranh Bay, deserted while on rest and relaxation leave in Japan last spring.

From there he went to Moscow with the help of a Japanese antiwar organization.

A free-lance photographer in civilian life, the slight and balding Arnett was granted asylum in Sweden June 22, but said he couldn't find work there and couldn't live on a $10 weekly allowance Swedish welfare officials gave the 100 or so American deserters from Vietnam living in that country.

Arnett took a commercial flight from Stockholm to New York, arranged with the help of the U.S. Embassy in Stockholm.

He maintained that he was not coerced into returning home and said at least 25 other GIs living in Stockholm would like to return to the United States, "but they don't know what sentence they'll get."

Arnett said if he gets a light sentence, others might be encouraged to return.

When the soldier announced his intention to return in Stockholm last week, he said "I figure I could get six months, but it could be two years because I made statements for the Russian press in Moscow."

Arnett also said the Swedes and American Deserters Committee are losing interest in the deserters and seem unwilling to do more than get them the $10 a week.

Shotgun Blast Hits Rightist

A 31-year-old Long Beach man who told police he is the founder and leader of a rightist group was peppered by a double-barreled shotgun blast from a passing vehicle while driving his car on Pacific Coast Highway near California Avenue in the pre-dawn hours Saturday.

The wounded man, Lloyd Edwin Pullen, told police the shooting was "a racial problem" and said he has had words with black militant leaders in Long Beach. He said he heads a group called the Home Defense Organ.

Long Beach police said Pullen received 11 pellet wounds in the left arm, one in the left ear and five in the left hand. He was treated in Community Hospital and released.

Officers called at 3:30 a.m. Saturday said the driver's door panel of the car was splattered by 62 pellets, that the windwing was shattered and there were pellet indentations on the steering wheel.

Remind Bosses of Benefits of Hiring Worker Over 40

Employers looking for workers who are reliable, less inclined to take time off the job, have steady work habits and regard work with the seriousness it often demands, could do worse than hiret the man or woman over 40, says Mrs. June Roper.

Mrs. Roper is head of the Long Beach office of the State Department of Employment; and, as such, she manages a year-round job-placement operation for older workers, among others.

But starting Monday is "Hire the 40-Plus Worker" Week, and Mrs. Roper and others in the Department of Employment are anxious to acquaint employers with what they regard as the proven assets of middle-aged and older persons.

Foremost among those assets is "the stability that comes with maturity," she says. In fact, "many workers over 40 have output rates higher than the average for all workers."

She urges employers who have job vacancies — or who expect to have them in the near future — to contact the employment office at 1350 Locust Ave.

"Workers will be referred on their ability to do the job," she says.

In the first six months of this year, Mrs. Roper reports, 1,969 job applicants over 45 were placed by the Department of Employment here. The total for 1967 was 4,378.

Still, for every older worker who is placed, adds another employment official, there are four or five others — equally as anxious to work — still waiting in the wings.

Form Irvine Community Chorus

A community chorus will be formed by the University of California Irvine, and auditions will be from 7 to 10 p.m. Sept. 22 and 23 at the music room of Corona del Mar High School.

Maurice Allard of Newport Beach, assistant professor of music at UCI, is to direct the group to be called Irvine Community Chorus.

He said the first concert for the Irvine Community Chorus will be in January, 1969, with presentation of Mendelson's Elijah.

—Students not already enrolled should report to their school's office at least 30 minutes prior to first bell to sign up and be given classroom assignments.

If there's any question which school Johnny or Jane should attend, the nearest public school will provide appropriate answers.

—State law requires polio immunizations for all California public school students; filled-out immunization forms must be on file before registration is complete.

—Verified birth dates moste be provideld by parents enrolling boys and girls in kindergarten, or in first-grade for the first time locally. Minimum age for kindergartners is 4 years, 9 months on or before Sept. 1. First-graders must have been at least 5 years-9 months by Sept. 1.

"What should my child take to school with him the first day?" is a question often vniced by parents.

The answer, school officials say, generally is nothing beyond a pencil and a bit of paper on which to jot notes. Because teachers may require specific types of notebooks or other gear, parents may find their child is overstocked with the wrong materials if much of it is bought before Monday.

Youngsters attending the brand-new Elizabeth Hudson Elementary School, 2335 Webster Ave., in West Long Beach, do have a very special requirement Monday and throughout the fall semester, however.

Sack lunches will be needed since the school's cafeteria will not open before early next year. However, milk will be available.

Elsewhere across the district, cafeterias will serve hot lunches Monday. And prices remain the same this year as last: 35 cents for a hot lunch and 5-cent milk.

A special center for handicapped children is to open at Burcham Elementary, 5610 Monlaco Road. Children suffering with combinations of cerebral palsy, deafness, blindness, mental retardation or various birth defects will receive individualized help in the center.

—On the high school scene:

A new training program in health occupations will be offered at Jordan and Poly. Sixty girls in each school will begin nursehome health aide classes.

Trade-technical classes for teen-age boys from all local high schools again will be offered at City College's business and technology campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. Among the fields taught: diesel and auto mechanics, auto body repair, beginning aviation, service station management.

Last year's successful Saturday classes in light and heavy metal work will be continued—after the first week of school—by Poly.

And across the district new emphasis will be focused on potential dropouts and their problems.

inette Guss and Ernestine Johnson lauded.

A TALENT show, guest speaker and refreshments —punch provided free by MacDonald's Hamburgers —rounded out the vening.

There is a craft room, a darkroom, facilities for converting the main hall into two smaller halls, a large kitchen and offstage accommodations in the new Martin Luther King Park.

When it is dedicated, most of the play gear will be on view and landscaping will be accomplished. Future plans include the closing of Cerritos Avenue between 19th and Rhea Streets to allow for conversion of another block into a ballfield and a picnic area.

Even before that, Smith says, there'll be plenty of action at King Park. A Teen Club is to meet from 6 to 9 p.m. each evening and an elementary school group is due to meet from 4 to 7:30 p.m., one afternuon each week. The park will open at 2:30 p.m. each school day and remain open on weekends.

KNOW YOUR NAVY

WAVES Mean More Than Condition of the Water

WAVES mean more than rough water . . .

The Navy is proud of its women in uniform — the WAVES. Just what does the name mean?

WAVES is the officially recognized title for "Women Accepted for Voluntary Emergency Service."

This group was established by Congress on July 31, 1942, and recruiting ended in 1945 with a peak enrollment of 86,000. The force was greatly reduced after the end of the war and after passage of the Women's Armed Services Integration Act in 1948 women were taken both commissioned and enlisted in the regular Navy.

The organization was commanded until 1946 by Mildred H. McAfee, president of Wellesley College on leave.

She was the first WAVE commissioned and the first promoted to captain.

Russians Tighten Screws on Czechs

By DON HASTINGS

THE WORLD

Russia further tightened the screws on Czechoslovakia last week. Czech Premier Oldrich Cernik was called to Moscow for economic conferences and while there signed a trade agreement tying Czechoslovakia's economy to the Soviet Union and the Communist bloc for seven years. Cernik and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin also signed an agreement for the Russians to build a pipeline from the Soviet Union to Czechoslovakia to supply the small nation with natural gas.

Russian envoy Vasily Kuznetsov, in Prague for conferences with liberal Czech Communist Party leader Alexander Dubcek, warned the Czech regime to forget its reform plans and get in step with the Kremlin or face a virtual Soviet takeover.

The Russians made a gesture of easing the occupation of Czechoslovakia by pulling troops out of cities and stationing them in the countryside, but it was announced by Czech leaders that the recently inactive secret police would resume checking up on people and organizations.

Izvestia, the official Soviet government newspaper, said Wednesday the appeal for "freedom for all" in Czechoslovakia is anti-Communist. Izvestia declared that freedom as understood in the West cannot be allowed under communism and added, "Communists do not hide the fact that under their system nobody will ever have the right to express counterrevolutionary views."

ALL 95 PERSONS ABOARD an Air France jetliner flying from the island of Corsica to Nice perished when the craft fell in flames into the Mediterranean Sea Wednesday.

THE WAR

The fighting in Vietnam centered around Tay Ninh, 50 miles northwest of Saigon and 10 mlies south of the Cambodian border, this week. On Wednesday allied forces turned back a major enemy assault, but said the enemy had strong footholds in the suburbs of the city of 200,000. On Thursday, South Vietnamese and American aircraft attacked the city's fringes with rockets, machine guns, bombs and napalm. Several blocks of homes were in ruins after the fighting. Fighting also broke out near the Cambodian border and in the central highlands.

THE AMERICAN CASUALTY TOLL declined for the first time since mid-August. The U.S. Command in Saigon announced Thursday that 195 Americans were killed and 1,400 wounded in Vietnam war action during the week ended Sept. 7. The latest figures raised the American toll in the war since 1961 to 27,704 killed and 173,189 wounded.

South Vietnamese casualties announced last week were 375 killed and 1,081 wounded. The Allies estimated North Vietnamese and Viet Cong losses for the same period at 1,664 killed.

IN A FIST-POUNDING SPEECH to 8,000 American Legionnaires conventioning in New Orleans, President Johnson again declared that the United States will not stop bombing North Vietnam until the Red regime agrees to show reciprocal restraint.

THE NATION

Republican vice presidential candidate Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland made the biggest political headlines last week. On Tuesday, Agnew charged Vice President Hubert Humphrey was "soft on communism." On Thursday, he apologized and described the Democratic presidential nominee as a "loyal American" and a "man of great integrity."

Humphrey tried to patch up Democratic Party rifts as he campaigned in Houston, Denver, Southern California, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Michigan, New Jersey and Pittsburgh.

Republican standard bearer Richard M. Nixon was presented a solid display of GOP unity as preconvention New York foes Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, Sen. Jacob Javits and Mayor John Lindsay pledged their support.

THE BIGGEST MONEY BILL in history was approved by the House of Representatives, 334 to 7, and sent to the Senate Thursday. The measure calls for $72.2 billion in defense and military spending, about $5 billion less than requested by the Administration. More than one-third of the appropriations, an estimated $28.6 billion, are earmarked for operations in Southeast Asia.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE approved a compromise $1.9 billion foreign aid authorization bill, the smallest amount since the program began in 1946. The total approved was $1 billion less than President Johnson requested and further cuts are expected when the bill actually appropriating the funds comes before the lawmakers.

Tighten Controls on Secret Clubs

crucial assist toward college admission or the granting of a scholarship could be withheld for violators.

Another bone of contention in April swirled about sponsorship of legitimate off-campus clubs. It then was charged that adult groups serving as teen-age club sponsors failed to maintain proper records or even make certain adults were present at youth meetings.

The revised code again is specific:

"Students who belong to clubs or groups must belong only to school-sponsored organizations or those sponsored by adult (non-profit) organizations which are approved by the school and registered with the Youth Committee of the Long Beach Community Welfare Council."

Such joint approval is new this fall. Previously the schools were not involved in approving or disapproving and the welfare group functioned primarily as a registrar, keeping tabs on sponsors but passing no judgments on their suitability.

A new form has been drafted, going out this fall to every adult club desiring to work with teens. It politely but firmly asks, among other things: Aims and objectives of sponsored group; activities or programs planned; names and addresses of adult members who will be responsible for active sponsorship.

A new penalty is added for student disruptions, defined as anything which breaks the routine and daily schedule of the school or school-sponsored event . . . by encouraging non-compliance with existing school policy, regulation or administrative decision."

Those who break the code will find a "notation of their unsatisfactory conduct on their cumulative record," or high school transcript. It is this record colleges and prospective employers use in partly determining an applicant's fitness.

Off-campus behavior, too, is reevaluated in the new disciplinary code.

It changes an old rule that school boundaries extend to the middle of streets surrounding campuses, pulling them in to the center line of sidewalks about the institutions. And says:

"The schools cannot be held responsible for the welfare and safety of students on the way to and from school. However, the Education Code does require that 'the school must hold students to a strict account for their conduct on the way to and from."

"From the time students leave home for school in the morning until they return home in the afternoon it is expected their conduct and actions will be such as can be approved by school authorities."

The rules state that "any misconduct committed while enroute to and from school or while off-grounds during school hours that reflects upon the school or its students, shall be a violation and subject to disciplinary action."

Further, "loitering or cruising in the vicinity of any school during (regular) hours, disturbing the peace or infringing upon the property rights of neighborhood residents, fighting, smoking and use of alcohol, narcotics or dangerous drugs are specifically prohibited."

Immediate suspension is the penalty provided.

Off-campus narcotics users — "when verified by the attendance service" — also will be immediately suspended.

Some 40,000 copies of the complete codes are to be distributed Monday in junior and senior high schools. In addition, parents of the younger group will be asked to sign a slip indicating they have read the rules, and return it to school.

Black Panther to Talk at UCI

Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver was booked Friday to be a speaker on a "Racism in America" conclave at University of California Irvine on Sept. 26, as part of a student orientation week prior to opening of classes Sept. 30.

On the program with him will be Congressman James C. Corman, D-Van Nuys, of the President's Commission on Civil Disorders; Robert Scheer, senior editor of Ramparts magazine; and Fr. Blase Bonpane, who was expelled from Guatemala on charges that he plotted armed rebellion against the government.

Cleaver recently was named as a lecturer on a 10 week course on "Regeneration of the American Social Order" at UC Berkeley.

The conclave's discussion of racism in America will be followed by student group discussions that evening, according to UCI Dean of Students Robert Lawrence, who said that the Associated Students developed the program and will pay all expenses of participants.

The Sept. 26 conclave on racism is part of an "orientation week" designed to acquaint new students with UCI programs. It is titled "Relevance and Community."

It coincides with the beginning of registration Sept. 23, when Campus Park gatherings begin at 10 a.m.

Alan Watts, an author and philosopher known for his work in Zen Buddhism, is speaker that day.

Two films will be shown in Science Lecture Hall the evening of Sept. 24. One, "Sundays and Cybele," is a French-made movie dealing with a flier's involvement with a small girl. The other is "Alfie," the British-made account of casual amours.

A water polo game with Cerritos College at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 25 will be followed by a dance at Mesa Court. Another dance is scheduled at 8 p.m. Sept. 27.

Huntington Students Will Name New High School

Students of the four high schools in Huntington Beach may pick a name for the fifth high school, now under construction on Magnolia Street south of Atlanta Avenue.

The trustees of the Huntington Beach Union High School District chose to call it the Thomas A. Edison High School, but a suggestion to rename it for the assassinated Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was made.

Trustees, unable to resolve the issue themselves, decided to ask the high school students of the district to vote on a name.

Students were asked to select three names, then list them on a ballot with Edison and Kennedy. Trustees indicated they will accept the preference of the future students of the school.

FAMILY CEREMONY

Capt. C. Thomas Dean, USNR, swears his son, Tom, into the Navy. Young Dean will report to the Navy's officer candidate school at Newport, R. I., in October.

FATHER, SON

Navy, Education Vie in Dean House

It's a question whether the United States Navy or education come first in the Dean family.

Dr. C. Thomas Dean, dean of the school of applied arts and sciences at California State College, Long Beach, is also Capt. C. Thomas Dean, United States Naval Reserve.

His son Tom is an electronics instructor at Jordan High School — or was.

Recently the younger Dean was sworn into the Navy by his father and will report to the Navy's Officers Candidates School at Newport, R.I. in October.

Upon completion of four months of training he will be commissioned an ensign and assigned to the fleet as a line officer.

Upon completion of his active duty tour he plans to return to his first love, teaching. And he might possibly even teach in his father's school.

So whether its Dean Dean or Capt. Dean it looks like the younger Dean either way may be saluting his father for some time.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — File this under Friday the 13th.

A priest's station wagon was pressed into service as a hearse during a funeral service at St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

As the Requiem Mass ended, mortuary workers slowly rolled a man's casket out the doors of the church. They found they had no place to deposit the bier.

Someone had driven off during the service with the morturay's long, gray and black hearse. The vehicle was found abandoned about two hours later.

Sad Story Ends Happily as Nurse Marries Patient

CHICAGO (AP) — A nurse and her patient were married Saturday, happily ending a story that was marked with tragedy.

Jerry Prevatt, 23, a deputy sheriff of Baton Rouge, La., who came to Chicago a year ago to be fitted for artificial limbs after losing his arms and legs in an accident, and Carol Buls, 22, of Fond du Lac, Wis., exchanged vows at St. Gertrude's Roman Catholic Church in suburban Franklin Park.

* * * *

JERRY was treated at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago where Carol was a student nurse.

Later, Carol became a registered nurse and was graduated from Loyola University this spring.

Jerry now is able to drive a car, unlock prison cell doors and open mail in his job as a deputy in Baton Rouge.

* * * *

"WE WERE engaged eight months," Miss Puls said. "I'm not a super-romantic person. I think everyone needs help not only an amputee.

"I can help Jerry and he can help me," she said.

2 Cons Saw Way Out of Riverside Jail

RIVERSIDE (UPI)—Two prisoners escaped early Saturday from the third floor of the county jail by sawing a hole through the metal ceiling and then through four bars over an air conditioning vent on the roof, Sheriff's Capt. Sam Lowery said.

The escapees were identified as Dennis Allen Smith, 19, Rubidoux, accused of the murder of a service station attendant; and Lawrence Saffeels, 20, Riverside, charged with a safe burglary in the Corona area.

This is an umbrella bird which gets i ts name from an ability to raise and lower a silky black plume in much the same manner as an umbrella. From left at the Washington Zoo, the bird could be keeping a weather eye cocked on the horizon; then starting to ruffle up and finally spreading the hood just in case of a shower. The bird's natural habitat is Brazil.

Russ Face Crisis Worst Since Red Pact With Hitler

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press

Not for three decades has the Soviet Communist Party been openly opposed on an important issue by so many Communists around the world. It faces today its worst international crisis since Joseph Stalin signed a non-aggression pact with Adolf Hitler, opening the way to World War II.

In some respects, the divisions provoked by the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia can represent a much deeper crisis, since the Nazi-Soviet pact could be explained away as a desperate measure necessary to buy time for the threatened "motherland of socialism." The world of communism recovered eventually, but today some European Communists say the Czechoslovak events already have dealt a death blow to the "world" Communist movement.

There are now a variety of Communist movements, and the move of the Russians with their four Warsaw Pact allies into Czechoslovakia has spotlighted the divisions.

Milika Sundic, a well-known Yugoslav commentator, notes that Moscow, up to now, has used international Communist conferences to "place the Communist movement at the service of the great-power interests of the Soviet Union," Moscow showed in Czechoslovakia it would rather have rigid control over some countries than influence in many, he says, adding: "If the world Communist movement were used to this end, it would mean its death."

He seems convinced that the intention indeed is to use it for that end.

The Warsaw nations, he says, "already have consciously sacrificed the conference of Communist and workers' parties."

Sundic, a veteran of Moscow reporting, was referring to the Kremlin's projected international party meeting Nov. 25. Moscow has hinted it wants to go ahead with the meeting, but there are doubts it will.

THE ITALIAN COMMUNISTS, making the rounds of Europe and conferring with other parties, are telling them that things cannot go on ust as if Czechoslovakia never happened. The shock has been too great. The Italians also are saying that this is far from an opportune year for an international Communist meeting which, far from mending breaches, would be likely to splinter the movement even more.

Communist parties of the Warsaw Pact countries, according to indications from Poland, are in the position of begging parties in the West to support Moscow's call for a November conference. But the Western parties have been unable to sell their own members anything much on Czechoslovakia except that it was a crude and deliberate violation of international law negating all the declarations of principles Moscow had signed since 1957.

The original Kremlin plan in setting the meeting date, well in advance of the Czechoslovak events, was to reassert Soviet domination over the movement and administer at least a rebuke to the Communist Chinese. Now Moscow needs a meeting for the purpose of explaining itself to leaders of parties outside the Soviet orbit, who can demonstrate that their own futures have been badly damaged by Moscow's great-power politics.

Up to the beginning of September, Moscow in its own press could report support for the invasion from only 16 of the world's Communist parties outside the Red orbit.

Of those, virtually all were parties whose membership is tiny. Only two from West Europe voiced any approval —the parties of West Germany and Luxembourg, and the latter was grudging. The party organization in the United States approved the invasion as it has publicly approved everything else Moscow has done.

FIFTEEN EUROPEAN parties outiside the bloc and 10 from other continents disapproved the invasion, some of them in the most scorching terms.

These included the most influential and biggest Communist parties in the world, including the Italian, French, Japanese and Indian. Four Communist countries, for differing reasons, angrily disapproved. The were Romania, Yugoslavia, Albania and Red China.

If Moscow goes ahead with its plan for the November conference, it may find itself commanding the loyalty of tiny, ineffective parties in the Western Hemisphere, Africa and Middle East, while losing control of those in Europe and Asia. European Communist leaders are far from eager to see this come to pass, and would greatly prefer that Moscow forget the November meeting.

Those European Communist leaders who are among the angriest are discussing the advisability of a separate European conference of parties. This could come up with a common front to deal with such matters as Czechoslovakia.

Luigi Longo, the Italian leader, and Waldeck Rochet, the French party chief, met and found substantial agreement between them on Czechoslovakia. Longo denounced it as "unjustified and irreconcilable with the principles of the autonomy and independence of every Communist party and Socialist state."

To Italian onlookers, what is happening justifies the prediction of the late Palmiro Togliatti. As Italian party chief he depicted Moscow's policies as forcing the Communist movement into "ploycentrism," with several seats of authority, rather than just one in the Kremlin. That process seems to be speeding up.

Red Giant Eye to Eye With West

LONDON (UPI) — Russia plans to station up to a quarter of a million troops permanently in Czechoslovakia near the West German border, defense sources said Saturday.

Some reports circulating among informed military circles here said the Soviets would station between 10 to 15 divisions, plus armor and logistics, face to face with the West's defense line in Central Europe.

The informed sources said the issue of the permanent Soviet military bases played an important part in current discussions in Prague on the partial withdrawal of Soviet occupation troops.

BECAUSE OF the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and establishment of permanent bases near the West German border, the foreign and defense ministers of NATO were expected to hold a major emergency conference in late October or early November, diplomatic sources said.

It is a matter of controversy whether the Soviet push into Central Europe did strengthen Russia's military posture.

Having encountered the hostility of the Czechoslovak people and army, Soviet troops are operating in unfriendly surroundings.

The director of the authoritative Institute for Strategic Studies, Alastair Buchan, holds that the Soviet forces have been shifted, but not increased.

Sinclair Forsook Family Tradition to Be Writer

Upton Sinclair is one of the grand old men of America letters. A Pulitzer Prize winner, he is the author of such classics as "the Jungle," "Oil, "The Money Changers" and "Wide is the Gate." He will be 90 years old on Friday, Sept. 20.

By UPTON SINCLAIR

MONROVIA, Calif. — (NANA) — I was born in Baltimore, to a Virginia family made poor by the Civil War. It was a Naval family, and it took for granted that I would follow in the footsteps of my forefathers. My greatgrandfather had been an admiral and had commanded a small squadron in the Battle of Lake Huron in the War of 1812. My grandfather had commanded a vessel in the fleet which opened up Japan to the modern world. He joined the Confederate Navy and gave his life for that cause. I had had seven uncles and cousins in that service; one was a lieutenant on the "Alabama" when she was sunk, and another was an ensign who, when his ship went down, gave his nar to a wounded comrade and himself drowned.

I heard all these stories from earliest childhood, and was interested in them, but somehow more as stories than as Navy. What I wanted was more stories, and all sorts. I taught myself to read from a set of alphabet blocks; and from that time on when birthday and Christmas came I told my many relatives that I wanted books. "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates," "Gulliver's Travels," "The Swiss Family Robinson,"—if you don't know these charming stories, look them up in the public library.

There was a weekly magazine called "Harper's Young People" which was given to me as a gift one Christmas. It published puzzles which I enjoyed trying to solve. They even inspired me to write a story entitled "the Story of a Pin." The pin got into the "gobbage" "—that was how I spelled it, to the amusement of my mother and an aunt. The "gobbage" was eaten by a pig, and so the pin got into a sausage, and I forgot what came of that. I also forgot what happened to the story. To my great pride and delight, I had several of my puzzles published some years later.

So you see how it was that I became a writer. When I reached the proper age, I was offered an opportunity to enter the Annapolis Naval Academy, through the influence of a naval friend of my long-dead grandfather; but by that time I was a student at the City College of New York. I was only fifteen, and the college would be called a high school today. I was living on about five dollars a week, and I had made the astounding discovery that I could earn a good part of that by writing jokes. In those days the evening papers had a department of humor and I learned that they would pay a dollar per joke. One weekly magazine would go as high as two dollars

I studied what the editors thought was funny, and I learned that there are various groups of persons who were jokable, and that they had definite oddities that were standardized.

MANY OF the jokes were illustrated; and I had the bright idea to go to the editors and ask for the addresses of the artists. They were amused to have an eager lad come in with a string of jokes to be read, and they would choose one or two and pay a little more for them—after they had been published, of course.

From jokes to short stories was a short step, and soon I had a long novel. I took it to a publisher of "half-dime novels." "The Prairie Pirates" was the title, and I was still wearing short pants when I presented myself to the editor. He did not accept my novel, but kept me in mind, and so it came about that when I was graduating from college, at the age of seventeen, he sent for me and told me that the firm was planning a series of stories on life at West Point, to appear every other week, and would I like to try for the job? Needless to say, I said "Yes!"

My clergyman friend gave me a letter of introduction to the superintendent of the academy, and he introduced me to the head of the senior class, who promptly volunteered to be the hero of my stories. After a week or two of looking and asking questions, I went back to my lodging-house room and set to work. From then on I was writing a 17,000-word story every other week.

In Chicago, meanwhile, the workers at a group of enormous meat-packing plants went on strike against atrocious conditions. Their strike was crushed with great brutality, and I was asked to write a novel about this little-known part of the country. I dropped everything else and went out there, and stayed for several weeks, living in the "yards" and talking with every sort of person I could meet.

I came home, sick with horror. I related this horror in my novel "The Jungle," and I wrote it, often blinded by my own tears. It took a year to complete — it was a long novel. Then I tried a publisher, a great one, and was asked to cut out some of the horror. I tried five publishers, until I borrowed money and began to publish the book myself. But then another publisher came forward, made an investigation, and decided to take the risk. The book appeared, and a storm of excitement broke. I had sent a copy to President Theodore Roosevelt, and he told me to come to Washington.

I COULD make a long story out of it, and have done so in a book, "American Outpost." "Teddy" poured out his heart to me. He knew those packers, he said. He had had to eat their canned meat in Cuba. He promosed me a fair deal and kept his promise. He sent out a commission to investigate, and they made a report sustaining my charges. What is more, he allowed them to tell me all, and under no pledge of secrecy. The result was an uproar, so great that Congress was forced to pass laws reforming the industry. So my "most Inspiring Moment" has lasted now for sixty-two years

Pilot Found Alive at Crash Site

CHICO (AP) — A missing pilot was reported found alive Saturday near the wreckage of his plane on a mountain side in Shasta County.

The Civil Air Patrol here said a ground party had reached the area at the 7,000 foot level, 700 feet below the top of Mt. Burney. The rescuers radioed only that the pilot, Charles Walrath of Grangeville, Idaho, was alive.

There was no immediate word on his condition. A helicopter was dispatched to bring him down from the rough terrain.

Walrath, a U.S. Forest Service engineer, had refueled at Burns, Ore., late Friday on a flight from Orangeville to Chico, where his wife is visiting.

A forest lookout spotted a shining object Saturday afternoon and notified the Civil Air Patrol.

CAP Capt. Joe Murray of Chicago identified it from numbers as the missing craft.

Murray said the Cessna 172 broke in half and part of it flipped over.

Family of 5, Friend Die in Auto Wreck

MEADVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Six persons were killed, including a mother and her four young daughters, when the car in which they were riding veered out of control and slammed into a tree.

Killed were Nina Lee Fisher, 28, of Espyville, her daughters Deborah Sue, 11; Donna Gail, 9; Diane Lois, 7; and Doretha Ann, 5; and Jacquelina Quillen, 25, the driver of the car.

A Disaster Island

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson has declared Hawaii a major disaster area and allocated $3,000,000 to the state for emergency repairs on the flood-ravaged island of Maui.

COMPOSED FOR FLOWER CHILDREN

Anti-Loitering Law Bustin' Out All Over

By BILL HOMER
Staff Writer

"Home, home on the sidewalk/Where the dears and the flower kids play/Where A discouraging word/'Cause we sleep on the cement all day . . ."

Couple the foregoing "distortaphrasing" of that old, Western ditty, "Home, Home on the Range," with a yet-to-be written, demonstrative rendition of "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue", and you get the title of a new, government-authored song entitled "Anti-loitering law."

And Southland cities and counties have been authoring "songs" just like that recently.

Faced with citizens' complaints of sidewalks crowded by both vertical and horizontal hippies, flower children, political demonstrators and just plain, old congregators, Los Angeles County supervisors have passed a new anti-loitering ordinance entitled Emergency Ordinance Number 9648.

THE CITY of Los Angeles has a similar law in the works and Orange County beach towns have been conducting a summer-long experiment in such ordinances.

Newport Beach, long a sea-shore brightspot for surfers and other beach lovers, has a court-tested ordinance against sleeping in cars and Laguna Beach, which has the dubious distinction of being Orange County's hippie and drug capital, has a stringent anti-loitering law.

Aside from the possibility that many taxpayers and local government officials may not like sandal-shod, drug-using, bell-carrying, long-haired, unshaven and unwashed hip folk, the question of loitering seems to come down to this:

Are the Southland's streets and sidewalks going to be used for the transportation of vehicles and pedestrians, or are they to become asphalt and concrete-covered, outdoor parks for those who would congregate, demonstrate or "luxuriate?"

Los Angeles County supervisors say sidewalks and roadways are going to be used for the benefit of foot and wheel-based traffic.

And the American Civil Liberties Union is suing.

DON CRONK, a Los Angeles ACLU volunteer, told the Independent, Press-Telegram the organization is currently engaged in testing the constitutionality of section 21 of the new county anti-loitering ordinance.

He says the section pertains to the blocking of streets and highways.

Two persons who were arrested under the provisions of the new law have agreed to let their court actions become a test case of the ordinance, said Cronk, but:

"We really don't have much information at this time because we're just getting started."

Well, there has been a test of the Laguna anti-loitering law and part of that ordinance has been ruled unconstitutional — the section that made it illegal to stand on the sidewalks, except as near as possible to a building.

A PART of the law that bans blocking a sidewalk after being ordered by a policeman to move on still stands, as does a portion outlawing sitting, kneeling or lying on a sidewalk.

Many persons recently shopping in Hollywood have complained of having to become hurdle hoppers in trying to get past doorway-encased young folk sprawled on sidewalks.

Costa Mesa councilmen have shelved an ordinance similar to Laguna's saying they want to watch what happens in Laguna before taking final action.

Huntington Beach city fathers have tightened control over business licenses after "hippies" aged 9 to 90 began flocking to the town's blighted downtown area.

Back in Newport for a moment, that city has a $3 fee for surfers, a $10 fine for overtime parking and has banned ice cream wagons from beaches.

And, inland, San Bernardino has passed a law regulating loitering around shopping centers, drive-in restaurants and parking lots.

Powder Puff Mechanic Course

A new course for "powder puff mechanics" will be offered by Bellflower Adult School starting Sept. 23 at Bellflower High School.

The 6-week auto mechanics training for women will be held each Monday and Wednesday at 7 p.m. for a 6 week period. The course is designed to familiarize women with auto parts and their functions, educate them in preventative maintenance and protect them from unscrupulous repairmen.

A $2 registration fee will be required at the first meeting.

Chute Opens Late, Sky Diver Dies

TAFT (AP) — A Los Angeles sky diver was killed Saturday, when he pulled his rip cord too late while parachuting with three friends from 15,000 feet at the Gardner Field jump zone 7 miles east of here.

The victim was Ignacio M. Estrada.

Kern County Sheriff's officers said Estrada's parachute opened but did not break his fall in time and he plummeted into an open field. He was dead on arrival at a Taft Hospital. The men were jumping from a twin-engine Beechcraft piloted by Darrel J. Creighton of Arcadia.

Creighton told officers the men jumped out in free fall until they reached the 2,800 foot level. But Estrada — who was married and had two children — apparently did not realize how close he was to the ground.

A Fiery Protest

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — Michaele Burrazzo, 40, set fire to himself Saturday during a session of the city council to protest his unemployment.

Accomplice Faces Charge of Murder

The accused accomplice of a bandit killed in an armed robbery attempt in Downey is to be arraigned this week on a charge of murder, police reported.

Another man, found by police in an apartment with the accused accomplice, will be arraigned Monday on charges of possession of dangerous drugs.

William Everett Bronson, Jr., 25, was arrested on suspicion of murder after Manuel Pedrosa, 24, of East Los Angeles died of bullet wounds received in an exchange of gunfire at a liquor store at 9414 Telegraph Road Friday.

Two men, Downey detectives said, went into the store and growled at clerk Andrew Sutherland, 31, "This is a stickup."

Sutherland, officers said, pretended to open the cash register, grabbed a .45-caliber pistol from under the counter and opened fire.

One of the men, standing at the door, fired back. Pedrosa, at the counter, fell.

The dead man was shot three times in the head and once in the left arm, police said. Two .45 caliber slugs hit him in the head. Two smaller caliber slugs, from the second bandit's gun, also struck him, one in the head and the other in the arm.

Detectives followed clues to the Montebello apartment where they arrested Bronson and Carroll.

In the apartment, they said they found more than 7,000 capsules of drugs, marijuana and hypodermic kits. Carroll was booked on the drug possession charge.

End of Era at Vet's Hospital

RECEIVES MEDAL

Chief Boatswain's Mate John H. Riley of Fountain Valley receives the Joint Service Commendation Medal from Lt. Cmdr. J. J. Thomas, commander of Naval Reserve unit 11-5 in ceremonies at the Naval Reserve Training Center at Los Alamitos last week.

U.S. Navy Photos

An era will end soon at Long Beach Veteran's Administration Hospital when the facility's recreation hall — where many glamorous actresses and actors entertained veterans — is demolished.

It will happen sometime this month, according to Dr. James S. Glotfelty, director of the Hospital.

The demolition of the storied recreation hall is part of an encompassing construction and modernization program of hospital buildings.

The buildings are slated for final inspection during the week of Sept. 22, and occupancy will begin shortly thereafter.

Alterations and modernization of a number of permanent buildings — constructed in 1943 — will allow the hospital to raze temporary buildings — such as the recreation hall — which have served a useful purpose during a transition period.

"The destruction of that old building brings a note of sadness to many Southland veterans," Dr. Glotfelty said. "The recreation hall was a place of good cheer, fun and happiness for men who had lost limbs, were paralyzed or suffered other depressing illnesses."

The recreation hall will share space within one of the modernized structures with seven wards, a chapel, clinics and a library.

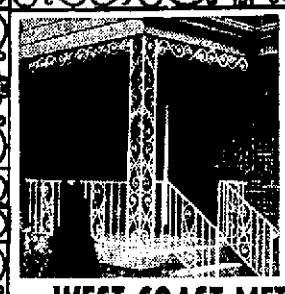

Included in the new structure will be a theater, the hospital's radio broadcasting system, an indoor and an outdoor swimming pool — valuable in therapeutic work — a bowling alley and a small golf course.

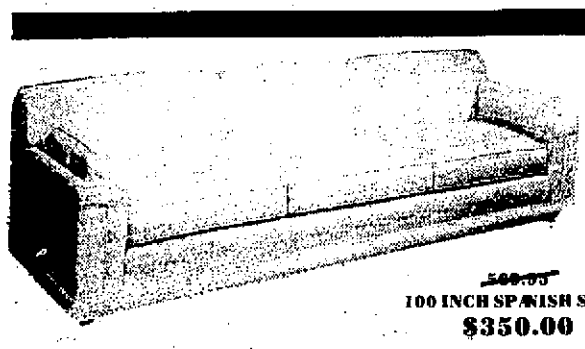

In addition, some of the pool and shuffleboard tables, TV viewing space and other recreational pursuits will find space in the new wing.

Dr. Glotfelty said emphasis in treatment today calls for shortening length of hospital stays for patients. This is due in part to high cost of hospitalization but part of that problem is being handled through pre-bed occupancy methods which call for preliminary x-rays, lab work and other clinical studies being accomplished before a patient is admitted to the hospital.

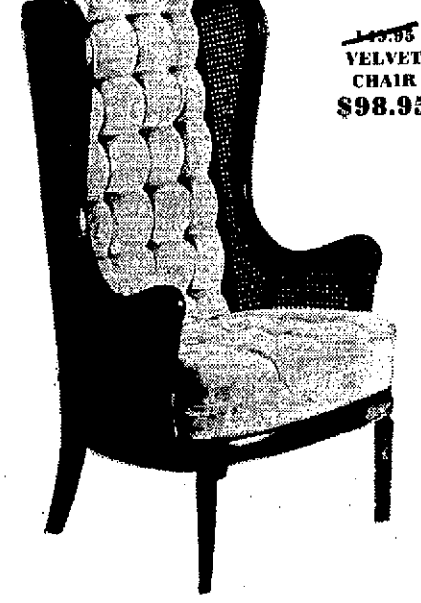

The demolition of the recreation hall — and other vintage buildings at the hospital — is part of an overall construction job that has been underway at the VA Hospital for about four years.

EXPLORATION GEOLOGISTS
Escape frustrations of big organizations. Join the action team and share in the rapidly developing nuclear energy industry, the glamor industry of the next decade.

Several openings at levels from recent graduates to senior explorationists. Strong background in stratigraphic interpretation or experience in stratigraphically related are deposits preferred.

Uncommon professional environment where individual initiative is encouraged and rewarded. Follow through is normal procedure, not exception. Geology maximized, routine minimized.

Exceptional profit-sharing plan, uniform exempt salary structure.

SBA Program Calls for 10,000 Minority Firms by June

By JAMES L. SRODES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Leaders of black America say they want a piece of the nation's business action.

Howard J. Samuels, the new Small Business Administration head, thinks they should get it and has started a program to do just that.

The program was unveiled in mid-August with the goal of getting 10,000 minority group Americans in business by the end of June, 1969. This compares with the 2,200 businesses started by ghetto dwellers in 1967.

Samuels dubbed the program "Project Own" and stressed that the funds will come from private bank loans — backed by the SBA. Guidance and counseling will come from professional retail associations to help the would-be businessman in the inner city get started and stay in business.

* * * *

BUT SAMUELS is racing with the clock to get his program off the ground before he resigns Jan. 1 because of the change in presidential administrations.

Whether Samuels is re-appointed SBA administrator or not in the new administration, he wants to be sure "Project Own" is strong enough to keep going the 12 years he feels necessary to bring black American business up to par with the white business community.

Getting things done in a hurry is a trademark of the 48-year-old native of Rochester, N.Y.

Starting with a $25,000 loan in 1946, he founded the Kordite Corp. to make plastic clotheslines. Kordite is a $100-million a year business and is the Plastics Division of Mobil Chemical Corp.

After a seven-month stint as assistant Secretary of Commerce, Samuels moved to the SBA in July with a directive from President Johnson to focus on aiding Negroes and other minority groups enter the business community of the inner cities.

In the following questions and answers, Samuels outlined for United Press International his goals for "Project Own" and his views on the problems facing business in American cities today.

Q. Mr. Samuels, what reasons are there for stressing the role of minority group businessmen in re-building the cities instead of white businessmen?

Let's realize that whites don't want to build in the inner city any more. This goes for smaller stores and the larger ones.

If we are going to build up the retail end of the cities, which are in chaotic shape throughout the country, it is going to have to be done with the minorities.

There is still a need for efficient retailers in the inner city and I think that is where you will find the greatest movement of building.

Q. What will "Project Own" cost?

We estimate most of the businesses in this project will require an average equity of $25,000 — some more, some less. If we get to a rate of 30,000 loans for businesses a year, it will probably require the SBA to guarantee loans of between $750,000,000 to $1 billion a year.

But none of this will take any more government money. All the SBA will do is guarantee loans private banks will make, and our one-half per cent charge will encourage the banks to pay close attention to the loans they make and back as many of them as possible on their own.

Q. What will be the program's impact?

A good number of the black community in this country do not believe it is possible for them to own anything like a business in America.

The impact in the next couple of years will be that minorities like the Negro and Puerto Rican are going to see more and more minorities in business in the inner city, and they will recognize there is a chance for them to be in businesss for themselves.

Q. Won't the effect of your program be to give the cities up to the minorities?

I think we've already given up the inner city to the blacks and other minorities. Our program doesn't mean there won't be any need or room for white retailers in the cities, however.

I stood on the other side of this question for a long time and argued for an integrated society.

But I think now that before we get an integrated society, we are going to have to strengthen the black society. They and other minorities are going to have to feel part of the economy — a part of the power structure of American politics.

Then I think you will begin to see — maybe not in our generation, but in the next — a move toward an integrated society.

I think the realism is that the inner city of urban America is becoming black as the suburbs are becoming white. If that's it, if we are talking about the economy, then you can't let the inner cities degenerate, and you can't let minorities not be a part of the free enterprise system.

All we are doing is developing a program so the people in the inner cities will feel part of the economy of the country.

We think it is important and, more important, so do the minorities.

Q. Is there a danger of the program drawing a line between blacks and whites in the cities?

I think the effect will be just the opposite.

Strengthening the economy of the inner city, giving its residents a piece of the action, a stake, and showing them they have an economic opportunity is important in reducing tensions existing between blacks and whites.

I would like not to have a segregated society, but the reality is that society is segregated. What we want to do is make it possible for the blacks to own some businesses in their own city.

Q. What do you hope to accomplish between now and Jan. 1?

The programs we have started are not Republican or Democratic programs but businesslike SBA programs and it is my hope that the next President will appoint a man to this post who will carry on what I hope will be well started by then.

If we have the banks and retailers organized by the end of the year and if we have the SBA restructured, much of the results will be already on the graphs of accomplishments.

Q. What are your chances for success?

We will show progress in both the short and long runs, I'm sure.

My job here is to show a businessman's approach to solving some social and economic problems. Our aim is to greatly increase our involvement in this area without any additional federal money being spent.

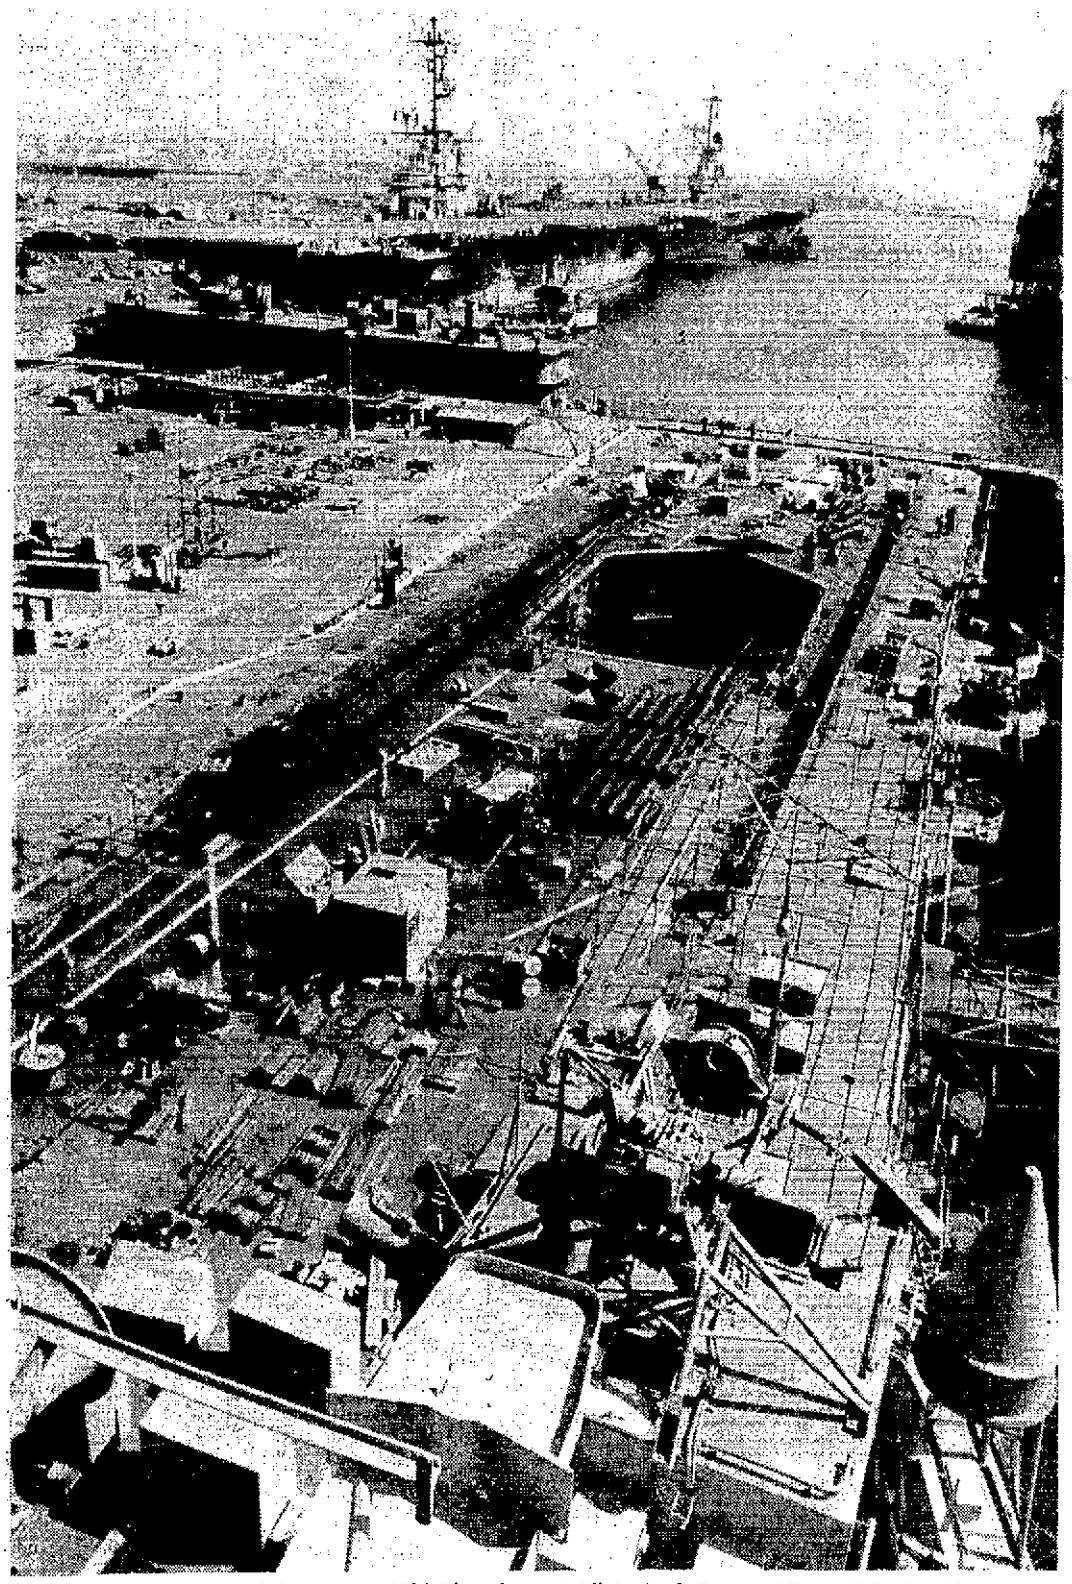

The SBA is now guaranteeing about $800-million worth of loans to small businessmen. Through "Project Own," that sum probably will go up to about $1.5 billion by 1970.

And we will be able to do this with less people on the SBA staff. We now have about 3,500 people on the SBA payroll but be getting the banks involved in making and supervising and administering the loans we will be able to more than double the effectiveness of SBA. Already, we have 100 less people here than when I took over by not adding replacements for people who are retiring or quitting.

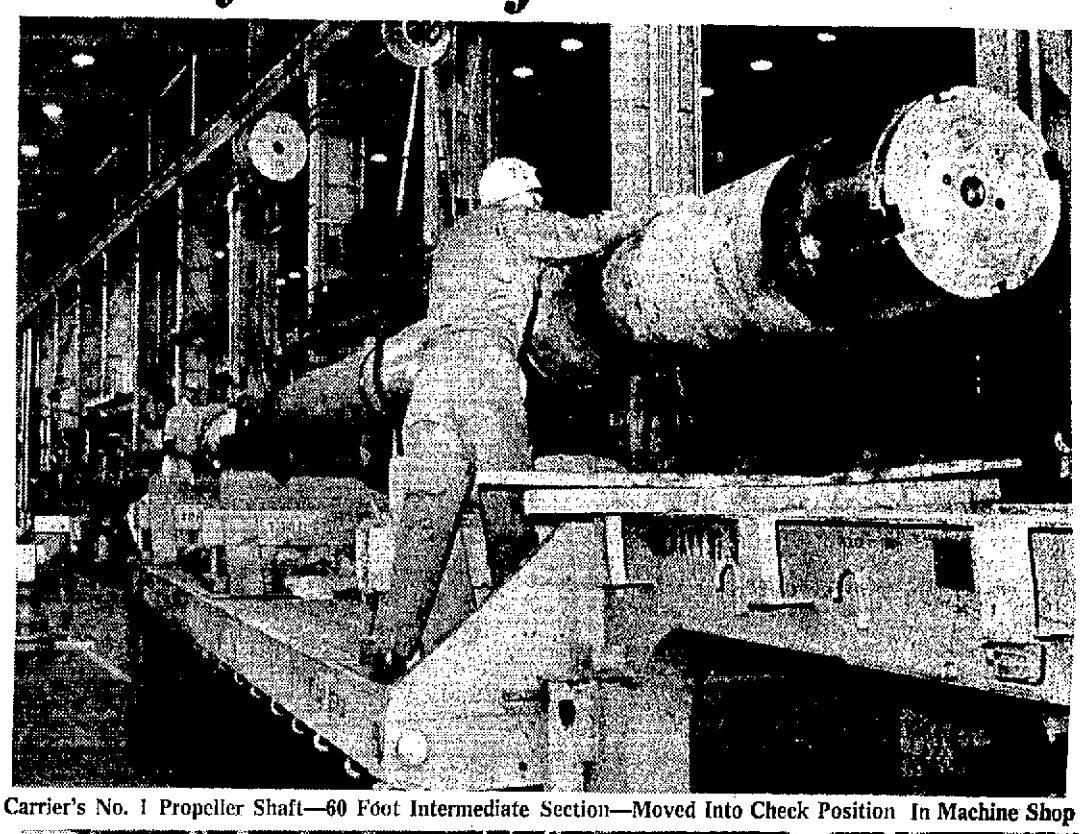

My job is not to spend federal money, but to find out how to get the private sector of the nation to do what I think it can do better than the government can.

Relining catapaults, building new flight deck elevators, X-raying engine blocks for defecting, repairing sonar domes and tuning up missile guidance systems are just a part of the many faceted work under way now in the Long Beach Naval Shipyard.

Its 8,000 employes with a $67 million annual payroll are staying busy virtually around the clock in maintaining and repairing the Pacific Fleet.

Capt. Monroe Hart's yard celebrated its 25th anniversary last Feb. 25 and its basic mission is listed as "conversion overhaul, repair, alteration, drydocking and fitting out assigned ships service craft."

* * * *

The yard also performs manufacturing, research/development and test work (Polaris) as assigned.

It is under the Naval Ship Systems Command.

Biggest chore to date is a major alteration and repair on the attack carrier USS Ticonderoga.

The big carrier is getting modifications and work on her flight deck and extensive alterations within. She is due to carry a squadron of A7s on her next Vietnam deployment.

* * * *

THIS HEAVIER and more versatile aircraft necessitated the intensive work program.

Tico's flight deck elevators are being strengthened and in one case redone, catapaults are being relined and checked out and the deck is being altered in places.

Over 16,000 landings were recorded on the last deployment.

Additional work and crew spaces are going in available overhang space.

Capt. Norman McInnis' ship has completed four Vietnam deployments — a record — and has seen over a 1,000 operating days without a yard period.

"She's no good if she won't run," Capt. McInnis said. In line there all screws and shafts plus the rudder are off Tico in the yard's machine shop.

* * * *

AN OUT-OF-LINE SHAFT'S vibrations or a faulty screw can create confusion at sea.

While work is moving on the Tico's vital running gear, a worker is buffing out the cylinders on a Packard V-12 Diesel engine — for a 165-foot ocean minesweeper.

After the buffing the engine block is X-rayed for defects.

Over in the electric shop parts of the missile cruiser USS Chicago are all about. Most of the work on Capt. John De Largy's ship is classified, but all of her missile systems, communications and tracking sytems are involved.

And a sanitary system is being installed — a major deterrent to oil spillages in harbors. There's work going in all four engine rooms.

* * * *

THE DESTROYER Jame E. Kyes, one of the Pacific Fleet's best antisubmarine cans, had a big ASW weapon, the sonar dome, repaired while in the shipyard's floating drydock on Pier 6.

One of the yard's most recent jobs was the post shakedown work on the battleship New Jersey. Big J today is steaming between Hawaii and Subic Bay, Philippines, but the yard had another big task in a short time on Big J.

Communications, electronic countermeasures and classified missile defenses were the major jobs in addition to the normal bugs that developed following recommissioning on April 6.

The local yard is Long Beach's second biggest employer behind McDonald-Douglas. Annual purchase of stores and materials in the local area runs to the $40 million mark.

Last year 200 ships were repaired. This year the figure may be higher as this inescapable fact looms bigger every day: Nearly two-thirds of the Navy's ships are 20 years old or older.

Sharp Drop in Steel Orders as Strike Hedging Over

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

The steel buyer has become king. Reasons: His steel inventory is bountiful; he has access to more steel than ever before; he can take his choice of buying it from U.S. mills or from abroad; he will see the foreign supplies grow faster than his needs; and he can expect the supply from U.S. mills to be free from interruption for three years, the duration of the new steel labor contract.

Competitition for his orders may even bring him some price concessions, steel magazine reports.

A sharp drop in demand when strike hedging ended late in July has left producers' order books with few entries. Steel pointed out that the incoming order rate of most steel companies has dropped at least 50 per cent and in some cases 60 per cent and more, from the peak rate last spring.

Most orders being received by steel companies are of the "shotgun" variety — for quick delivery, or to fill an inventory hole, particularly at automotive plants. This is the way it will be for a while because most users will live for some time on their substantial stocks of strike-hedge steel.

THE REDUCED RATE OF STEEL demand, however, is not yet fully reflected in raw steel production and steel plant employment.

Rebuilding of semifinished steel inventories so that mills can give quick delivery has helped sustain raw steel production in the last few weeks. Despite this activity, raw steel production dropped 15.2 per cent in the first five weeks after signing of the new steel labor contract.

Production of raw steel is now the lowest it has been since the week ended Dec. 28, 1963. It's estimated at 1,896,000 net tons for the week ended Sept. 7.

STEEL INDUSTRY EMPLOYMENT, already down, is about to shrink even more sharply. Vacations have delayed the impact by temporarily reducing the number of men in the plants, but the big vaction season is over.

Two other factors have been sustaining steel industry employment: Making of equipment repairs that were deferred during the high rate of operations in the first seven months of this year; and rebuilding of semifinished steel inventories. These two activities are near completion.

Furloughs by some of the major producers have reached 6 per cent and more layoffs are coming.

Steelmaking scrap prices have advanced slightly in the wake of higher bids on automotive scrap. Steel's price composite on the No. 1 steelmaking grade of scrap rose 50 cents a gross ton to $23.83 last week.

MEANWHILE JAPANESE STEELMAKERS are sharply reducing ocean haulage expenses relating to the purchase of coking coal from the United States, according to a special report issued by Japan Steel Information Center.

The Center report point out that the Japanese steel industry relies heavily on imports of U.S. coking coal. In 1967, Japan purchased 9.6 million metric tons, 43 per cent, of its imported coking coal requirements from U.S. sources.

To reduce ocean freight costs, steel producers are using larger multipurpose carriers; chartered on a long-term basis. These versatile vessels transport crude oil on one part of the voyage and coal on the other. Reduction of ballast travel affords overall reduced average costs per ton on marine haulage of coking coal.

THE INCREASED PER SHIP cargo capacity and the reduction of ballast trips have enabled a reduction of coking coal transportation costs of about 50 cents per ton.

A further development, now under way in Japan, promises to reduce freight cost by about another 50 cents per ton. One major steel producer intends to utilize even larger multipuprose coal-ore-oil carriers. Coking coal and iron ore will be transported on one portion of its journey, while carrying crude oil on another portion of the voyage. The overall purpose is to reduce the cost of transporting coking coal.

In addition, to accommodate the larger carriers, Japan's steelmakers are expanding the capacities of the raw material unloading berths, handling equipment and facilities. Some producers can now accept bulk carriers in the 100,000 DWT clas.. Eventually it is planned to have berthing facilities for carriers in the 150,000 DWT class.

A STRONG UPTREND MAY be in the making if home building in the western United States lives up to expectations.

The September issue of the National Association of Home Builders' Journal of Homebuilding predicts that 275,000 housing units — approximately 25 per cent better than 1968 — will be built in the West during 1969. This estimate by market researcher Sanford R. Goodkin is part of a 25-page "Western Report."

Goodkin reports that "the reason for this optimism, aside from hope for a loosening of money and a more stable international situation, is the concerted effort on the part of some building giants to produce homes in the lower price ranges, thus enabling a greater proportion of the population to enter the market. An interesting note is that these lower-priced units are being built on expensive lots."

"The very large building companies in the West are changing their focus and are exploring the urban scene for volume through government programs. They are also showing great interest in all types of multifamily housing. Three major merchant builders are turning heavily to multiples."

Homebuilding magazine foresees "a great pent-up demand" stemming from a housing shortage in the West. Gains ranging from modest improvements to "all-time highs" are expected in each of the 13 states covered except Alaska, where starts of 800 units are forecast — a decline of 11 per cent from 1967.

BANK ROBBERIES HAVE MORE than doubled since the heyday of John Dillinger and Bonnie and Clyde. In 1932, the American Bankers Association recorded just over 600 holdups. In 1967, that total rose to 1,318 — more than double the peak of the Dillinger days.

Today, bank robbers are less notorious, but much more numerous. The prevailing pattern now involves a single gunman who is a petty criminal, or an outright "amateur" engaged in a crude attempt to solve a personal or financial problem.

These sidelights on the recent upsurge in robberies of banks and savings and loan associations appear in the current issue of the Journal of American Insurance. The magazine suggests five basic causes for the startling increase:

1. The growth of suburban branch banking.
2. Thin police protection in the suburbs.
3. The new open style of banking.
4. A rising number of potential bank robbers.
5. A failure of banks to properly defend themselves.

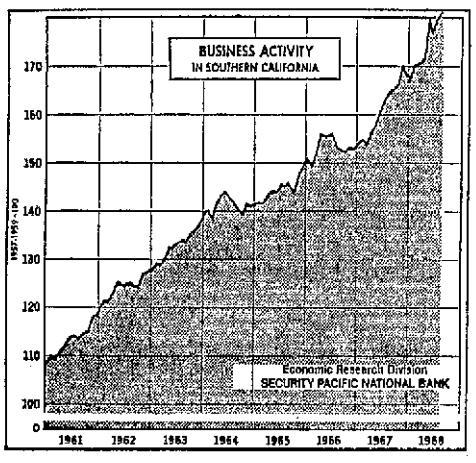

* * * *

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION records, which include attacks on savings and loan associations, as well as banks, show a total of 1,730 robberies in 1967. This was a 50 per cent increase over the 1966 total and was the greatest increase last year in any FBI category of crime. The increase has been six-fold in the last decade.

Insurance company loss experience with banks has inevitably worsened with the robbery problem, says the Journal, published by the American Mutual Insurance Alliance. One specialist in bank coverages says his company has found that "losses have worsened almost in direct proportion to the number of branch banks opened." The U.S. Department of Justice confirms that the shift of population to the suburbs has drawn new branches there where they are more vulnerable to attack. Freeways, for instance, frequently offer bandits a perfect get-away route.

In addition, bank and savings and loan offices on the fringes of cities and in the suburbs have less police protection than downtown banks. "It generally takes police longer to get to the outskirts of cities," points out the Journal, "and in the suburbs, police departments are notoriously understaffed and underequipped."

Southland Economy Sets Record Again

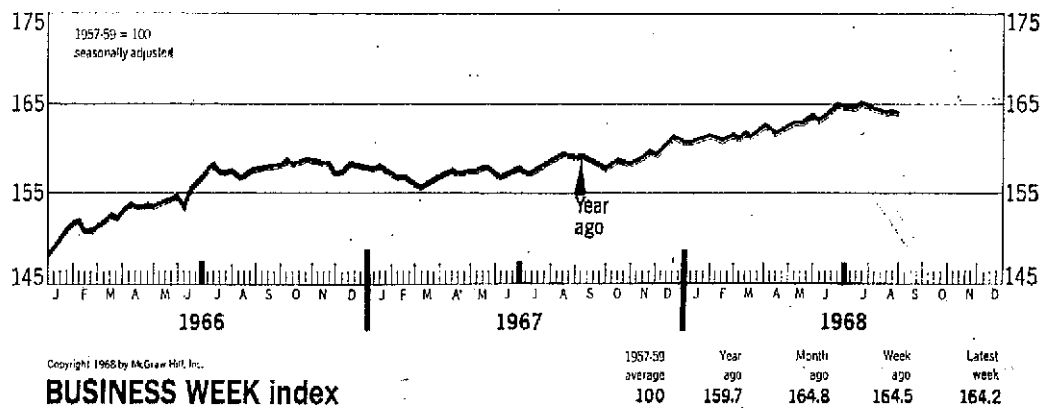

August was another record month for the Southern California economy, it was reported today by L. H. Showalter, vice president and manager of Security Pacific National Bank's Long Beach office.

Last month's economic performance has registered at 181.9 on Security's Index of Business Activity (1957-59—100). The August reading is two points above the previous all-time high of 179.9, established in May. (A preliminary index reading for July is 179.5, and the final measurement for June is 176.8.)

In the past 17 months Security Bank's index has charted an economic ascent of 28.2 points. Six months ago the index stood at 170.4. A year ago it registered at 165.0. In March of 1967 it was at 153.7.

All available statistics, which are adjusted for seasonal fluctuations, reflected the upward trend in August. Substantial gains were recorded in bank clearings and department store sales. Construction activity increased for the sixth consecutive month, and real estate sales advanced fractionally.

Showalter also reported another record for metropolitan employment. In July, the latest month for which figures are available, there was a seasonally adjusted total of 4,715,900 civilian workers employed in the Southland's nine metropolitan counties — 152,400 more jobholders than during July of 1967. The local employment increase of 3.3 per cent compares with a national increase of 2.1 per cent.

Index Slips Despite Car Output Gain

The Index slipped to a 164.2 level in the current week, despite a significant weekly gain in auto production.

Steel output continued its downward trend with a 5.0 per cent drop. Steel orders hit a two-year low, due to high inventories of imported and domestic steel stockpiled during the frantic strike-hedge buying period. Output looks dim until this estimated two-months steel supply is depleted.

Auto production went up 14.7 per cent as the Chevrolet division of General Motors began its 1969 production. It is estimated that production will increase considerably as the Big Three introduce overtime and longer work hours.

The power components offset each other in the current week. Electric power output hit an all-time high and gained 3.8 per cent above power a week ago. Crude oil refinery runs dropped 0.8 per cent.

Miscellaneous carloadings gained 0.7 per cent; intercity truck tonnage matched the previous week's 0.2 per cent gain. All other carloadings fell 5.3 per cent, the drop is attributed, in part, to a reduction in transportation of raw materials used for steel production.

YOUR HOME—BY THUNES

Remodeling House Is Way of Life

By RICHARD N. THUNES

During the past 30 years, the major thrust and trend of the home building industry has been toward greater uniformity in housing. In any given tract, the floor plans will be comparable, the architectural design will require the same basic materials of flooring, woods, wall treatment and appliances, and the differences in appearance in the homes will be slight.

Of course, there are many exceptions to this trend, and builders in just the past few years have been diligent in seeking ways to avoid what is so aptly called a "dreary uniformity" in the houses they build.

* * * *

AT THE SAME time, the home building industry is trying to industrialize — that is, to employ the vast efficiencies of modern mass production. In the long run, we can expect that these efforts will become increasingly successful.

But there is another countervailing force at work — people simply don't like to be stuffed into identical pigeon-holes. They want their homes to express their individuality, and if the home doesn't have it to begin with, they will make it so. And that is the principal reason why home remodeling has become such an important element in the American way of life. The homeowner can express his individuality through remodeling. And, given the nature of construction processes, each remodeling project is an almost unique expression of customizing.

* * * *

YET REMODELING contractors too are attempting to utilize the benefits of mass production. This is important to the home owner. Mass production means lower costs; lower costs mean that more people can afford the product.

In construction, the highly variable cost is labor. So contractors attempt to minimize the number of men who have to go to the jobsite. Painters are being avoided on many jobs through use of pre-finished paneling and by gluing the panel to avoid puttying of nail holes and color-matching.

And now the separate application of wallpaper to an unfinished wall is eliminated. Major gypsum board manufacturers are mass-producing gypsum board with vinyl wallpaper already on it.

* * * *

THESE ARE JUST two developments. If greater use of plastic water pipe is permitted by building codes, and if the plumbers unions will permit off-site fabrication of supply and waste sections, another area of more efficient production could be reached.

I am sure, however, that as each step toward more mass production is achieved, custom remodeling will reach new heights, too. Translating your ideas into new customized living space is the job of the professional remodeling contractor.

QUESTION: Do you foresee any really basic improvement in dishwashers in the next few years? Would they be worth waiting for or should we go ahead and put one in now?

ANSWER: I have heard of nothing that would persuade me that you should not go ahead now and enjoy the dishwasher.

(Mr. Thunes' organizations represent home improvement contractors through California. He will answer questions addressed to him c-o American Building Contractors Association, 9034 Sunset, Los Angeles.

New Breakers Plans Gala Birthday Fete

A gala anniversary party is scheduled at the New Breakers Hotel today, according to Richard M. Cohen, general manager. The event is in celebration of the second year of operation as a residential establishment for permanent guests of retirement age.

Actually the hotel has been a landmark in Long Beach 42 years, but was converted to a retirement center in 1966 by Paul Kapelow, a New Orleans developer.

R. M. COHEN

Activities planned for the birthday include a luncheon in the ocean-view dining room, followed by an entertainment program.

* * * *

AT THE PRESENT time the hotel's Sky Room is available to the public for private parties. Cohen said that he plans to open it on a full time basis in December.

Approximately two thirds of the Breakers 300 rooms are occupied by senior retired people on the American plan basis, the manager explained. A third of the sleeping accommodations at the hotel are still available on a regular commercial hotel basis. "We have hired Ron Lasch as catering manager. Lasch was formerly in charge of all food operations on the Queen Mary."

LARWIN'S SPACEMAKER I . . . Adaptable To 7 Bedrooms

Record Breaking Sales Made at Larwin Greenbrook Unit

Sales at the Larwin Co.'s Greenbrook community in Cypress soared to a record-breaking $3 million in the month of August.

Not noted as a big home-buying month because of the number of prospective buyers on vacation, August nevertheless proved to be the second best month for sales in Greenbrook's history.

According to the Larwin Co., the nation's largest privately-owned homebuilder, Greenbrook is the best-selling development in its price range ($26,990-$36,990) in all of Southern California.

* * * *

"WE HAVE SOLD more than 1,200 homes in 17 units so far," said Michael L. Tenzer, vice president and director of marketing for Larwin.

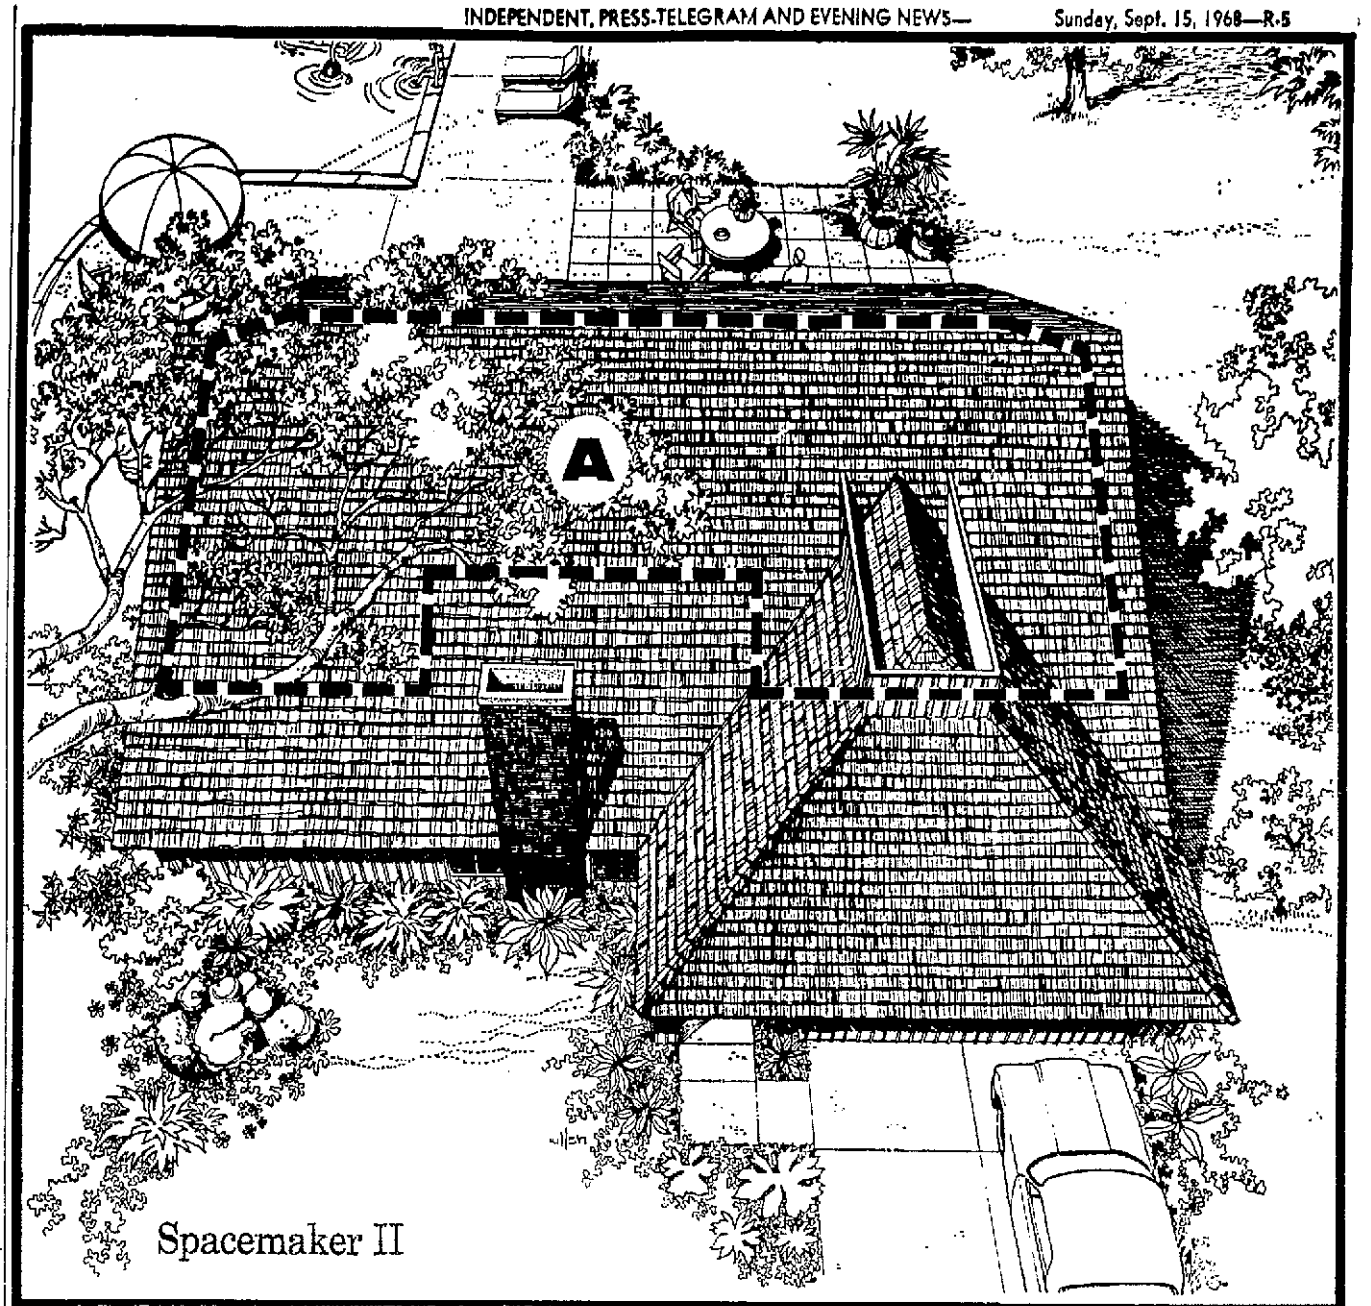

Prospective homebuyers are encouraged to shop nearby competition.

"We urge them to shop and see what's available," said Bud Meyer, Greenbrook sales manager. "Most of our sales are to families who have been to Greenbrook, shopped other developments and returned to buy their home from us."

Last month Larwin's Greenbrook community opened its 17th unit, and it is already 70 per cent sold-out, according to Meyer.

THE MOST POPULAR and best-selling home of the six models on display at the sales office at Valley View and Orange in Cypress is the Spacemaker I. Priced at $31,990, this home is adaptable to seven bedrooms and three baths.

The Spacemaker I and the five other model homes can be seen by taking the Santa Ana Freeway to Valley View exit, proceed south to models. From the San Diego Freeway and the Garden Grove Freeway, take the Valley View exit and proceed north to models.

GREENBROOK

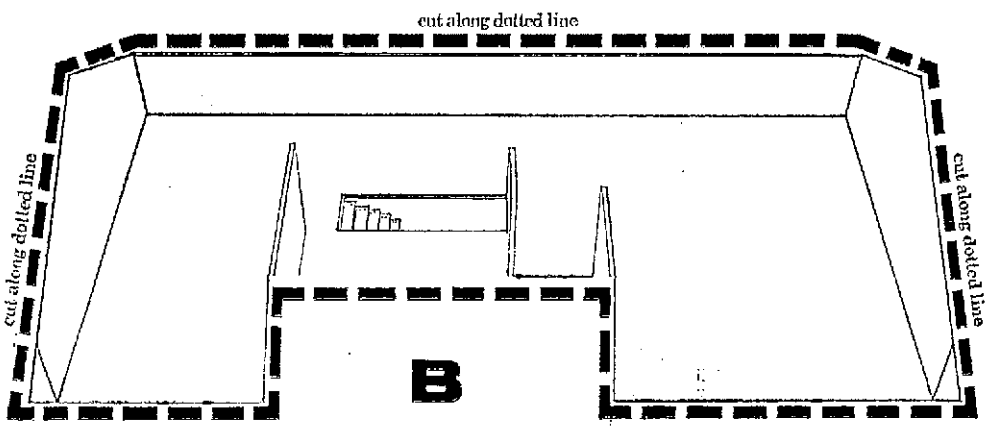

You're looking at what we call our Spacemaker. We left a portion unfinished (don't worry, you can't see the unfinished portion from the inside or out).

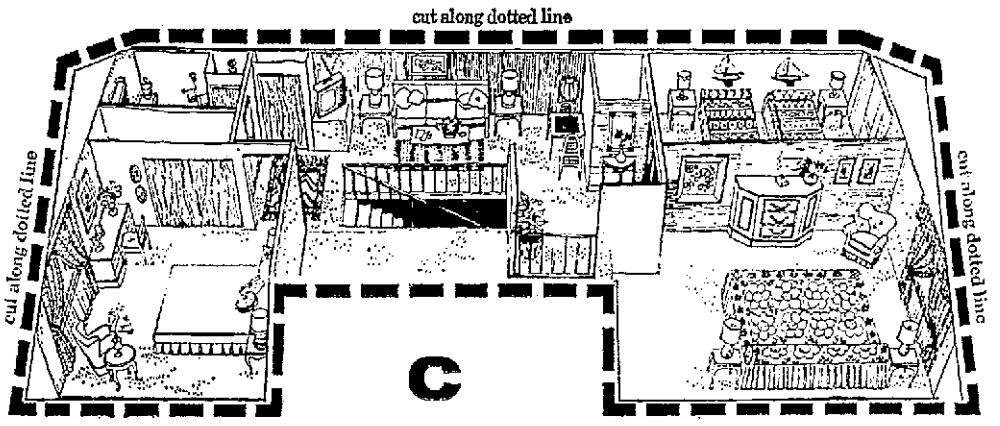

This saves you about 2 or 3 thousand dollars on the initial cost. When you have more family or money (or both) you can finish all or part of the unfinished area.

For an idea of what can be done with it take scissors and cut out B and place over A. Now cut out C and place over B. Get it.

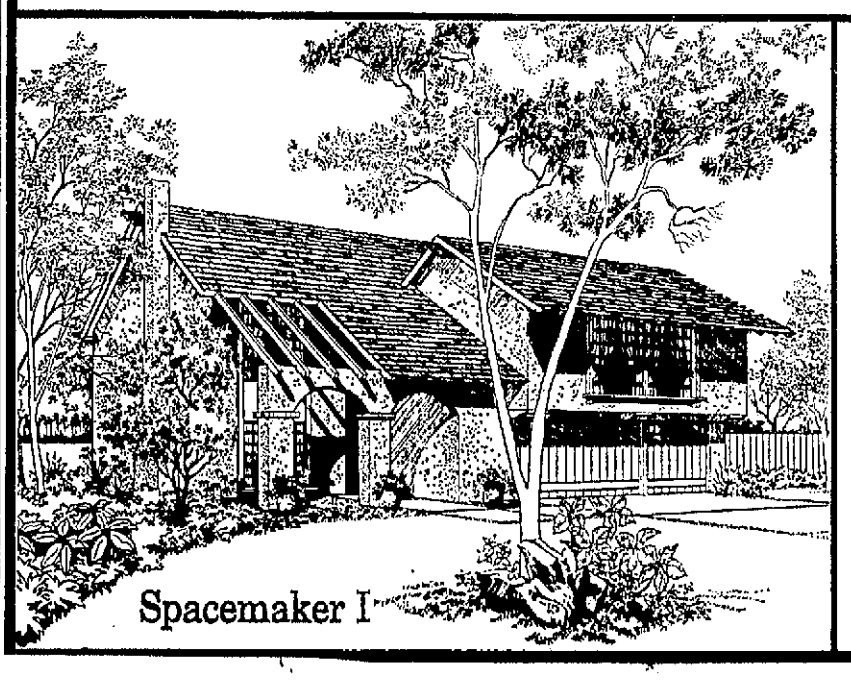

The Spacemakers come with up to 4 bedrooms and 3 baths. Not counting the Spacemaker area.

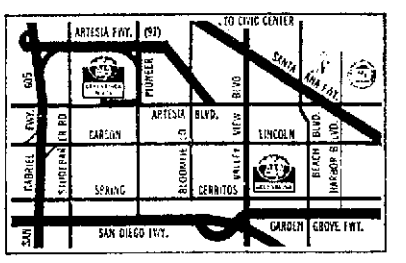

Spacemakers are too much house for the money.

AS AREA WILL LOOK
Topographical model of Harbor View Homes shows unique land plan which has six-acre park and eight-acre school site within walking distance of homes. Looped streets provide added safety for all residents.

Newport Beach Harbor View Homes Will Preview Today

A preview look at a dramatic new residential neighborhood on the master-planned Irvine Ranch will be afforded today. Harbor View Homes in Newport Beach, a development of the Donald L. Bren Co. of Los Angeles, newest addition to the Irvine Ranch group of select homebuilders, will show six model homes in a preview to its grand opening Sunday, Sept. 22.

The Bren Co., hailed as one of the outstanding home-building firms, recently won eight grand prizes and awards of merit in contests sponsored by the American Institute of Architects and National Association of Home Builders.

* * * *

HARBOR VIEW HOMES. has been approached with the same thoroughness and sensitivity to the needs of Southern California living which has marked other developments of the young Bren organization.

A major community development which will ultimately have more than 1000 homes, Harbor View Homes' 212 acres which comprise the first area of development was recently annexed to the city of Newport Beach.

The land plan provides "country charm," ease of movement, security and retains the area's natural environment and beauty.

In the first phase are 547 homes, all within walking distance to a six-acre park, which becomes the center of recreational and leisure activity. The park contains pedestrian walkways connecting children's play areas, adult areas and large playfields.

* * * *

WITHIN THE PARK is an exclusive recreation and swim club for residents who automatically become members with purchase of a Harbor View Home.

The homes are priced from $25,995 to $37,995. Six model homes range from three to five bedrooms in one and two-story plans. They will be offered under the new Irvine land lease-option plan.

Harbor View Homes is located at the intersection of Ford Road and MacArthur Boulevard in Newport Beach, and is reached from the Newport and San Diego freeways by taking MacArthur Boulevard off-ramp and driving south; or by the Coast Highway and turning north on MacArthur Boulevard.

Troy-La Palma Area Has Ample Schools

One of the deciding factors in locating Trop-La Palma Homes in the City of La Palma was the abundance of excellent school facilities in and near the community, according to James H. McCarthy, principal in The McCarthy-Sant Organization, developers.

In the City of La Palma are Steve Luther Elementary School, Miller Elementary School and another elementary school under construction and scheduled to open in January.

Walker Junior High and Kennedy High are also located in the city near Troy-La Palma. Cypress Junior College and Cal State Fullerton are conveniently located for La Palma residents.

* * * *

A SELECTION of two, three or four-bedroom homes with two or three baths are offered with 41 extra features included in the sales price which begins at $24,450.

An innovation is the "1969 Inner Space Series" offering homebuyers the opportunity to customize his own home, in effect.

The room may be finished, partially finished or unfinished depending on needs and choice of buyers.

Another popular feature is the exclusive McCarthy-Sant "TropiKitchen," designed for indoor-outdoor living.

Troy Homes are located on La Palma Ave., one block east of Moody (Carmenita) in the City of La Palma. From the Santa Ana Freeway, visitors are invited to drive south on Valley View to La Palma and right to Inwood Lane.

Different Type Model Home Shown

Visitors to the Maximum Homes development in Westminster are in for a treat when they tour the "San Mateo" model home.

The "San Mateo" is one of nine styles available in the walled-in project, and it appears to have been an interior decorator's pet project. Reaction varies widely, but all agree that it is certainly different.

The three and four bedroom homes, each with two baths, have a special "no extra cost" feature that is very popular with homebuyers. The "no extra cost" policy allows for inclusion of special features without adding to the price of the home.

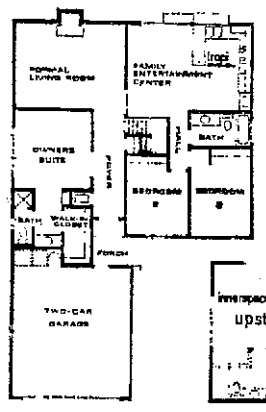

Prices start at $22,990. None are priced over $25,550.

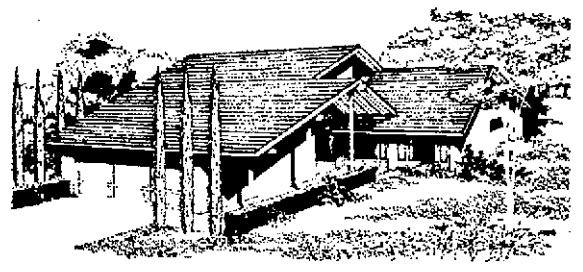

The homes are reached by taking the San Diego Freeway south to the Westminster-Springdale Street offramp. Go north on Springdale ½ mile to models.

Automotive Personality of the Week

By ART STEPHAN

I usually begin an interview with our auto personality by asking how they happened to come to our fair city of Long Beach and this man's answer was most unique.

"I was in a travel bureau

group that was bound for Los Angeles and when the driver said he was going on to Long Beach I stayed right with him to the end of the line."

The speaker was Ray Vines who operates Vines Chrysler-Plymouth out at Spring Street and Lakewood Boulevard as he recounted his trip from his birthplace of Wetumka, Okla. out to the coast.

"I arrived here in 1937 with four dollars and didn't know a soul," the aggressive dealer recalled at our luncheon meeting at Rochelle's Restaurant. "I went to work at the Navy Landing Garage at Third and Pico for eighty bucks a month and would repair and sell old cars in my spare time. 'Curbstoning' they called it then, which was my start in the automobile business."

Ray recounted how he soon had his own service station at State Street and Pacific, went from there to his own used car lot at California and Anaheim and later to a used car operation at 15th and American.

From there he went to his first new car franchise — Vines Motor Sales in Costa Mesa. This was followed by Rambler dealerships in Garden Grove and Fullerton. In 1962, with his Rambler stores disposed of, Vines opened the big Chrysler-Plymouth plant at the Spring Street location.

Ray has been president of the Long Beach Used Car Dealers Association and has been on the board of directors of the New Car Dealers Association since 1964.

Ray and his wife, Cappy, who married him on "those eighty dollars a month," now live in Huntington Harbour, which I might add, is a far cry from Wetumka, Okla.

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN

More than 2400 American Motors dealers were in Los Angeles last week in a massive airlift which brought them from all parts of the nation for the introduction of the company's 1969 cars.

In the largest private charter in airline history, 21 giant jets flew the AM dealer force from 23 major cities for a one-day preview of the 1969 models at Los Angeles International Airport. Enroute they took part in the first automotive sales meeting in the sky.

For the vast majority of the dealers it was "destination unknown" as they boarded planes starting at 7:30 a.m. (EDT) in New York with the last group scheduled to depart for Los Angeles from Denver. The dealers returned to their cities of departure Thursday night, with the last plane scheduled to touch down at New York's Kennedy Airport at midnight.

Their flight to the "New World of American Motors" had been purposely kept a mystery even after the dealers were in the air in order to achieve the maximum surprise effect, said R. W. McNealy, AM vice president of marketing services.

* * * *

DURING THEIR FLIGHTS to Los Angeles, the dealers viewed on American Airlines' Astrocolor movie screens a 45-minute film produced for the occasion by the Tom Thomas Organization. The film showed 1969 model American Motors cars in action in settings from Arizona desert to Miami's Racquet Club, serving as a unique introduction of the new car line to the dealers.

AM executives were on board each flight to host the dealers and serve as airborne chairmen of what marketing officials believe to be the first automotive sales meeting in the sky. Board Chairman Roy D. Chapin Jr. and President William V. Luneburg and W. S. Pickett, vice president for auto sales, addressed the dealers during their groundstay at Los Angeles.

As dealers deplaned here, they were met by a Mariachi band and escorted to one of AA's mammoth hangars, which had been transformed into a new car showcase that rivaled a Hollywood movie set.

* * * *

AFTER VIEWING THE 1969 AM cars, the dealers were entertained by a drag and road race exhibition and also inspected a full-scale AM model dealership.

At a performance center on the runway apron, name race drivers, including world land speed record holder Craig Breedlove, periodically made demonstration runs with specially prepared AMX's Javelins and Rebels. A full-scale, eight-mile dragstrip had been laid out directly in front of the hangar.

Planning for the mass dealer meeting began soon after AM's 1968 models made their public debut last fall.

By the time the last one returned to its city of departure the planes had traveled nearly 78,000 miles, or 9,750,000 passenger miles, and served 5,000 first class meals, all in an 18-hour period. Nearly 200 flight personnel, including pilots and stewardesses, took part in the mass airlift.

Fast Sales Are Noted After Cherry Cove Homes Are Open

Cherry Cove, the first major residential development to be built in an area where Lakewood and Long Beach come together in more than 15 years has just opened.

The mystery of why a 46-acre site remained undeveloped for so long in the heart of the area that was the locale of the first great surge of homebuilding after World War II and is today one of the best maintained neighborhoods in Southern California was cleared up by John Gause, general sales manager for the developers of Cherry Cove, Barclay-Hollander-Curci.

"The former owners of the property had planned to develop it as a cemetery," he explained.

* * * *

"OUR SALESMEN tell us that residents of the area began stopping by at the development site at Cherry Avenue and Del Amo Boulevard to inquire about the type of homes that would be built there soon after grading operations began."

He noted that more than 50 of the 80 homes in the first and second units of the 278 home development were sold before the model homes could be completed. Almost three-fourths of the buyers have been from Long Beach or Lakewood, he added.

Although situated at one of the busiest intersections in the area, Cherry Cove residents will enjoy seclusion made possible by the builders surrounding the entire community with walls. There will be only two entrances and no through streets so that interior traffic will be minimized.

Two architectural firms have designed five basic floor plans for the three and four-bedroom homes, priced from $28,795 to $36,195. The one and two-story homes exhibit a variety of 19 attractive exteriors. Many have the popular enclosed garden patios in the front.

Fireplaces, a choice of wood shake or rock roofs, wall-to-wall nylon carpeting, and a forced-air central heating system with a summer cooling switch are among features.

Adding to the harmony of the community design as well as affording privacy for every residence is the inclusion of block walls enclosing all rear yards by the builders.

Cherry Cove may be reached from the San Diego Freeway by driving north on Cherry Avenue or from the Long Beach Freeway by driving east on Del Amo Boulevard.

Norton Simon Reports 'Historical' Earnings

FULLERTON — William E. McKenna, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Norton Simon, Inc., reported historical operating earnings for Norton Simon, Inc., for the 12 months ended June 30, 1968, totaled $26,884,000, or $1.95 per common share. These unaudited results represent the combined net operating earnings for the period of Canada Dry Corp. Hunt Foods and Industries, Inc., and McCall Corp., which were consolidated to form Norton Simon, Inc. on July 17, 1968.

McKenna said after giving effect for full conversion of outstanding convertible debentures, the historical earnings of the combined companies would have equaled $1.79 per common share. Combined net sales for the period totaled $900,555,000.

* * * *

Commenting on the outlook for the current fiscal year, which began July 1, McKenna said, "Current profit plans indicate a gain in per share earnings of over 20 per cent, with earnings rising to $2.35 per share or more." He added that the fiscal 1969 forecast for Norton Simon, Inc. excludes the effect of any acquisitions the company may make during the year, such as the previously announced acquisition of Talent Associates, Ltd., which has been approved by both companies.

Norton Simon Head to Speak

William E. McKenna, board chairman and chief executive officer of Norton Simon, Inc. will be the speaker at the September meeting of the Orange County Chapter of the National Association of Accountants to be held at the Disneyland Hotel Monday.

McKenna had previously served as chairman of the board and president of Hunt Foods and Industries before Hunt's recent merger with Canada Dry Corp. and McCall Corp. to form Norton Simon, Inc.

New Growth Fund Introductory Over

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Transamerica Capital Fund, Inc., a new growth oriented Mutual Fund, has completed its introductory period, according to president James O. Richards.

The fund already has some 26,000 investors, who have invested approximately $80 million, Richards said.

The Los Angeles based fund will be sold by representatives of Occidental Life Insurance Co., a subsidiary of the Transamerica Corp.

Computer Regulates Climate

By STACY V. JONES

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The climate inside the International Monetary Fund's headquarters in Washington is continuously regulated by computer — the first installation of its kind.

The computer operates the air-conditioning equipment, ventilating fans and heating plant, and turns the lights on and off. The two adjoining 13-story buildings it serves have a total area of 532,000 square feet.

The Robertshaw Controls Co. received a patent for the control system. The inventor is Paul A. Schumann, an engineer in the company's plant at Richmond, Va. The computer itself is a Prodac-50, made by Westinghouse Electric Corp.

* * * *

BESIDES SERVING as a single thermostat, the machine records power and fuel consumption and prints daily summaries. It gives warning when maintenance is required for mechanical equipment and shuts down automatically before there is any damage.

One thing it does is use the lighting system as a source of heat when that would be more economical than starting the boilers. The amount of air drawn in from outdoors is related to the number of people on duty during normal working hours.

The computer is tied in with the fire control system and delivers a recorded message to the staff when a blaze is detected.

The computer control has been in operation for nearly two years.

Nash M. Love, a Washington consulting engineer who drew up the specifications, predicts that future building computers will also control the elevators and handle bookkeeping and billing.

E. I. DU PONT DE NEMOURS & CO. received a milestone patent last week — numbered 3,400,000. Numbering began in 1836 when No. 1 was issued to Sen. John Ruggles of Maine for a locomotive. Du Pont got its first patent much earlier, in 1804, before patents were numbered.

Patent 3,400,000 — one of 11 issued to the company last week—covers an improved powder used to apply printing on glass bottles by an electrostatic process. The design of lettering can be implanted while the glass is still semi-molten, after emerging from the bottle-making machine. The inventor is Dr. Lewis C. Hoffman, a research supervisor in a Du Pont laboratory at Wilmington, Del.

WHEN FIRST discovered, synthetic members of the Tropolone family were regarded as chemical curiosities, having only academic interest. A college faculty member has now developed compounds that are effective as herbicides against broadleaf lawn and agricultural weeds.

A patent was granted to Dr. L. Guy Donaruma, executive officer of the Department of Chemistry at Clarkson College of Technology, Potsdam, N.Y., for his method of weed control. The Tropolone compounds he uses are called nitrobenzoate esters.

A VIRGINIA WOMAN has invented a bird feeder that bars starlings, jays and other large undesirables.

Mrs. Herbert H. Goodman has one of the feeders in her backyard in McLean. Acceptable birds can help themselves from the sides or below. Mrs. Goodman's patent pictures a woodpecker hanging upside down under her feeder and inserting its bill through the wire bottom.

Intended for suet, gobs or peanut butter and cakes of seed rather than loose grain, the feeder has a container made of wire and shaped like an inverted bowl. There is a narrow platform around the edge.

AN INTERNIST specializing in cardiovascular diseases was granted a patent on apparatus to simulate heart sounds for medical students.

Dr. Abe Ravin of Denver explains that the traditional method of allowing students to listen to patients' hearts presents difficulties, and that recordings may include background body noises.

His electronic equipment produces the sounds in the proper frequencies, accenting or separating them so they can be recognized. For use in lectures without the machine, the simulated murmurs and other sounds can be taped along with the teacher's voice.

Marina Bluff Homes Reservations Taken

With grading on the nearly five million dollar Marina increment almost complete, reservations are now being made for occupancy in 1969 at the new group of Bluff homes, the developers, George M. Holstein and Sons reported.

"Only a few choice sites remain in our previous group and we are pushing for Spring occupancy at the Marina location," the sales agents, Bluff Realty pointed out in announcing the opening of reservations.

* * * *

THE BLUFF HOMES are priced from $25,000 to $45,000 and offer the buyer a selection of two, three and four-bedroom plan above Upper Newport Bay, adjacent to pool, private park, or with a view to the Pacific, the pioneer development firm explained.

The new group will have pool and green area and grading has taken every advantage of the site that sits above the proposed Upper Bay Marina site on the Upper Bay area of the Irvine Ranch.

Appellate Court Rules Texas Gulf Officer Erred

New York Times Service

Early in November, 1963, a diamond drill bit through the muskegon a plot of land near the mining town of Timmins in Northern Ontario's Kidd Township and began grinding into an ore deposit owned by the Texas Gulf Sulphur Company.

Texas Gulf did not know at the time whether the deposit would prove to be of commercial value, nor could the company guess that it might some day turn out to be one of the wealthiest bodies of copper, zinc and silver ever discovered.

Since then, Texas Gulf has begun bringing the ore out and the area has been named the Kidd Creek Mine.

The full extent of the deposit still has not been determined, but Texas Gulf's earnings have increased rapidly in the intervening years and the concern's stock has become a glamour issue on Wall Street.

THUS IT was ironically appropriate last week that Texas Gulf and its fabulous ore discovery should play the major roles in a court drama whose ramifications are as great for the business community as the discovery was to the mining industry.

The United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit overthrew a lower court decision and ruled that a group of Texas Gulf's top officers had violated the securities laws by stock transactions while keeping the ore strike a secret.

The appellate court, in what is being called a landmark decision, ruled that company insiders — such as Texas Gulf's officers and directors — may not legally trade in their own company's shares if they are privy to inside information not disclosed publicly.

* * * *

THE RULING, although it may go all the way to the Supreme Court for final adjudication, is bound to have an impact on the stock market activities of corporate officials in general and on the disclosure policies of virtually all publicly owned corporations.

It is likely even to affect the availability of information for Wall Street's securities analysts and could result in the formulation of new disclosure rules by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the major stock exchanges.

Interest in the opinion of the nine-judge appellate panel, written by Judge Sterry R. Waterman, was so widespread that the document became an immediate best-seller in the federal courthouse at Foley Square.

The press run was quadrupled and many more copies already have been run off on office duplicating machines.

* * * *

TEXAS GULF'S top officials are shocked and dismayed at the court's ruling. They are businessmen, not criminals, and their dealings in their company's securities could have been considered almost normal practice before the SEC brought its lawsuit against them in 1965.

That lawsuit resulted in the Federal District Court decision in 1966 that was reversed last Tuesday. The lower court decision had absolved 10 Texas Gulf officials while finding that only two had violated the law.

Texas Gulf began conducting aerial geophysical surveys over more than 15,000 square miles of barren land in Eastern Canada early in 1959. These resulted in the detection of numerous "anomalies" — possible locations of ore deposits — and one of those was in Kidd Township, near Timmins.

* * * *

THE TEXAS Gulf insiders who conducted the surveys were Walter Holyk, chief geologist; Richard H. Clayton, an engineer, and Kenneth H. Darke, a field geologist, as well as Richard D. Mollison, a mining engineer and company vice president.

On Oct. 29 and 30, 1963, Clayton confirmed the presence of the anomaly in Kidd Township and it was decided to bring in a drill rig so that the deposit could be evaluated. Drilling began Nov. 8 and ended Nov. 12 after the drill had penetrated 665 feet into the earth.

Holyk analyzed the drill cores visually and estimated that the average copper content was 1.15 per cent and the average zinc content 8.64 per cent over a length of 599 feet.

* * * *

THE GRADE of ore was sufficiently impressive to convince the company that it would be wise to acquire the remainder of the land around the area. Claude O. Stephens, then Texas Gulf's president, told the exploration team to keep the result of the drilling secret.

In the mining business, this is standard operating procedure, because if word of an impressive drill core leaks out, prospectors soon stake out the available land surrounding the suspected ore deposit.

That first drill hole was covered over to make it appear that another one of Texas Gulf's routine drillings had brought home a dud.

Meanwhile, the ore samples disclosed an average mineral content of 1.18 per cent copper, 8.26 per cent zinc and 3.94 ounces of silver per ton.

* * * *

THE SILVER content alone seemed sufficient to pay the costs of excavating the ore.

Texas Gulf went about its land acquisition program and further drilling operations were begun on the anomaly on March 31.

By the evening of April 10, according to court records, two additional holes had been drilled, showing further mineralization. At that point, rumors of a major discovery began to circulate.

Company officials continued to deny that a discovery had been made. On Saturday, April 11, however, newspapers carried reports of the discovery, based on information from Canadian sources.

On April 12, Texas Gulf issued a press release that appeared to discount stories of the discovery, although it did seem to indicate the "possibility" of a strike.

* * * *

FOUR DAYS later Texas Gulf confirmed the discovery of at least 25 million tons of ore cotaining copper, zinc and silver.

Texas Gulf had struck it rich. Its stock went wild on the New York Stock Exchange and soon a full-fledged "copper boom" was on in the stock market. Penny mining stocks also soared on the Canadian stock exchanges in response to unfounded rumors of even greater discoveries.

A year later, the story became even more sensational when the SEC filed its lawsuit against Texas Gulf and its top officers, Charles F. Fogarty, then executive vice president and now president; John A. Murray, the company's office manager; Holyk and Darke, who had purchased more than $100,000 in Texas Gulf stock and "calls" between Nov. 12, 1963 and April 6, 1964.

* * * *

ALSO involved in various securities transactions during that five-month period were Thomas S. Lamont, a company director who also was vice chairman of the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company; Francis G. Coates, another director, and Harold B. Kline, a Texas Gulf vice president and lawyer.

Other company insiders charged by the SEC were Mollison, David M. Crawford, secretary; Clayton and Earl L. Huntington, a company lawyer; as well as Stephens, who since has been named chairman of the board.

Lamont died after being exonerated by the lower court and the SEC's charges against him were dropped.

The lower court in 1966 exonerated all the defendants except Crawford and Clayton. The appeals court last week upheld their conviction ane overthrew the dismissal of charges against Fogarty, Stephens, Mollison, Holyk, Darke, Huntington, Coates and Kline.

The appeals court also ruled that Texas Gulf itself had violated the disclosure provisions of the Securities Act of 1934 by issuing the April 12 news release discounting reports of the discovery that was confirmed only four days later. The court agreed with the SEC that the release had been "false and misleading."

A number of stockholder suits have been filed against Texas Gulf and its officers, as well as against outsiders who bought stock on "tips" from some of the people at Texas Gulf. These suits will be prosecuted fully, in light of the appeals court decision, according to Abraham L. Pomerantz, the Manhattan lawyer representing several of the suing stockholders.

The Kidd Creek mind is in high gear, producing tons of ore a day and fully living up to the expectations of the men who discovered it. And Texas Gulf Sulphur is turning in record profits.

IRVINE TOWERS GOING UP

Checking plans on phase one of Fashion Island's Irvine Towers complex in Newport Beach are Kenneth M. Libby (left), vice president and manager for Security Pacific National Bank, and John W. Millick, project manager for the Irvine Co. Security Bank's proposed Newport Center Office will be on the ground floor of the building (in background) at 550 Newport Center Drive. Libby will manage the office.

Attorney to Talk at Realty Meeting

Attorney Larry Lackman will be the guest speaker for the Thursday meeting of the North Long Beach Real Estate Club.

One of the attorneys for the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, Lackman will discuss real estate law and Realtors.

The meeting is held at the Park Pantry, 17511 S. Susana Rd. at 8:00 a.m.

PORTS O'PROGRESS

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

The Los Angeles Harbor Department has teamed with the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce to sponsor an exhibit depicting various port activities at the County Fair which opened in Pomona Friday.

The exhibit consists of a mock-up of a portion of a ship and a color slide presentation.

* * * *

HARBOR DIVISION police reported an estimated 20,000 viewers lined the route of the "Happiness is a Parade" Sept. 7 which was staged by the Los Angeles Harbor Department in San Pedro to celebrate the 187th Anniversary of the founding of the City of Los Angeles.

* * * *

DURING A RECENT audience with Queen Elizabeth II in Scotland, Dr. Mary Mahl, associate professor of English at USC, mentioned to the queen she lived in Southern California.

The reigning monarch then remarked she knew the Queen Mary was anchored in Long Beach Harbor which she had heard was "a fine place for her."

We agree!

* * * *

THE LONG BEACH HARBOR DEPARTMENT, acting on a recommendation of James H. McJunkin, director of Port Development, will change the time-honored method of charging for piloting ships in and out of the port.

McJunkin noted that at recent international convention, ratified by the United States, the method of measuring the gross registered tonnage of vessels was changed with the result many vessels are now rated one-third smaller.

Since pilotage rates were assessed on a basis of the vessel's gross registered tonnage, pilotage revenues would be drastically reduced.

At McJunkin's suggestion the Board of Harbor Commissioners altered the port tariff so that future pilotage fees will be based on the overall length of the vessle rather than on the gross registered tonnage.

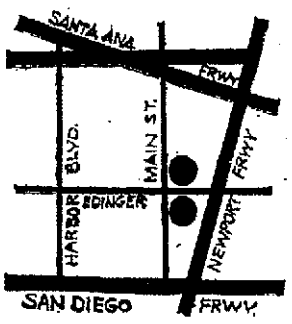

John F. Parkinson, assistant general manager of the Port of Los Angeles, has indicated that Los Angeles probably would take similar action in the near future.

Cars of America-Tomorrow Displayed by Auto Makers

By C. YATES McDANIEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The auo industry displayed futuristic vehicles and devices here amid accusations of "passive disinterest" in licking problems of air pollution and safety.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) made the complaint while commending the Transportation Department for sponsoring the "Cars of America-Tomorrow" show in the capital.

The public, flocking to the outdoor exhibit, saw a score of cars powered by electricity, steam, gas turbines and some combinations of energy sources. Also on the show were the latest ideas to make batteries last longer and tires sun safely, and dream devices to cut down on accidents and relieve the clogging of city streets.

* * * *

JUST TO SHOW that the future horseless carriage may not really be as new as young Americans might think, there were relics of the past — electric and steam cars that were overpowered some decades ago by the gasoline buggy. Some of the machines being most touted now are only refined versions of the oldsters.

Ford Motor gave its first public showing of the Techna experimental car which incorporates dozens of ideas for the near future. Ford also is showing a car with a gold-plated steering wheel that "reads palms," testing, measuring and qualifying a driver's physical and mechanical actions and reactions.

General Motors was on hand at the two-day exhibit with its Sterling Electric, a car combining electrical and combustion engine power with low pollution emission.

ANOTHER ELECTRIC-GASOLINE powered car for the future was here from the University of Pennsylvania, and American Motors was showing several battery and power cell schemes to let people travel without fouling the air.

TOPS IN POWER

Clara Higgins spins the world's most powerful transistor, developed by RCA for the U.S. Air Force and Navy. The experimental device, resembling a toy top, employs a new laminar construction technology, and the transistor has already produced power outputs of 800 watts at broadcast frequencies — three times the power generated by many broadcast radio stations.

School Within Easy Walk in El Dorado

Children of residents of El Dorado Park Estates, Long Beach, will return to school Monday to Douglas Newcomb Elementary, one of the finest schools in California.

ifornia.

The school is located within the development and El Dorado children can easily walk to school.

"Because classes are uncrowded, individual attention to the needs of the child is assured," according to sales and marketing director, Jerry Henderson.

THE FIRST 8 GRADES are within the walls of the community and high schools and Long Beach State College are nearby.

El Dorado is another high quality development by S & S Construction Co., builders of over 13,000 fine homes in southern California.

Another factor in El Dorado's continuing popularity with homebuyers is its location. Immediately adjacent is the famous 758 acre El Dorado Park, one of the largest in the nation.

The city park's master plan already includes an 18 hole golf course, lakes, fountains, youth and adult centers, and playgrounds throughout.

IN THE HOMES themselves, the emphasis is on excellence. Everything that goes into an El Dorado home is of the finest quality.

S & S maintains its own architectural staff to provide the most beautiful, livable and enduring home on the market.

Every El Dorado home is built of genuine lath and plaster, a construction rarity today. Among the luxurious features in these extra spacious homes are imported marble entries, custom cut-crystal chandeliers, natural stone, marble or bric fireplaces, wall to wall carpeting throughout.

El Dorado Park Estates, priced from $38,450 may be seen daily by taking the San Diego Freeway, south, to Studebaker Rd. turnoff, North to Spring, right on Spring to El Dorado model home area.

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

Some Small Units Contain Half Rooms to Comply with Law

By DON G. CAMPBELL

Happily, some things in life are pretty constant. A floor is still the part of a room that rests under the feet, and the ceiling is still the thing that keeps the dining room chandelier from falling into everyone's soup. But, in some other respects, words have gotten pretty tricky.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I'm trying to rent a furnished apartment and I've gotten pretty frustrated trying to figure out what landlords mean when they advertise "2½" or "3½" rooms. What is a half-room?

I've seen half-rooms advertised that are so small you could hardly turn around in them while others are big enough to be called a full-sized room.

What does the law say a half-room is?

Miss L.P.

ANSWER: The law remains discreetly silent on the subject. Granted, in some cities, such as New York, the local real estate board has laid down some pretty rigid definitions that its members must follow in describing rental property.

In New York City, for instance, you can't designate any space as being a half-room unless it is a bona fide sleeping alcove, dining foyer or a maid's room. And, under the same code, you can't say that an apartment has a kitchen if there is nothing there but a sink and a hot plate. It has to have a stove and refrigerator and be no smaller than 50 square feet — at least 7 feet long and 7 feet wide, for instance.

But, in most parts of the country, half-room means just about what the landlord chooses to make it mean.

As a matter of curiosity I sampled local opinion on the meaning of the phrase, "3½-room apartment." Most of those queried assumed that the half-room designation referred to the bathroom, although others took the position that bathroom was implied in the word apartment and that the half-room meant variously "a Pullman kitchen, a dining alcove, a walk-in closet, or a foyer or entry area of some kind."

So, you pays your dime and you takes your chances.

* * * *

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

We've had our home on the market, without success, for about four months now and have just changed brokers. The new one isn't doing any better for us than the other one did, however, and I'm getting pretty burned up about it.

Both brokers have given me the old line about how "things are slow all over," but it doesn't seem to stop other people around here from selling their homes. Is there any way to force a broker into working harder, or is laziness just a characteristic of the breed?

Mr. S.A.

ANSWER: Whoops. Temper! Temper!

There are, certainly, such things as lazy real estate brokers — also lazy columnists, lazy beauty shop operators and lazy bricklayers. It's even within the realm of possibility that you had the supreme bad luck of drawing two equally lazy brokers right in a row.

Frankly, though, the fact that neither broker has done much for you (and, let's face it, the second one hasn't been on the job very long), might indicate that the trouble lies somewhere else, and particularly so if the property is being adequately advertised, shown and if comparable property is moving well.

The time has obviously come in your situation when you should sit down with the broker and be mutually candid. Is the house overpriced? This takes a little soul searching, but an out-of-line price is undoubtedly one of the biggest barriers in a sale. If the broker suggests scaling the price down, I would be inclined to go along with him.

Is there a major flaw scaring buyers away? Again, be frank with yourself and, if necessary, be prepared to spend some money for repairs. Or, possibly, the house is too high priced, even though fairly priced. There are, after all, a limited number of buyers available to swing the financing on a $50,000 house. Maybe, in this case, your broker can arrange a trade with the owner of a middle-priced home who wants to move up. In this way you can pocket the cash difference and then concentrate on selling the buyer's more modestly priced home.

I can't help thinking that there has been a breakdown in communications between you and your brokers.

* * * *

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

We developed a sudden leak in the roof above our dining room about a year ago and, of course, had it repaired promptly. But is there anything we can do about the ugly spot caused by the leak and which ruins the whole appearance of the ceiling?

Mrs. L.T.

ANSWER: Try whisking off the loose plaster, lightly, with a wire brush and then wash the spot with a solution of zinc oxide. When this has dried, apply two coats of aluminum paint, allowing each to dry

Beachfront Profits Might Soar--or Be Washed Away

Special to Progress Section

No one better understands the proverb, "time and tide wait for no man," than the professional appraiser of oceanfront properties.

Nor does anyone better appreciate how rapidly the value of beachfront real estate can soar—provided all of the investor's profits will not suddenly vanish with the shifting sands washed away by an ocean storm.

Stanley H. Yorshis, a member of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and the Supervising Land Agent for the Property Acquisition Service of the State of California, is one expert with an abiding appreciation of the ocean's influence on adjacent real estate, based on more than a decade of experience appraising and acquiring properties for that state's Division of Beaches and Parks.

* * * *

WRITING in the current issue of the Appraisal Institute's quarterly "Appraisal Journal," Yorshis gives fair warning of one of the unique problems which set oceanfront appraisals apart from other types of valuations.

"Even though the appraiser may have a map, a title report, or a legal description of the property," he writes, "he must realize that he cannot treat the oceanfront property as a fixed parcel of ground—it is a property with fixed boundaries on three sides, and a fluctuating boundary on the fourth (along the water)."

Referring to price trends for oceanfront lots, he reports that in the metropolitan Los Angeles and Orange County it has been a rule of thumb that prices increase approximately 25 per cent a year—although there has been a relative stability in prices in this area since 1965.

* * * *

OCEANFRONT properties are susceptible to gentle, to catastrophic, and to all degrees of "in-between" forces of nature, as well as to the never-ending desire of man to improve upon the natural shoreline through the construction of fills, breakwaters, piers, marinas and what have you.

But any of these factors can open a Pandora's box of related sub-problems involving ambiguous definitions and sometimes conflicting legal decisions in respect to "who owns what portion of the shoreline" (after it has shifted); who or what caused it to meander; and finally, which particular property owner is the gainer or loser?

The worst inconsistencies among legal verdicts, according to Yorshis, involve the question of title to land formed by accretion, where the word accretion is defined "as the process of gradual and imperceptible addition to riparian or littoral lands, caused by the water's action in washing up sand, earth, and other materials."

* * * *

GENERAL common law rules that "accretion benefits the upland owner;" and the rule generally is the same whether the accretion is artificial or natural.

This is based on an axiom of justice: that one who bears the risk of loss to his property through inroads of the sea (erosion) should benefit by corresponding gains.

To complicate matters in California, however, courts there have ruled that the state is the owner of such additions, unless the upland property owner can prove that the accretion resulted from nature.

Such proof is difficult at best.

Cases show that any determination as to whether a beach (in its natural state) was prograding, regressive, or in a state of equilibrium, is virtually impossible because of the continuous effect of man-made structures.

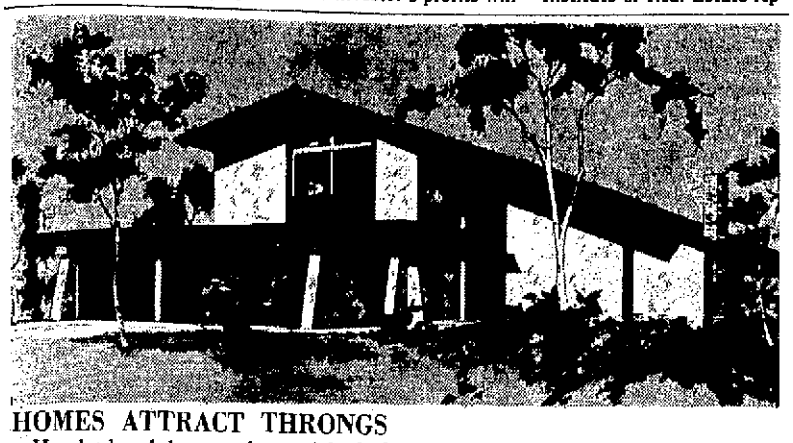

And if it were possible to evaluate such an effect, from what point does the evaluation begin?

* * * *

AS YORSHIS writes: "Maps and surveys of the coastline's original state are rare and unreliable, eyewitnesses are not available, and even expert witnesses reach conflicting opinions."

The price per front foot along the nearest street running parallel to the ocean is the common denominator used to appraise most oceanfront property, Yorshis explains.

The lineal depth of the lot generally is without significance except for residential income properties where the total lot area controls the number of dwelling units which can be developed, or for commercial lots which must make provisions for off-street parking.

HOMES ATTRACT THRONGS

Hundreds of homeseekers visited the St. Francis Homes development the past week end and enthusiasm was high, reports Howard Boone, sales agent. Here is one model of the homes which are now selling on Downey Avenue just north of South Street. Prices range from $30,500 to $33,950.

EXCLUSIVE FEATURE

"Parent-Saver Retreat" is the trade name for builder Wm. Lyon's special adult apartment entered only through the master bedroom suite. This unusual architecture feature can be found at Franciscan Fountains in Huntington Beach on Slater Street between Edwards and Golden West. New homes are priced from $28,400 to $36,475. From the Long Beach area take Pacific Coast Highway to Bolsa Chica just below Huntington Harbour and drive to Warner—east to Edwards, then south to Slater and the models.

Datatron Building Launched

Datatron, Inc., manufacment serving special needs of the computer industry, of the computeri ndustry, has started the first 20,000 square feet increment of their planned 80,000 square feet facility in Irvine.

Designed, engineered, financed and leased by Santa Ana-based Birtcher Pacific, completion of the initial unit is expected immediately. The second 20,000 square feet increment anticipated for completion within a year, according to Ron Birtcher, official of the building - investment organization, who negotiated with Datatron's president, Arthur L. Purcilly and his associates.

* * * *

LOCATED on a 7.8 acre site, on the Irvine Industrial Complex, at 1526 Reynolds Avenue, Irvine, the Datatron plant will represent an original investment of $580,000, Birtcher stated.

Datatron began operations a little over a year ago with seven men experienced in the computer field. They realized the need for low cost, high performance digital data systems, timing instrumentation and data transmission systems in the fast-growing commercial and military markets.

Home Builders Tuned to Changing Statistics

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the successful builder today knowledge of bricks and mortar is not enough; it takes an alertness to the many influences on home buying — things such as marriages, births and geography.

It behooves the builder to keep up on statistics. Take the marriage and birth rates, for instance. Although the two always have gone hand in hand as factors determining the rate and type of new home construction, currently they are going in opposite directions — and the slowdown in births is seen as the stronger influence affecting the type of new-home starts.

Recently published Department of Commerce statistics show the marriage rate has risen steadily and now is close to 10 per cent per thousand population. This is pushing the demand for new dwellings, estimated this year to reach 1.5 million new starts.

* * * *

AT THE same time, however, the birth rate has been decreasing. In the latest 12-month period it was 17.6 per thousand population, as against 20 or more in the post-war years prior to 1965. Builders see this reflected in the recent demand for more apartment units.

Geographic location, too, makes a difference in a builder's planning. Design and construction vary in different parts of the country, reflecting climate, material availability, traditions and preferences of buyers.

Take home appliances. All builders know these help to sell a house. But geography plays a part in just what appliances a buyer will consider necessary.

Herbert Bladh, general manager of the NuTone division of Scovill Manufacturing Co., a leading supplier to the home building industry, estimates, for instance, that one of every four residential starts this year will have one or more ceiling or wall electric auxiliary heat units.

* * * *

DEMAND for these secondary home heating sources is greatest in the South and in areas of cheap electric power, particularly in the Pacific Northwest and the TVA area, Bladh notes.

Historically, this type of auxiliary heat began to appear in better homes in the South and Southeast around 1949. This is an area where spring and fall often bring warm days but chilly nights. Homeowners preferred this type of secondary heating to starting up the central heating system, they gained popularity quickly and builders now find they are expected as part of the home equipment package in this area.

Bladh notes a set of statistics which, unfortunately, are assuming a new importance — the figures on home burglary. These statistics, showing an increase of 55 per cent since 1960, with suburban residential areas of the country suffering the greatest increase, have given rise to growing demand among home buyers for detection and alarm systems.

* * * *

FOR HOMES equipped with intercom systems — and the National Association of Home Builders estimates almost 25 per cent of all new homes built this year will be so equipped — Bladh says builders have found it simple and inexpensive to add intruder alarm devices.

He says orders indicate that home builders adding this type of equipment are responsive to the geographic incidence of home burglaries. According to FBI statistics, Bladh says, the western states, with an offender rate of 216 per 100,000 population in 1966 far exceeded the rates of other American regions in crimes of this nature. Nationally, 145 out of every 100,000 persons were arrested for burglary in 1966.

Regionally, the Southern states, with an offender rate of 152 per 100,000 persons ranked second in incidence of crimes of this nature. The North Central states, with an offender rate of 133 per 100,000 population, followed. Safest, relatively speaking, are the Northeastern states with an offender rate of 106 per 100,000 population.

Bladh says both builder and buyer are becoming concerned with loss of life and property caused by home fires every year, and fire alarm systems are another appliance gaining importance. In 1967, he noted, home fires claimed 6,500 lives and destroyed

Merrill Lynch Case Big Boost to Small Investor

By TERRY ROBARDS
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — One of Wall Street's oldest adages holds that the little guy — the small investor — is always wrong. He sells when he should be buying and he buys when he should be selling — while the big investors are making all the profits.

Any investor who doubted the truth of the adage might well be changing his opinion in the wake of two of the most significant cases the Securities and Exchange Commission has taken up in years.

The combined impact of the S.E.C.'s administrative proceeding against Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., last week and the landmark appellate court victory for the S.E.C. in the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. "insiders" case Aug. 13 will drastically change the securities laws dealing with as the position of the small investor.

* * * *

BOTH CASES deal directly with the use of significant inside information that was not available to the public and both indicate that the S.E.C. has adopted a harder line in its interpretation of the sections of the securities laws dealing with such information.

Even though the Texas Gulf Sulphur case may ultimately be decided by the United States Supreme Court and the S.E.C. has yet to prove its allegations in the Merrill Lynch case, the nature and handling of inside information already are changing.

The changes will reduce the advantage of insiders — the officers, directors and key employes of corporations and, since last week, Wall Street's large institutional investors. The small investor thus should wind up on a more nearly equal footing than ever before.

* * * *

"THE commission is attempting to put the small investor on as equal a footing as possible in the marketplace," said Mahlon M. Frankhauser, New York regional administrator for the S.E.C. and one of the two men who supervised the Merrill Lynch investigation.

Frankhauser, 36 years old, has headed the S.E.C.'s New York operation since December, 1966.

Prior to joining the New York office he was assistant director of the S.E.C.'s division of trading and markets in Washington.

This division conducted the investigation of the Merrill Lynch case in conjunction with the New York regional office. Stanley Sporkin, associate director of the division of trading and markets, also supervised the investigation and Irwin Borowski was the chief investigator.

The S.E.C. charged that Merrill Lynch and 14 of its executives and salesmen committed fraud by furnishing information about an earnings decline at the Douglas Aircraft Co. to 15 investment companies before the information was available to the public.

* * * *

ACCORDING to the commission, the information enabled these large institutional clinets to avoid losses by selling their Douglas shares or to make profits by selling Douglas shares short. (Profits are made in short sales when a stock's price declines.)

Merrill Lynch, the S.E.C. charged, learned about the earnings decline at Douglas through its role as prospective managing underwriter for a Douglas issue of $75 million in convertible debentures. The brokerage house was compensated for providing the information, the S.E.C. charges, through the receipt of brokerage commission and customer-directed "give-ups."

A give-up is a practice common in the securities industry whereby a large institutional investor directs a portion of the commission on a securities transaction to be given up to a brokerage firm other than the one that actually executed the transaction.

THE PRACTICE is used by institutions, such as mutual funds and pension funds, to reward brokerage houses for providing various services including research. The "service" allegedly provided by Merrill Lynch in connection with Douglas was the information about the earnings decline.

The use of the information by the institutions, according to the S.E.C., also constituted fraud and such concerns as the Dreyfus Corp., A. W. Jones & Co. and the Madison Fund were charged with securities law violations.

The Texas Gulf Sulphur case was different, in that no one outside the big minerals company was charged with violations. The court of appeals ruled that a group of Texas Gulf's officers had breached the law by buying Texas Gulf stock, "calls" on stock or accepting stock options without disclosing what they knew about a huge copper, zinc and silver discovery in Kidd Township, Ontario.

* * * *

THE EFFECT of the Texas Gulf Sulphur case has been to define more clearly the obligations of corporate personnel who are in possession of significant inside information. The Merrill Lynch case appears to extend the definition of an insider beyond the corporate boundaries to anyone who received and acts upon inside information.

The fundamental issue in both cases involves the small investor and his right to know as much as anyone else when he makes a securities transaction.

The S.E.C.'s suit against the Texas Gulf Sulphur insiders, filed in 1965, already has resulted in numerous other lawsuits alleging financial damages to stockholders who sold their holdings.

The Merrill Lynch case may also unleash a flood of stockholder suits against the brokerage house and the 15 institutions, legal experts say.

What makes both cases unique is that the use of inside information and its availability to large financial institutions are rather common in Wall Street.

The Texas Gulf Sulphur case and the Merrill Lynch case strike at the core of this practice. As a result, the interests of the little guy are becoming much bigger on Wall Street.

'GOOSE BUMPS' WITH 30TH WIN

Detroit Dizzy for Denny

DETROIT (AP) — Denny McLain was blinking at exploding flash bulbs and trying to contend with rapid-fire questions in the Detroit dressing room Saturday after winning his 30th game when Sandy Koufax grabbed his attention.

The former lefthanded great of the Dodgers, now a TV announcer, yelled to McLain:

"No one's left the ball park. They're screaming out there for you."

"I'll go," said McLain. "I want to go."

At the same time, more police had to be called to hold back a large group of strong-voiced youths who pounded on the Detroit dressing room and yelled over and over again, "We want Denny, we want Denny."

While that noise echoed through the dressing room, McLain finally admitted that he had been under pressure in the three days before his bid to become the first 30-game winner in the majors since Dizzy Dean in 1934.

"It's been on my mind the last couple of days," he said, although previously he had denied he had been giving it too much thought.

"It really built up right from the beginning of the game," he continued. "There was a great amount just trying to keep up close after we fell behind.

"But you probably could feel it, too. The people out there went crazy when we won it, and so did I."

The 24-year-old righthander came to the ball park just a little over two hours before he was scheduled to pitch and said his activities Saturday morning and the night before had just about been routine.

And then he had gone out to pitch, eventually falling behind 4-3 on Reggie Jackson's second homer before Al Kaline started off a ninth-inning rally that proved decisive by drawing a walk.

"I had plenty of stuff," said McLain. "I made only one bad pitch. Jackson's first homer was off a good pitch. The second was a terrible pitch. I thought I pitched a good ball game.

"No, I didn't think we were going to lose. I always think I'm going to win. And when we came to bat in the ninth, I half expected it, especially the way this club is. And then when Al got on . . ."

One out later, Mickey Stanley singled and Jim Northrup followed with a bouncer to first. Danny Cater fired home wild, letting the tying run score, and Willie Horton followed with a line drive over the left fielder's head that won it.

"I was sitting next to Denny on the bench when Horton hit it," Kaline said. "He jumped up like he didn't believe it and raced out there to get at Horton."

What were his feelings at the time?

"It's hard to describe," said McLain, who very often has a sharp reply for almost anything.

He thought a moment and then, in somewhat of a departure for him, answered in a somewhat mundane way:

"I guess I got goose bumps and everything."

The victory, Detroit's fifth straight and 28th in its final turn at bat this year, cut the Tigers' magic number for clinching the American League pennant to four. They lead second-place Baltimore by 9½ games with 13 to play.

'I Had It Tougher,' Says Dean

DETROIT (UPI)—"They won't have this much excitement there if they win the World Series."

Dizzy Dean, his arms wrapped around Denny McLain after the Tiger pitcher won his 30th game of the season, came 1,400 miles for the event Saturday. He wasn't disappointed.

"I wanted him to win today," he said.

Dean, the majors' last 30-game winner, had a 30-7 record for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1934.

"I had it a little tougher than McLain," said Dean. "His teams' been out in front and he's had his rest. I pitched in and out of turn and in relief in September."

But Dean added, "He's got a great competitive spirit and determination. He deserves to win 30."

* * * *

DEAN and McLain had the same uniform numbers, 17, and were the same age, 24, in their 30-game seasons.

Robert (Lefty) Grove was the last American League pitcher to win 30 games. He posted a 31-4 record for the old Philadelphia Athletics in 1931.

The modern major league record of 41 victories was set by Jack Chesbro of the New York Highlanders—now the Yankees—in 1904.

Ref Enrages Swedes --Ellis Over Patterson

Combined News Services

STOCKHOLM — Floyd Patterson said Saturday he believed he had beaten World Boxing Assn. champion Jimmy Ellis when he heard the final bell in their 15-round title fight.

"I believed I had won — but, of course, it's the referee's decision," said the sad-eyed ex-champion. "I felt I was on top for most of the time. I don't count the punches in a fight, but I suppose the referee does.

"But I must admit that I had high hopes when I stood there and waited for the decision. It was sort of a shock that it went against me."

Other Photos . . . S-7

Referee Harry Valan of New York, the sole judge, gave Ellis a 9-6 edge and reaped such violent fan reaction he had to have police protection when he left the ring.

Most of the 25,000 fans thought Patterson was winning. He had scored the most obviously telling blows, including a right — the first real punch of the fight — in the first round that broke Ellis' nose.

But Ellis did his damage in close, drawing Patterson into numerous clinches. At the end, however, his battered nose, which bled intermittently throughout the fight, was flowing profusely, giving further rise to the bulk of the fans' belief that Patterson had won.

In contrast, Patterson was virtually unmarked.

When Valan raised Ellis' hand, he was greeted with a deafening roar of boos and catcalls.

Ellis, a 28-year-old father of six from Louisville, Ky., was making the first defense of the title he won April 27 by outpointing Jerry Quarry.

Patterson, 33, said he had talked of quitting if he lost Saturday's fight.

"But I'm not so sure now," he said. "After all, it makes a difference how

EVEN McLAIN WAITS IN LINE

DETROIT (AP) — Denny McLain had a lot on his mind Saturday when he finished warming up for his 30th victory.

But as he reached the dressing room, there was a young crippled boy sitting in a wheelchair getting autographs, surrounded by several Tigers waiting in line to sign.

McLain got at the end of the line.

6 OF 8 WRITERS PICK PATTERSON

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — The majority of international sports writers and boxing officials who watched the Jimmy Ellis-Floyd Patterson world heavyweight title fight from ringside Saturday felt the wrong man got the decision.

Of eight writers polled, six had Patterson as winner.

Uncle Sam's Best Boasts Evans--44.0

ECHO SUMMIT, Calif. (AP) — Lee Evans, wearing the same type track shoes that might have cost John Carlos a world record at 200 meters, bettered the world standard at 400 meters Saturday by four-tenths of a second, finishing in 44 seconds flat.

In setting the fourth world record at the U.S. Olympic track and field trials, Evans, following a torrid early pace by Vince Matthews, caught Larry James about 20 meters from the finish and won by a meter.

James, a Villanova sophomore, was caught in 44.1. Ron Freeman of Arizona State University took the third place on the Olympic team with a 44.6 clocking.

The recognized world record at 400 meters is 44.5, set by Tommie Smith, but Matthews has a pending mark of 44.4 that he set in a pre-trial meet at this high altitude site late last month.

Evans, a 21-year-old student at San Jose State College, generally is recognized as the best in the world at this distance after beating James for the national collegiate championship at Berkeley, Calif., in June. He also won the AAU championships.

Evans wore the shoes used on rubberized tracks, such as the Tartan one used here, that do not meet international specifications. Carlos wore the same type Thursday when dashing to a 19.7 clocking in the 200, beating the established record by three-tenths of a second.

Each shoe has 68 tiny metal spikes, referred to as brushes, instead of the maximum eight spikes approved for international competition.

James was wearing the approved shoes and thus, if Evans' record is not allowed, it is conceivable James could be given credit for the world record.

Meet officials took the precaution of having him fill out a record application.

TARTAN TURF TITANIC

Vols Rally, Tie Georgia

New York Times Service

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — In a wildly exciting game that will be remembered by football historians both for how it was played and what it was played on, Tennessee gained an incredible 17-17 tie with Georgia Saturday at Neyland Stadium here.

The orange-clad Volunteers did it by scoring a touchdown on the last play of the game, then adding two points with a conversion pass.

A crowd of 60,603, largest to view a football contest in the state of Tennessee, roared deliriously as Bubba Wyche hit Gary Kreis with a 21-yard pass for the touchdown. They lost control of themselves completely as Wyche, a senior quarterback from Atlanta, faded back and flipped the tying conversion pass to Kenny DeLong, a junior end from Norfolk, Va.

The improbable finish to this nationally televised Southeastern Conference opener proved that football on Tartan Turf the newest synthetic playing surface, can be just as exciting as football on regular grass.

The ruglike Tartan surface, making its debut, provided a vividly green background for the record crowd at recently expanded Neyland Stadium and for perhaps 25,000,000 television viewers.

Looking like the world's largest billiard table, the Tartan Turf indicated in its debut that defenders and punters, as well as runners, may benefit from its firm, uniform footing.

Pre-Season Pollsters Go Out on a Limb

One thing consistent about this coming college football season will be its inconsistency, at least if the various pre-campaign polls are any measure.

For instance, in glancing over six polls one will find three different teams selected to be No. 1 in '68 — USC, Notre Dame and Purdue. Then, the Texas Aggies are picked third by one seer with Texas tabbed 13th. On the other hand, another selector ranked Texas No. 3, but didn't even have the Aggies among his top 20 teams.

One pollster ranks Oregon State, Florida and Texas A&M over both Notre Dame and USC. Ohio State is ranked second by another chap with somebody else tabbing the Buckeyes for 17th.

Only thing that seems certain as a result of this autumn madness is that Purdue will be the Big Ten's representative in the Rose Bowl Game. The Trojans have been given an edge as the Western representative, but the crystal-ball gazers rate Oregon State as a solid threat to dethrone Johnny McKay's boys.

Our forecast shows the top 10 rated in this order: 1. Notre Dame; 2. Purdue; 3. USC; 4. Texas; 5. Oklahoma; 6. Oregon State; 7. Tennessee; 8. Penn State; 9. Ohio State; 10. Alabama.

The Irish figure to capitalize on the aerial combination of Terry Hanratty to Jim Seymour. Hanratty has been so outstanding that Coley O'Brien, almost anyone else's No. 1 quarterback, has been shifted to defense, the only area in which the Irish show weakness.

Picking Purdue to finish behind Notre Dame was difficult. But the Boilermakers seem almost too good to be true, Sometimes a bad sign, with 28 returning lettermen, Leroy Keyes, the Heisman Trophy aspirant, and quarterback Mike Phipps, who set Purdue records for yards gained and passes thrown during the past season.

Out here, O.J. Simpson's team has the edge — on paper. Graduation hit the USC football team hard, but not as bad as some might be led to think. Oregon State has a good shot for the championship, its only apparent real difficult opponent is USC. "Earthquake" Enyart might be the nation's best fullback. But the Beavers have very weak passing.

UCLA can't be discounted with the wily Tommy Prothro at the helm. Swiftie Mickey Cureton and quarterback Bill Bolden are the keys to the Bruin's fortunes this season. Washington figures to be in the middle of the pack, but also has a problem with its aerial attack. Cal and Stanford — well, they'll still be Cal and Stanford, winning one, losing one. Washington State and Oregon will fight for the cellar.

On one thing you can count: Grambling will bag the Southwestern Athletic Conference title. So what else is new?

NIGHT TRAIN: Was there ever a big time college football team that played every game at night? Probably not — not even Miami of Florida, whose schedule takes it too often into less sunny climes. Louisiana State U. is coming close to an all-night schedule this year. Traditionally, the Bayou Bengals have played virtually all their home games under the lights and many years more than half of their 10-game schedule has been played at night. This year, nine of LSU's 10 games will be played at night!

. . . Fans in Boston really believe that high school football in greater Boston is tops. "Nuts . . . they are sadly mistaken," Harold Kaese writes. "Only two big time college teams do any extensive recruiting in the area — Syracuse and Wyoming. In the past, Notre Dame, Michigan State, Clemson, Wake Forest and others recruited extensively in the Northeast."

. . . Bob Cahill, Notre Dame ticket boss: "Our sales have been so good here that I sold out an open date."

. . . Jack Curtice, Santa Barbara: "I got into coaching 30 years too soon. I used to think it was something for a coach to have a car, but now most of them have a private plane. Having to drive my Cadillac is distressing."

* * * *

NOBODY IS TELLING Polish jokes around Columbus these days, the Ohio State people report. Said one gentleman: "We have Ron Maciejowski at quarterback, and Bruce Jankowski, John Sobolewski and, if that isn't enough, Mike Polaski plays safety. On the other hand we have four Smiths, twice the strength of the cough drop lads — Bruce, Craig and two Bobs. Looks like a helluva season. the radio lads already are beginning to throw in the towel."

. . . The Denver Broncos' defensive line coach, Stan Jones, after hearing that an erratic former college passer was about to enter Army service: "They'd better not give him any hand grenades."

. . . Darrel Royal, Texas coach: "I was an also-ran in a cow milking contest staged atop the Tower of the Americas (622 feet high) at the San Antonio Fair. But I had alibis galore. The cow kicked ove rthe milk bucket. The one-minute time limit didn't give a ball-control coach like me much time to get my offense moving and, anyway, I'm more accustomed to working with Longhorns."

. . . Don Faurot, who retired as Missouri athletic director a year ago and now is in the alumni activities office: "I spent 32 years running away from the alumni and now I am chasing them. What a change of pace."

. . . The Long pigskin season has begun. When will baseball finish?

Husker FG Wins, 13-10

LINCOLN, Neb.—(UPI)—Nebraska sophomore Paul Rogers, playing his first collegiate football game, kicked a 51-yard field goal with 21 seconds to play Saturday to give Nebraska a 13-10 win over Wyoming in the season opener for both clubs.

Nebraska had tied the game just minutes earlier when reserve quarterback Ernie Sigler capped a 71-yard drive with a 17-yard pass to end Jim McFarland to tie the contest.

Rogers' field goal heroics came when Wyoming pushed Nebraska back to the Wyoming 35-yard line after the Cornhuskers had marched to the Cowpokes' 10.

It was Rogers' second field goal of the game. The 5-10 187-pounder opened Nebraska's scoring with a first quarter 25-yard kick after Wyoming took a 10-point lead.

Vikes Show Edge Over Harbor, 3-2

By DAVE DANIEL

As the old song goes, "It's a good day from morning 'til night."

And for Long Beach City College, the song adage holds true after a 3-2 scrimmage victory over Harbor College at Veterans Stadium Saturday afternoon.

"It's about what we expected," said LBCC head coach Paul Chafe after noting that the ground game of the Vikings did most of the damage against the Seahawks.

"That's what we worked for and I'm happy," he said after the Vikings had rolled up 332 yards total offense and 14 first downs in the 48 play controlled scrimmage.

On the other hand, Harbor managed only 181 yards total offense with 130 of those coming on the ground on sweeps to the outside.

The Viking ground game came around and ran off 32 of the 48 plays and netted 204 yards or 6.4 yards per carry and that gave the Vikings the boost they needed.

But the quarterback Dennis Dummit was highly effective by connecting on nine of 13 passes for two of the Viking tallies and keeping the Harbor defense at bay.

The front-line defense, anchored by big Jim Blalock on one side and John Aronson on the other, kept the hard-charging Harbor fullbacks contained on up the middle bursts.

Despite the roughness of the scrimmage, only linebacker Buster La Coste was injured. The 5-7, 215-pounder sprained an ankle in the first series and was sidelined on crutches the remainder of the afternoon.

The running game was headed by Merino, 1965 letterman Larry Walters, freshman Ed Giles and newcomer Bill Ross, who checked out equipment for the first time Thursday.

FIGHT---

you lose. I think I had a very good fight tonight."

Patterson had only praise for his opponent.

"Ellis is a real great fighter both in the ring and outside. He is a brave boxer and a nice man.

"It was a completely clean fight — no butting, no dirty punches. He hit me, but I was never hurt. It's obvious that Cassius Clay has taught Ellis the trade, but Ellis takes greater risks and has a longer reach.

"His long punches were difficult but they never hurt me," Patterson said.

He agreed with the referee and Ellis that there was no knockdown in the 14th round.

"Ellis slipped after he took a punch from me. I helped him up," Patterson said.

Patterson also thanked the Swedish crowd "which supported me marvelously all the way. I will remain in Sweden for a few days now to thank them."

Patterson's handlers were not as diplomatic as their employer.

"The biggest theft since the Great Train Robbery," one of them said. Valan one of them said.

Valan said, "Ellis landed the most punches, and you have to score for the man who lands the punches."

"Jimmy fought all three minutes of every round going after him. Floyd fought for less than one minute and you cannot win a fight just backing and covering up.

"Still, it was close. I had Patterson in the 13th and 14th, but in the last round Jimmy was so good it decided it."

The fans chanted, "Floyd champ, Floyd champ," in English, and surged in on the boxers as they left the ring. For a moment it looked rough, and some of the ringside spectators were thrown over onto their chairs, but a police squad cleared the way to the dressing room.

Ellis fought the last 14 rounds with a broken nose. Patterson smashed it in the first round with what looked like a good right hook.

Afterward, Ellis' manager, Angelo Dundee, said the nose was broken by a butt — two, in fact.

Dundee said he was not suggesting that the butts were on purpose.

For Patterson, twice world heavyweight champion and a perpetual artist, it was a creditable performance at the age of 33. Many experts had doubted that Floyd would last the distance.

MINNESOTA RECORD

Kapp Crushes Atlanta, 47-7

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Joe Kapp passed for three touchdowns and led the Minnesota Vikings on a record scoring spree and a crushing 47-7 victory over Atlanta Saturday night in the opening game of the National Football League season.

Bill Brown scored three times — once on a 37-yard pass from Kapp and twice on one-yard plunges — as the Vikings beat their previous regular season high of 45 points, and also their top winning margin of 31 points.

The Vikings took a 3-0 lead at the end of the first quarter on Fred Cox's 43-yard field goal, then blew the game open with four touchdowns in the second period.

Kapp hit on 16 of 20 passes for 191 yards. He threw a 17-yard touchdown pass to Billy Martin five minutes into the second period after the Vikings recovered a fumble by Phil Spiller.

Two minutes later, Atlanta quarterback Randy Johnson fumbled on the Falcons' 17 and Paul Krause recovered for Minnesota. Kapp passed to Brown on the one and, on the next play, Brown plunged over.

Cox hit a 35-yard field goal late in the third period after Brandan McCarthy plunged one yard for the Falcons' only score, made possible by a fumble recovery on the Minnesota 24.

Nobody More Fit Than 25 Girl Runners

Nobody was happier among the 325 entrants that turned out Saturday for the third Long Beach Comet Invitational Beach Run when their event was over than the girls entered in the 9- and-under race

The race, originally scheduled for three-quarters of a mile, turned into a 2-mile affair after somebody threw away the markers as a prank.

The 25 girls, ranging in age from 5 to 9, ran all the way to the adult marker one mile west of Belmont Pier and back. All finished.

Women (2 miles) — Mo Dickson (Santa Monica) 11:40.2, Kathy Dosh (Santa Monica) 12:33, Debbie Vander Borst (Unat.), 12:51.
Girls (1.5 miles) — Marla Stearns (Unat.), Ann Wheeler (Ontario-Montclair), Jan Miller (Simi Valley).

ter than the listed world mark shared by Ralph Boston and Russia's Igor Ter-Ovanesyan.

Beamon was helped by a 7.1-mile-per-hour wind, well over the allowable maximum of 4.47 miles per hour.

Boston gained a spot on the team for the third time with a 27-1 leap that was aided by an 11 mph wind. Charlie Mays took the third spot with a lifetime best of 26-9¼, narrowly beating out Phil Shinnick who had one leap of 26-6½ and two others of 26-6.

Evans was confident his 400 record would be accepted. "I think the shoes will be approved," Evans said. "The coaches think so. I'm not worried about it. The company which makes the shoes is negotiating with the International Amateur Athletic Federation and if I have to go to talk to them myself, I will."

Evans said he had taken breathing lessons from a specialist, Carl Stough, during the last week and this had helped him warm up before the race.

Jim Ryun, running easily, qualified for the second round of the 1,500-meter trials.

Ryun, who failed to qualify in the 800 earlier, ran last in his heat until the final turn and then sprinted up to finish second to Oregon's Roscoe Divine, who won the race in the slow time of 3 minutes 58.3 seconds. Ryun was clocked in the same time.

"I felt much better about the 1,500 than about the 800," said Ryun, who made it as far as the finals of the shorter race Wednesday only to run out of steam in the home stretch and loaf in.

Speed Mark for Thompson

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah. (UPI) — Mickey Thompson continued his assault on the Bonneville record books Saturday to establish a world record speed for an American stock car.

In a 1969 Ford Mustang, Thompson was clocked at 190.951 mph by U.S. Auto Club officials as he broke the one-kilometer flying start record.

The previous record of 189.222 mph was set by Cale Yarborough in a 1968 Mercury Cyclone during qualifications for last February's Daytona 500 stock car race.

Thompson began before sunrise Saturday on a ramp page which saw him establish 18 records for American stock cars, 26 in all for a two-day period.

Added to the list of marks set Friday, Thompson now holds all flying and starting records listed in American unlimited and Class B divisions for distances between one kilometer and 10 miles. The old records were set last year by Bunkie Blackburn in a 1967 Camaro.

In addition, the Long Beach driver broke three standing start records each in the national unlimited and Class B divisions.

He began a series of endurance runs on the circle course Saturday afternoon.

WORLD HAMMER MARK

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Gyula Zsivotsky of Hungary bettered the world record for the hammer throw Saturday with a toss of 242 feet. He holds the listed mark of 241-11.

Zsivotsky is regarded as Hungary's best bet for a gold medal at the Olympic Games in Mexico City, Oct. 12-27. It was Zsivotsky's final workout before leaving for Mexico.

In the United States Olympic Trials at South Lake Tahoe, Calif., on Friday, Ed Burke of Costa Mesa, Calif., was the winner with 226-3.

RICH ROBERTS

Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Guys?

"I'd always felt that because of my size baseball, not football, would be the sport for me . . . but I've never found it to be the handicap so many people say it is."—Steve Sogge.

Scene One: A full house in Notre Dame Stadium, and you're the quarterback of the visiting team.

Your team hasn't won a football game at South Bend in 28 years and the odds are against it happening now. The fanatically partisan crowd screams for your blood, screams so loud that your hoarse signals are lost in a cacophony of hate.

"That's when it gets to be fun," says Steve Sogge, savoring the sweet wine of USC's vintage year . . .

Shift to Scene Two: It's Winnipeg, Canada, and the Pan American Games baseball championship is on the line.

This crowd is screaming, too, but it's different. This is real hate, not a football fantasy that will fade away when the sun falls below the stadium wall. Supporters of your Cuban opponents lead a well-planned spontaneous demonstration, attracting the sympathy of your hosts and playing Pied Piper to innocent little children caught up in the excitement as thousands march around the stadium.

It's more than a ball game. You're carrying the weight of a nation. It's freedom against communism, Abner Doubleday versus Karl Marx.

"That's when I enjoy it the best," smiles Steve Sogge, a David who has met Goliath before . . .

THE TROJANS won that football game and the United States won the baseball game, too. There were more glamorous stars, perhaps, but none quite as large in moral fibre as the overgrown squirt from Gardena.

Maybe someday science will cure all ills, look around for something else to do and decide to find out what makes a winner. They could start by dissecting Sogge.

"I just figure you go out and do your best all the time," he says with gross over-simplification. "I've never really found the pressure part of it that important. Somehow I just sort of seem to relax."

Steve was relaxed even when the '67 USC football press book gave him no more promise than a humble listing as a member of the squad. With the help of O. J. Simpson and a few other Cardinal and Golds, the Trojans won the national championship.

But somebody was handing off to O. J. . . . and passing to Earl McCullouch . . . and polishing the pride of those obedient linemen.

To this day, coach John McKay would have us believe that he still doesn't know who it was.

"Nobody except maybe O. J. has his job locked up," shrugs Sogge, playing McKay's game. "When I'm out there I don't battle anybody else. All I can do is the best job I can, and if somebody else is doing a better job, they deserve to be playing."

STEVE REFUSES to get ruffled. At Winnipeg, he had the first string catcher's job nailed down . . . "But we had only one third baseman and he wasn't doing too well.

"The coach said, 'Well, can anybody play third base?' 'I'd taken a few ground balls there, so I said, 'I'll try it.' I think I made one error in 11 games, and finally he asked me, 'How long's it been since you played third base?' and I told him, 'Well, it's been quite a while . . . but I'd never played third base in my life."

Sogge isn't given to blowing his own horn. These remarks are coaxed from him slowly and presented with matter-of-fact conviction . . . for, at 5 feet 10 inches in an era when quarterbacks are good AND big, he can't afford to sell himself short. Besides, his pride wouldn't permit it.

It was a large blow to Steve when he was completely ignored in the baseball draft last spring.

"But once I understood why, it no longer seemed like a shock," he explains. "They all knew I was gonna come back and play football.

"And I wouldn't mind playing professional football. Fran Tarkenton is 5-10. When you're out on the field you don't notice it. I've always said the difference between me and a six-foot quarterback is two inches at eye level."

AND WHEN THE TROJANS gather round, Sogge is the tallest man in the huddle.

"I think I'm more of a sympathetic quarterback," he says. "I know when I make a mistake, I know it and nobody has to tell me. I sort of figure that everybody else feels that way.

"In a game, if you get a guy worrying about the mistakes he's made, that's when you'll start having problems. What I try to do is just keep everybody relaxed and concentrating on what they're going to do next.

"And the other thing is trying to instill confidence in them, so when they take the field they know they can get the job done.

"I don't really think about it consciously. It's just my upbringing or something. My dad's always pushed me pretty hard and has taught me quite a bit.

"When I was first learning to catch we had a back yard where we could get about from here to there and he'd say, 'Okay, now, you start catching the ball.'

"Well, I'm just a little kid and he started throwing to me . . . and pretty soon he'd rear back and start throwing just about as hard as he could, and I'd start crying and say, 'I can't catch this.'

"He'd say, 'Well, you got a choice: you either catch it or the ball hits you.'

"When you're pushed like that, you learn pretty quick."

ALL THE WAY WITH O.J. . . .?

Switch Signals: Oregon State in '68

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

All the way with O.J.? Hardly.

This is the year of the Greeks — Agnew, Andros, et al.

So, it's Oregon State in '68.

Bulging with 36 lettermen and a solidly experienced corps of offensive backs and linemen, Demosthenes Kostandies Andrecopoulous is confident the 1969 Rose Bowl will be conducted with a Halloween motif, the orange and black of Oregon State.

SCHRADER

Dee Andros, as he is better known, should be right. The Beavers will be too big, strong and experienced for other Pacific-8 teams to handle.

The Beavers' veteran backfield of Steve Preece, Billy Main, Don Summers and Bill Enyart functioned smoothly in the latter part of 1967, when Andros' crew dumped national champion USC and Purdue and tied UCLA over a four-week span.

UCLA probably is the only team with the defense to contain the Beavers, who feature the jarring runs of 240-pound Enyart, the quarterback options of Preece and the wide sweeps of Main and Summers.

The Bruins have big, agile linebackers and quick, strong cornerbacks. The showdown for the Rose Bowl may take place on Nov. 9 when UCLA invades Corvallis.

UCLA could be a surprise team in other ways.

Few persons realize the great ability of junior quarterback Bill Bolden. He was overshadowed in 1967 by the deeds of Heisman Trophy winner Gary Beban.

There were, however, key moments when coach Tommy Prothro sent Bolden into a game to utilize his great running ability. Bolden also is an adequate passer and has excellent receivers in Ron Copeland (9.5 in 100), Harold Busby (9.4) and George Farmer (9.8).

UCLA has a perfect schedule with which to bring along an inexperienced offensive line. The Bruins don't face a conference toughie until the fifth game when they meet Cal.

PACIFIC-8

Although the spectacular Simpson returns at USC, there are too many unsettled conditions to expect consistency from the Trojans.

Half a dozen veterans are coming off knee surgery and their availability for the long haul still is in question. Additionally, you don't lose five players selected on the first round of the professional draft without a drop in quality.

If the Trojans win it all, Simpson will have to be even greater than in 1967, which is almost too much to expect from a man of 21.

In the middle grouping of the conference will be Stanford, Cal and Washington. If sophomore Jim Plunkett lives up to early rave notices as a passer, the Indians could develop into a contender. They have the top Pacific-8 receiver in flanker back Gene Washington.

Cal will be stronger across the board, especially at running back where sophomore Bob Darby is a splendid prospect. But the Bears still have problems, many of them internal.

Washington has the physical ability to develop, but coach Jim Owens has not been able to generate the team enthusiasm that carried the Huskies to the top in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Oregon and Washington State? Forget it. The football outlook at both schools is improving, but there will be little resurgence in 1968.

How they will finish:

1. Oregon State.
2. UCLA.
3. USC.
4. Stanford.
5. California.
6. Washington.
7. Oregon.
8. Washington State.

Gloomy Viking Outlook Has Silver Lining

By DAVE DANIEL

Outlooks for Long Beach City College's Football team and season have been worse. Admittedly, they have also been better.

The Vikings, under Paul Chafe, now entering his third year as head coach,

LBCC

"have good quality, but little quantity" in a year that finds them in a tougher-than-ever Metropolitan Conference.

Last year's team ran up a 5-3-1 season mark and only 15 lettermen are back. That means that experience or lack of it, will be a big factor this year.

DANIEL

Offensively, the Vikings have Dennis Dummit returning at quarterback along with three veteran receivers, which prompts Chafe to safely say, "We'll be putting the ball in the air a lot."

Last year, Dummit completed 74 of 126 passes for 1,220 yards and 11 touchdowns while playing only part time with Bob Stewart. He set the school record for most yards passing in one game with 324 against Bakersfield.

And with Dale Didur, Denny Mayfield and Rich Wilkes all returning this season, the Vikes will be tough to stop through the air.

On the ground will be John Merino, the muscular halfback who gained 635 yards last year to lead the team in rushing. He averaged 5.05 yards for 122 carries while scoring 12 touchdowns.

"Passing is the strong point," Chafe adds, "but with a veteran offensive line, there is no reason why we can't move the ball well on running plays."

And he's right. The Vikings have good experience in both tackle and guard spots, as well as the ends. Returning are Earl Peterson, Bill Meyers, Barney Bumgarner, Steve Anderson, Phil Dunaway, Bob Bennett and center Kent Eilerts.

That should enable Merino, as well as freshman Ed Giles and big fullback John Kahler, who at 6-5, 240, is a hard-charging rusher, to find running room. Chafe also has 1965 letterman Larry Walters returning at halfback after a stint in the service.

On defense, not one starter from last year's team is returning and defensive secondary coach Glenn McFarland says, "They're young and they have the ability, but you can't replace experience."

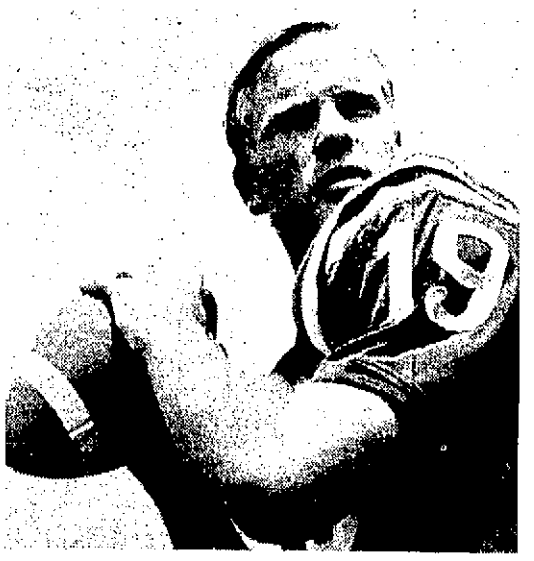

Last year's deep backs intercepted a school record 24 passes and all four starters from that team are starting at four-year schools this fall.

McFarland does have safety Jay Morrison, who intercepted five passes last year, returning as well as MAC-man Jeff Severson. His starting cornerbacks will be freshmen Gary Carter on the left side and either Steve Zieg or Wendell Brooks on the right.

"They are all good hitters, can run and have fairly good hands," McFarland adds, "but it will still take time and work."

49er Coach Picks CCAA Title: 49ers

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

"In our league, the favorite has to be the team that has its quarterback returning.

"That's why I'd pick us right now. We're the only team in the California Collegiate Athletic Assn. with experience at quarterback."

That observation comes from Don Reed, area CCAA expert and football coach at Cal State Long Beach.

McCORMACK

"Since nobody has played a game yet," Reed added, "that's the only way to decide. Check with me again in a couple of weeks, though; I may change my mind."

Perhaps it is noteworthy that Reed has remained optimistic through two weeks of practice although he must contend with several circumstances alien to him in past years.

Only one situation can presently be viewed as favorable — San Diego State is not in the league.

For the first time since 1962, for example, Reed will not have an explosive halfback along the lines of a Dee Andrews, Willie Martin, Les Shy, Frank Harris or Phil Johnson. Nor will his fullback be the cruncher type ala Dick Degan, Dennis Benedetti or Craig Hastin.

"Our halfbacks this year, Rick Blanchard and Willie Cox, don't have the blazing speed," Reed explains. "I don't think we'll be as explosive as last year. Rick and Willie are slashers. It looks like we'll have to slug it out with teams this year."

Reed's starting fullback, Chuck Bishop, is quicker but lighter than 49er fullback in recent years. As a junior, Bishop averaged 4.5 yards.

Perhaps the key to Reed's running attack lies with starting guards Mike Frye and Rich Pellegrin.

They will team with tackles Bob Heckman and Rob Jones in the in-fighting required in the "grind-it-out" running attack Reed feels he must use.

The 49ers however, have never been more secure in passing offense.

Quarterbacks Dave Merrill and Jerry Miller, who combined for 159 completions in 236 attempts for 2,290 yards and 14 TDs, return as does all-America split end Billy Parks.

As a sophomore, Parks caught 79 passes for 1,324 yards. Reed also has veteran tight ends Barry Waters and Dave Pike returning.

Reviewing a non-league schedule that includes Texas-El Paso, Northern Arizona, UC Santa Barbara, Texas A&I, Santa Clara and San Francisco State, Reed finds solace in a defensive unit that appears to be very sound.

"Our defense is going to have to be good. We can't outscore anyone this year.

Foremost Forecaster is Ready

By MAJOR A. B. HOOPLE
Football's Foremost Forecaster

HOOPLE, N.D. — Yas, friends, there is indeed a Hoople, North Dakota, a charming, appreciative little community of 334 upright, virtuous citizens.

HOOPLE

Located on the Great Northern Railroad, 15 miles from thriving Grafton, the township was named for Football's Foremost Forecaster. Harrumph!

What does the 1968 season have in store? Our preliminary surveys, computations and on-the-spot investigations indicate that, like upset-laden 1967, this fall's campaign is well nigh unpredictable.

However, dear readers, consider your good fortune in having available to you the peerless Hoople System which compiled a phenomenal .700 avearge last season.

Who else selected Houston over Michigan State? Tennessee to end Alabama's 25-game victory streak?

Watch out, friends, for Ohio State, which had a great frosh team. And Yale — Boola, Boola! —my alma mater, where brilliant Brian Dowling returns.

In the West, Orange Juice Simpson will put the squeeze on USC foes.

Watch for Hoople's winners this week!

El Rancho? No—Wilson!

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Every player that passes through the locker room doors at Lakewood High can't help but see a large red and white paper banner that stretches across the entrance proclaiming "Lakewood's No. 1."

The only trouble is, there's at least three other schools that feel the same way in the Moore League this fall.

PIVERNETZ

Wilson, El Rancho, Millikan and the Lancers are all looking onward and upward.

The league has never been stronger overall with the added addition of El Rancho, a perennial CIF playoff power that has compiled a 101-26-4 record in the last 11 years.

Wilson is the defending champion, Millikan the runnerup and Lakewood the team that was left out despite compiling the league's best overall record of 7-1-1 last year.

With 17 lettermen back and added incentive on making a good showing, El Rancho is drawing the most attention among league coaches as the team to beat.

Are they right? Wrong.

The team everyone overlooked last year, Wilson, is Bruin up another storm that should carry over to the title.

How they'll finish and, hopefully, why:

1. Wilson: Bruins are two deep all along offensive front wall with good speed and even better size. Halfback Dante Lobato set for big year and foes can't overload because of 210-pound fullback Rex Hoover. Only question mark is defense, which should jell after four not-particularly tough pre-league games. Coach Owen Dixon has consistent record — two titles and two seconds in four years.

2. El Rancho: If Bruins should slip, Dons in best spot to take it all. Six starters back on defense from team that was 11-1. Randy Drake throwing to Ken Matthews should be the league's best.

3. Lakewood: Lancers should deserve reward if they survive toughest pre-league slate — Westminster, Chaffey, Mater Dei, St. Paul and then must open with El Rancho. All-Moore League QB returning in Mike Rae, good running back in Al Lemmerman.

4. Millikan: Rams have big dreams and even bigger hill to climb. Good QB in Rand Rasmussen, tough front wall with Dave Mayer and Steve Thompson, but lacking in depth. Big game is league opener with Wilson Oct. 19, a school the Rams have never beaten.

5. Poly: Hares have young team with lots of potential, but will have to mature fast in pre-league play in order to beat any of top four. Wealth of running backs to choose from, line might be a problem.

6. Jordan: Panthers have improved, but so has rest of league. Top running back in Steve Helm and end in Dennis Brimhall. Depth again a big problem.

AFL Out-Exhibitions NFL...But Has It Caught Up?

Associated Press

AFL 13, NFL 10.

That was the final score of the inter-league series between the young American Football League and the old National Football League, leaving one major question to be answered:

Has the AFL reached parity with the NFL?

NFL coaches, having taken a look at the scoreboard, seem willing to grant that the AFL's ability to lift last year's dismal 3-13 record in exhibition games to 13-10 this season is an indication of a leveling off process among pro football's two major leagues.

But, in general, they still aren't about to interpret the results as a blanket endorsement that the AFL has reached the level of play in the NFL.

There are apparently several reasons — other than emotion — why.

First, the games were exhibitions, subject to the peculiarities of all exhibitions — rookies playing, veterans not yet ready to play, etc.

Second, NFL teams with .500 or better records last year played in only nine of the 23 inter-league games.

And, finally, there is a pointing to the emotional element that may have been on the AFL side.

Maybe, Joe Kuharich of the Philadelphia Eagles summed it up best for his colleagues:

"I think it is safe to say all AFL clubs have improved considerably and their competition against NFL clubs has increased their overall efficiency of performance.

"There also is probably an intangible factor which stimulated the AFL clubs because of their determination to demonstrate to the public as a whole that they were as good as NFL teams and to show they were better in some cases."

But if there's still talk of a gap between NFL and NFL teams, most NFL coaches freely admit it's disappearing.

"I thought the AFL teams we played were very well-prepared, well-coached, well-personneled teams," said coach Tom Fears of New Orleans. "I don't see much difference in them and the NFL teams."

"I think AFL clubs are showing better balanced teams," said San Francisco coach Dick Nolan.

"NFL teams don't overawe AFL teams anymore," said coach Weeb Ewbank of the New York Jets. "Experience is the reason. The leagues are leveling off now. Some of their stars are retiring, and we're building stars."

And said Buffalo coach Joe Collier:

"I didn't think last year's AFL-NFL record was indicative of anything other than a specific team playing superior football on a given day. The same is true of this year's results.

"The teams in the two leagues are close enough in talent that the results reflect only how the two clubs play at a given time."

Despite that being the opinion of many, on both sides of the AFL-NFL fence, there is no doubt that the undercurrent of competition — the desire to be better — still exists.

Coach Bill Austin of the Pittsburgh Steelers left no doubt about that, saying succinctly:

"The real game is the Super Bowl. Let's wait and see what happens there."

S.D. Scoreboard: A $660,000 Lemon?

We were as impressed as everyone else with San Diego's $28 million football-baseball stadium in Mission Valley when we attended its opening a year ago.

It was easy to see at first glance why the people of San Diego were so ecstatic over the beautiful 50,000-seat sports plant despite the annoyance of the usual "bugs" which always pop up in a new structure.

For instance, the grass on the playing field, which was grown several miles away and then transplanted three days before the inaugural football game between the San Diego Chargers of the AFL and Detroit Lions of the NFL, suddenly turned brown overnight.

There was a frantic rush to round up enough of the special green dye to spray the grass. The job was completed just a few hours before game time.

Just as everybody connected with the operation sat back and heaved a sigh of relief, the panic button was pushed in another department. The costly and highly-publicized animated electronic scoreboard wouldn't work. A small auxiliary board was hastily hooked up.

But after all the initial trials and tribulations, the stadium was well worth the money and effort to San Diego. It has made it a true major league city.

San Diego in 1969 will be one of 26 cities in this country with major league franchises in baseball and pro football . . . and one of 19 which will have clubs in both sports when the San Diego Padres begin baseball operations in the National League next April.

Meanwhile, the grass is its own natural green by now, but there still are a few nagging problems. For one thing, the scoreboard, touted by some as the potential "three-ring circus," still won't perform like it was supposed to do.

AND STADIUM OFFICIALS have been trying for a year to solve the mystery of breakage during football games of some of the huge lamps and lenses in the lighting standards which ring the top of the stadium.

They finally discovered what was doing it during the recent Charger game with the Rams. It was the concussion from the "artillery barrage" by the cannon which is shot off every time the Chargers score. And they fired it a lot that night as San Diego humiliated the Rams, 35-13.

It has been costing the city from $500 to $1,000 a game for new lamps and lenses.

"We couldn't figure it out until a lady told us she was showered with broken glass when the cannon went off," an official revealed the past week.

As a result of all this, the cannon and the "electronic monster" that won't work properly have become the center of heated battles among civic leaders in San Diego.

The scoreboard really is under more fire than the cannon.

There seems to be a simple answer to the problem of the cannon breaking the lights.

Members of the Stadium Authority Board agree with Irv Kaze, business manager of the Chargers, that the cannon has become a tradition at Charger games, that it is "part of the show."

But everyone has complained that the cannon is much too loud . . . and board members see no reason why the Chargers can't use smaller powder charges to eliminate most of the concussion and keep the lights intact.

As one says, "It's not necessary to try and blow Chula Vista (some 25 miles away) off the map every time they fire the cannon!"

THE SCOREBOARD IS A DIFFERENT MATTER, however. Al Harutunian of the Stadium authority group shook up other civic leaders the past week when he spoke out on the scoreboard.

He flatly stated, "We got ourselves a lemon . . . a $660,000 lemon!" He went on to say that "it doesn't perform at all in accordance with what we were told it would do. We've got a third-rate scoreboard . . . if it is even that good."

He charged that the money the city has paid the scoreboard's builders "has gone right down the tube. Every time it is used, something goes wrong. There still is no animation. We made a costly goof and we should salvage what we can out of it right now."

He suggests starting the project over again from scratch. "Use as many of the present components as possible, but get new builders," he said.

Other board members and city officials defend the scoreboard and the main contractor, Cubic Corporation of San Diego. There was some dissension at first to give Cubic the contract. Some wanted to let the contract to a company which successfully had built animated scoreboards, such as the type which has proved so popular at the Astrodome.

While Cubic is a highly-regarded electronics firm, it had never before built a scoreboard, but it finally was agreed to give the local firm preference when the contract was let.

THE SCOREBOARD STILL ISN'T WORKING properly. A week ago at a Pacific Coast League baseball game, we were told that the lights (13,000 individual lamps) were so dim, fans couldn't see the numerals.

Another board member points out that since the scoreboard hasn't even been turned over to the city yet, "we haven't had a chance to run the board and determine what operational changes should be made."

One observer shook his head at this and asked, "What makes him think the city can do any better than electronic experts?"

Specialists from Cubic have operated the board for the past year at all stadium events. However, the city officially takes possession of the facility Friday when it makes a final payment of $52,000.

GREEN BAY'S REIGN TO END

Dallas Bars Rams Way to Title

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

There are those non-believers who think that much of the Rams' football success last year came because opponents simply overlooked them.

There is no danger of that in 1968. Everyone will be pointing for them. And with only 17 more weeks to the Super Bowl, here's how the NFL and AFL finishes look from the grandstand.

Unlike the East, where Dallas should run away and hide from the pack, the Westen race figures to be a four-or-five-way scramble.

The Packers can expect an intensified Central Division challenge from Chicago. If Andy Livingston and Gale Sayers stay healthy and the Bears muster a consistent passing attack from Jack Concannon, Chicago will end Green Bay's three-year reign.

LARSON

The Rams, Costal Division champs last year, again should go down to thet wire with Baltimore and, possibly, San Francisco.

Since snow boots and parkas won't be required for the Western Division playoff this year, the Rams will conquer the Bears in the Coliseum but stumble to the Cowboys in the NFL title game at Dallas on Dec. 29.

In the AFL, Houston and Oakland will repeat as conference champions. That would set up rematch of last year's title contest, and in this opinion, the outcome will be repeated, too — the Raiders winning and going into the Super Bowl for another crack at the big brother National League.

However, the Cowboys will subdue the AFL forces when it counts in the world championship playoff at Miami on Jan. 12, 1969, thus ending bitter memories of the past two campaigns when they missed a Super season by two yards in 1966 and by 13 seconds in 1967.

With Roman Gabriel finally attaining status as one of the NFL's finest quarterbacks, most figure the Rams to be stronger this year, if for no other reason than as a team playing together for a year and becoming more experienced.

Bernie Casey came to the Rams from San Francisco via Atlanta last season and became the leading pass catcher. He's even stepped up his pace during pre-season play this year.

Jack Snow provided another top receiving threat in '67 and after reporting late this summer appears ready for the regular season.

A trade which sent reserve quarterback Bill Munson to Detroit brought the Rams Pat Studstill, available at flanker or split end as well as doing the punting.

The Rams posses perhaps the most underrated tight end in Bill Truax and a tough interior offensive line with Joe Carollo, Tom Mack, Ken Iman, Joe Scibelli and Charlie Cowan.

As in the past two years, it's been tough for a rookie to make the club. Only six have made the grade.

The king is not dead — he's only retired — but the Bears and Rams are plotting to overthrow the kingdom he built and ran with the impervious authority of a feudal warlord.

Only time will tell if Green Bay will still be champs without Vince Lombardi.

Packers in Pink to Open Title Defense

Associated Press

Green Bay's powerful Packers begin their bid for an unprecedented fourth consecutive National Football League championship today when they send a healthy squad against the injury-crippled Philadelphia Eagles at Green Bay.

All 16 teams will be in action for the big three-day, fifth-game inaugurals of the senior league.

Green Bay is favored to repeat in the Central Division. The other favorites are Baltimore and the Rams in the Coastal, Dallas in the Capitol and St. Louis and Cleveland in the Century.

The Packers, with quarterback Bart Starr and flanker Carroll Dale clicking on passes and everything else going smoothly, looked like a Vince Lombardi combination again in their final tuneup victory, 31-9 over Cleveland.

The Eagles are minus crippled quarterback Norm Snead and several other important operators. King Hill and John Huarte probably will share the signal-calling task for the underdogs.

The Giants, bolstered by the return of place-kicking star Pete Gogolak, on leave from the Army, are favored over the Steelers.

Dallas will field 21 of last year's 22 starters plus 1966 Pro Bowler Dave Manders, now back at center after a year lost by injuries, against the revamped Detroit Lions.

Bill Munson, Detroit's new quarterback, suffered strained chest muscles last week but is expected to play. If not, rookie Greg Landry will direct the team which has two new, fast receivers in Earl McCullouch and Charley Sanders.

Johnny Unitas, bothered by a chronic sore right elbow, is expected to start against the 49ers, making their debut under new coach Dick Nolan. The Colts, with the addition of running back Timmy Brown and the return of receiver Jimmy Orr, figure to be stronger than ever.

John Brodie will handle the 49ers, bolstered by the acquisition of a fleet receiver in Cliff McNeil.

The Bears make their debut under Jim Dooley, successor to the venerable George Halas. The Bears have the elusive Gale Sayers and a formidable defense but have a question mark quarterback in Jack Concannon.

The Saints will rely heavily on the airlanes with quarterback Bill Kilmer and the fine receivers in Dave Parks, Monte Stickles and Dan Abramowicz.

Gabriels Now at Home in L.B.

By SUZANNE GABRIEL
(Mrs. Ram Quarterback)

The Rams' season is well on its way and, despite a shaky start, everyone is looking to another winning year.

SUZANNE

The team has finished training camp at Fullerton, the staff has moved to Blair Field and the Gabriels have moved to Long Beach. After two years of daily commuting from the north San Fernando Valley, we made the move.

We are only a few blocks from Recreation Park, which will be a welcome convenience for Roman — more time with the children and less worry for me as he won't have to jump on the freeway at 5 o'clock every afternoon. He'll also be able to work out with some of his teammates in the off-season.

Speaking of the family, since last season ended we are now five-strong. And, before anybody asks, we are not starting our own football team . . . but the prospects of a basketball team look good.

OUR THIRD BOY, a 9-pounder, was named Rory Jay — Rory, after "1,001 Names for Boys" and Jay after Merlin Jay Olsen, our longtime friend and Roman's roommate.

Besides adding to our family, we had a busy but delightful off-season. Roman had speaking engagements all over the country, besides his regular job, from Washington state to Washington, D.C. and in between.

He had the great honor of meeting the President of the United States along with 15 or 20 other professional football players, who met in Washington to make plans for a government program for counseling in some of the troubled areas of our country. Maxie Baughan, Merlin and Coach George Allen also were present.

IN MAY, ROMAN and I spent a week in New York. He was there doing a series of lectures with Ray Nitschke, Green Bay's rough, tough linebacker.

Frankly, I was worried that Ray and Roman would get around to discussing who deserved the 1967 title the most, but they never had the time because we were having so much fun.

I'll tell you a secret: Off the field Ray and his wife Jackie are one of the most delightful, personable couples we've ever met. But don't think because we're friends Ray will let up come game time,

After he and Roman untangle, maybe Roman will see a toothless grin instead of the Nitschke snarl.

Raiders Primed for Repeat Crown

United Press International

The Oakland Raiders' motto, "pride and poise," sums it up best.

Under the guidance of general manager Al Davis, the possessor of the most astute football mind this side of Vince Lombardi, and head coach John Rauch, the Raiders have gone from the bottom to the top of the American Football League in five years.

The Raiders, current kings of the AFL, open their quest for a second championship today when they meeet the Buffalo Bills at Buffalo. If most pre-season forecasts hold true, the Buffalo stop is just one of 14 for the Raiders on their way to a second trip to Miami for another try at the National Football Leauge in the Super Bowl Jan. 12.

A 33-14 setback at the hands of Green Bay in the last Super Bowl and a 27-14 loss to the New York Jets were the only blotches on an otherwise perfect 1967 campaign for the Raiders.

Oakland would be hard pressed to top, or even match, that record, but the oddsmakers have tabbed the defending champs 13-point favorites to get off on the right foot against the young and inexperienced Bills.

Oakland's biggest threat in the Western Division comes by way of Kansas City. The Chiefs, off a 4-1 exhibition mark and a 27-21 season-opening voctory over Houston last Monday, are hopeful of regaining the form that carried them to the AFL championship in 1966.

The Jets again will go as far as Joe Namath can pass them. Namath's battered knees stood up fairly well during the exhibition campaign.

If Cincinnati, the AFL's newest club is to win a game this year, today's contest against Denver might be its only chance. For whatever it's worth, Cincinnati posted a 2-3 exhibition record against a 1-4 mark for the Broncos.

Perfecto in Japan

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Yoshio Sotokoba became the 10th pitcher in Japanese pro baseball history to pitch a perfect game Saturday in Hiroshima's 2-0 victory over the Taiyo Whales. He struck out 16.

Cross Country Victory for PCC

Doug Wieve led the Pacific Coast Club to victory in the first AAU cross-country meet of the year with a time of 20:39 over a four-mile course at Mt. Sac Saturday.

The Pacific Coast Club edged second-place USC by two points in team scores.

Doug Wieve (PCC) 20:39; Jeff Marsee (USC) 21:16; John Lawson (PCC) 21:21, George Scott (Australia) 21:24, Phil Ryan (Pomona College) 21:29, Bruce Bowman (USC) 21:32, Ron Kurrie (PCC) 21:35, Bill Anderson (Santa Barbara AC) 21:36, Curtis Jones (USC) 21:45.

Team Scores: Pacific Coast Club "A" 27, USC 29, PCC "B" 69, El Camino 96, Seniors Track Club 107, Culver City AC 115.

KICKOFF BOWL SET

Jr. Football Opens Sept. 29

By CHUCK MEDICK

The Long Beach Junior Football Assn. begins its 21st year of operation with the Kickoff Bowl Sunday, Sept. 29, at Jordan High at noon.

There will again be four teams, each having a A and B squad. The A division will be composed of boys weighing from 130 to 180 pounds, while the B group will be those weighing from 100 to 130.

All teams will play one quarter in the Kickoff Bowl. League play begins the following Sunday. Tickets for the Jordan High opener, priced at $1, may be obtained from any of the 400 boys participating in the program.

The four teams will be the Belmont Bears, Los Altos Rebels, North Long Beach Lions and Downtown Colts. The Colts' B squad will be known as the Mustangs.

* * * *

IN EACH DISTRICT, the high school coach will serve as an advisor and a member of the board of directors. Coaching Los Altos will be the veteran Earl Lee, who has received many civic awards for his dedication to the junior football program .

There will be a few new faces in the coaching ranks. Keith Cordes will coach North Long Beach, Chet Prosser will handle Belmont and John Rambo and Bob Luke will guide the Colts and Mustangs.

Rambo gained a statewide reputation as a coach this summer when his Teen Center of the Police Baseball League came on after a poor start to finish second.

Big Crowd Lured by Open Net

By BOB MARTIN
Staff Writer

Open tennis came to the West Coast Saturday, and the crowd at the Los Angeles Tennis Club looked more like that of a concluding day than an opening day in the Pacific Southwest Championships.

A near-capacity throng of 3,300, by far the biggest ever for opening day, was on hand as the nine-day meet got off to a rousing start.

Play will shift to the Los Angeles Sports Arena next Thursday through Sunday.

How good is the field? Well, Roy Emerson of Australia, the defending champion, is seeded only No. 13 in men's singles.

And Pancho Gonzales and fellow pro Andres Gimeno were defeated in doubles on the opening day by amateurs Jim McManus and Jim Osborne, 9-7, 2-6, 15-13.

U.S. Davis Cupper Stan Smith plays third-seeded Tom Okker of Holland today.

Billie Jean Moffitt King of Long Beach, top-seeded among the women, is scheduled to play pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles at noon today, but may have to default.

She has seen five doctors in the past two days about an ailing left knee and has gotten varying opinions on what's wrong and what she should do.

As of Saturday evening, she had not decided whether to play or drop out of the meet.

Today's Schedule

Arsenal Victorious

LONDON (AP) — Terry Neill scored on a rebound Saturday and stretched Arsenal's lead to two points at the top of the English soccer standings.

WHO'S REAL HERO?
It was hard to tell who real hero was in mob scene following Detroit's 5-4 win over Oakland Saturday. Willie Horton (right) doubled home deciding run in bottom of ninth and happiest man to greet him was Denny McLain (left), who receipted with 30th victory of season, thanks to Horton's blow.

REICHARDT ASLEEP

Rigney Not Happy but Angels Finally Win

By FRED CLAIRE
Staff Writer

CHICAGO — The Angels halted a four-game losing streak here Saturday night, but manager Bill Rigney wasn't smiling.

The Halos defeated Chicago 5-4 in 10 innings and Rigney figured the win should have come earlier — and easier.

"If Reichardt catches that ball in the fifth we're out of the inning with a 4-2 lead," said Rigney. "He's got to charge those balls and be more aggressive."

In the Chisox half of the fifth, Angel left-fielder Rick Reichardt started to charge Tommy Davis' line drive to left and then held up.

"You've got to go get a ball like that and make an all-out effort to catch it," said Rigney.

Davis' hit, with two outs, scored Sandy Alomar from second base and advanced Duane Josephson to second. Bill Melton then singled to left off Angel starter Dennis Bennett to tie the game at 4-all.

The score remained tied until the 10th, when Alomar made an error to give the Angels the winning run.

Aurelio Rodriguez singled to open the Angel 10th and moved to second on Jay Johnstone's sacrifice. Jim Fregosi drew a walk and the Reichardt sent a grounder to shortstop Luis Aparicio. Aparicio threw to second baseman Alomar to force Fregosi. Alomar had no chance to catch Reichardt at first, but made a throw to third in an attempt to get Rodriguez out who had rounded the base. Alomar's throw was wide and Rodriguez trotted home with the Angel's third unearned run of the game.

The loss kept the Chisox from advancing into an eigth place tie with the Angels. The one-run loss was an old story for Chicago.

The Chisox have played 69 one-run games, losing 42 to break a major league record set by Cincinnati in 1946.

The losing White Sox pitcher, reliefer Wilbur Wood (11-11), moved closer to A. L. and major league records.

Wood, who came on to start the 10th, was working in his 81st game of the season. One more appearance and he'll tie the A. L. record set by Eddie Fisher of the Chisox in 1965.

Chicago's two runs in the fifth were unearned as Angel third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez booted a grounder by Josephson before Davis singled in front of Reichardt.

Bennett, in search of his first Angel win after four losses, gave Reichardt a long and hard look after Davis' hit.

"I gave him (Reichardt) a little bit of a look myself when he came into the dugout," said Rigney.

"Reichardt is going to be an outstanding player one day but that extra effort is needed," said Rigney.

ANGEL ANGLES: A source close to the White Sox club says Al Lopez has decided not to return as manager next season . . . the Angel players were faced with a decision in their TV viewing Saturday: watching Denny McLain go for 30 wins or the heavyweight title fight. Almost every player tuned in to the fight. And we couldn't find one who thought Jimmy Ellis deserved the victory. The Angels saw enough of McLain this season, losing to him five times . . . In the Angels' finale at Chicago today, Andy Messersmith (3-1) will go against Gerald Nyman (2-0). Nyman has a 1.33 ERA for the Chisox in 26 2/3 innings after being recalled from Hawaii, where he was 7-5 with a 3.19 ERA . . . Angel pitchers Clyde Wright and Steve Kealey and clubhouse man Roger Hailey, will rejoin the Angels in Minneapolis Monday after weekend military duty . . . The Chisox have lost eight 10 games this season (breaking a club record set in 1918) and seven 1-0 games (two short of a club record set in 1909) . . . Chisox pitcher Tommy John (10-5), injured when he tackled the Tigers' Dick McAuliffe Aug. 22 will not be able to play the rest of this season. He'll begin work in the Florida instructional league in October. Sudden thought: Denny McLain is only 28 wins behind the Senators.

GRID FETE SET TUESDAY

The Century Club kickoff banquet for Cal State Long Beach and Long Beach City College will be held Tuesday night at 7 in the Petroleum Club.

Featured speaker will be Ram quarterback Roman Gabriel. Head coaches Don Reed and Paul Chafe will introduce their complete squads.

Admission to the stag affair will be $10 per person. Tickets can be secured at the door.

Mrs. Stanley is Publinx Choice

Mrs. Mildred Stanley of Griffith Park will be favored to defend her title beginning Tuesday in the three-day, 54-hole SoCal Publinx golf championships at Lakewood Country Club.

Play begins each day at 8 a.m.

Leading Long Beach players are Chris Cooper and Flo Foote, Skylinks; La Verna Johnson and Eoline Thornton, Recreation Park; Alyce Short and Marge Ortiz, El Dorado; and Dunna North, Dona Stewart and Joan Glass, Lakewood.

Bravo Returns to Tijuana Ring Today

TIJUANA — Unpredictable Jaime Bravo, the matador who defies tradition, will return to the seaside bullring, Plaza Monumental, today at 4.

Also sharing the card will be Yankee matador Robert Ryan and Fabian Ruiz of Mexico. The trio will face bulls from La Laguna breeding ranch.

Beban Put on Injured List

Heisman Trophy winner Gary Beban has been placed on the injured list by the Washington Redskins in their final preseason cut.

It is unlikely the former UCLA star will be reactivated this season. Beban, who received an estimated $200,000 on a three-year contract with Washington, has pulled a muscle, permitting the Redskins to place him in the injured category.

The Redskins were planning to test him as a runner until he pulled the muscle ken appearances for the Redskins in preseason games, Beban had completed one of three passes for four yards and was thrown for losses twice.

RATHER HIT HOMERS

Haller Not Happy at Best

By GEORGE LEDERER
Staff Writer

Tom Haller is having his best of seven full major league seasons, but is not satisfied with a .291 average.

"For this club, I'd rather hit 30 home runs with a .250 average than four with .291," he said Saturday after driving in two of the Dodger runs in Don Sutton's 3-0 shutout of the Braves.

With the Giants, Haller hit as many as 27 home runs in 1966, but batted only .240 and wasn't satisfied either.

"It should have been the other way. For the Giants, I'd rather hit .290 and forget about home runs because they have the guys who can drive 'em in."

Haller admits he stopped trying for home runs at Dodger Stadium, which has helped his average, but he would like to shoot for 30 next season "if they move in the fences.

"I think they should move the fences in about 10 feet. It would make a lot of difference, not only for us, but for the fans." He pointed to the TV screen in the Dodger clubhouse, where some of his teammates were watching the Georgia-Tennessee football game.

"Football is exciting to watch because of the scoring. We can have the same in baseball. It would be much more exciting with a few more home runs and some balls hit off the walls."

Haller didn't mean to knock the lack of scoring by the other side. Far from it. He had nothing but superlatives to offer for his batterymate, who stretched the Braves' scoreless streak to 19 innings with a six-hitter.

"Sutton has been fantastic in his last half-dozen starts. He has had great command of his fast ball and is moving the ball around real well. Basically, it boils down to a matter of control and confidence.

"His velocity is such that the hitters can't look for a breaking pitch and still hit the fast ball. When he does break off the curve, it's in situations when they don't expect it."

DODGERS OF DAY

DON SUTTON pitched shutout; WILLIE DAVIS singled twice and stole two bases; and TOM HALLER doubled twice, driving in two runs in 3-0 win over Braves.

Haller and Willie Davis supplied most of the offense and Paul Popovich played the best shortstop the Dodgers have had this season as they made it nine wins in the last 11 games. Popovich has been at short, rookie Bill Sudakis at third base during the streak.

Popovich took up where Sudakis finished Friday and made three outstanding

"He has a great pair of hands," said manager Walter Alston. "If he can get to the ball, he can make the play as well as anyone. But I still don't like his range as a shortstop. If I could put (Sonny) Jackson's legs under him, we'd have a great shortstop."

DIS AND DATA—Dodgers recalled catcher Jimmy Campanis, infielder Luis Alcaraz and pitcher Alan Foster from Spokane . . . Campanis was in uniform Saturday, Alcaraz reports this afternoon, and Foster is expected by the middle of the week . . . Spokane lost the Pacific Coast League playoff with Tulsa in five games . . . Davis' two steals gave him 33, his second best total. He had 42 in 1964 . . . Haller leads the Dodgers with 26 doubles, his career high . . . Joe Moeller (1-0) pitches against rookie lefthander George Stone (6-3) at 1 this afternoon . . . Pappas (11-12) was elected by first base umpire Frank Secory in the third inning after arguing Haller's second double was foul . . . The Dodgers managed only two more singles against lefthander Dick Kelley and knuckleballer Ken Johnson.

We've concentrated more than ever on defense and I think it is going to pay dividends," Reed declared.

With San Diego gone, accurately handicapping the CCAA is most difficult. Everyone thinks they have a shot at the title. Quite likely, everyone does.

If Long Beach is placed as early favorite, Fresno must be second. The Bull-Dogs are the most established hurdle set before the 49ers.

Cal State has beaten Fresno five times in succession but must play the Bulldogs in Fresno. Coach Darryl Rogers has 17 returning lettermen.

Valley State, the CCAA's representative in the Junior Rose Bowl, lost all-everything Bruce Lemmerman but has 33 returning letter winners.

Cal State L.A., troubled in recent years, has fine running back experience in Paul Cotton and John Holland and feels John Erdhaus at quarterback will be the cure-all.

Even perennial doormat Cal Poly, SLO, is talking title. The Mustangs have hustled several sprinters off their NCAA track championship team and feel new coach Joe Harper can take them all the way.

tor alone, other teams have a definite advantage.

Bakersfield, which won the Metro title hands down last year with an undefeated record, has 34 returning lettermen and more than 130 prospects out this year.

The same is evident at El Camino, which was 8-1, losing only to the Renegades in the final game of the season. The Warriors have about 30 lettermen back, including Tom Reynolds, a one-man show, in their biggest turn-out in school history.

While those two teams are expected to fight it out for the championship again, Chafe predicts, "Right now, there's a real dogfight on for third place, and we're right in it."

The other teams which comprise the strongest-ever Metro Conference after a realignment are Pierce, which won the Western State Conference championship last year and then went to the semifinal round of the state playoffs; Santa Monica, L.A. Valley, Pasadena and Cerritos.

East L.A. and Rio Hondo were dropped.

"If there is a weak team in the league, we haven't found it yet," Chafe said.

Valley has its entire defensive backfield back. At the end of last season, Chafe considered them as best in the conference.

Cerritos, traditionally tough since its inception in 1958, has 23 lettermen returning off last year's disappointing team. Coach Smokey Cates won't stand for another 4-4-1 season, which was last year's record and the worst in the school's history.

Nelson Briles pitched an eight-hitter for his 18th victory and batterymate Tim McCarver slammed a double and a triple to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to an 8-0 victory over the Houston Astros Saturday.

The victory put the Cardinals in a position to clinch their second successive National League pennant today.

Briles, keeping alive his chances to win 20 games for the first time in his career, struck out nine and walked only one.

Willie Mays drove in four runs with two homers, raising his lifetime homer total to 585, to back Bob Bolin's five-hit pitching and lead the San Francisco Giants to a 9-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. Both homers came off Gerry Arrigo — with none on in the fourth inning and with two on in the fifth.

Bill White drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly as the Philadelphia Phillies rallied for three runs in the seventh inning to top the Chicago Cubs 4-1.

In American League action, New York beat Washington 4-1, Baltimore took Cleveland 5-3 and Minnesota topped Boston 7-3.

New York extended its win streak to nine games as Al Downing tossed a six-hitter at the Senators, bringing his record to 3-2.

ORVILLE MOODY SHOOTS 67

Army Sergeant Golf Leader

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Rookie pro Orville Moody, a stocky Army veteran who hadn't finished higher on the pro tour than 24th place this season, shot a 5-five-par 67 Saturday to grab the third round lead in the $150,000 Kemper Open golf tournament.

Moody, 34, who barely qualified for the Kemper with a preliminary round 73 last Monday, had been five strokes under par after 36 holes but matched that Saturday to take a one-stroke lead over Bruce Crampton of Australia.

The stocky Moody, a 14-year Army veteran bidding for the $30,000 top prize after earning only $3,464 in earlier tour outings, took the lead with a 206 total stemming from "the best three rounds I've ever played."

Crampton, who sank a putt estimated to be "about 100 feet and maybe 200," also shot a five-under-par 67 for a 54-hole total of 207, one stroke back of Moody and two ahead of Arnold Palmer and natty Doug Sanders. Palmer and Sanders shot 70s for 209 totals while second round co-leader Art Wall had a 73 to drop into fifth place.

Local pro Joe Carr had a 69 to tie with Howie Johnson at 211, five strokes off the pace while host club pro Paul Harney, co-leader with Wall on Friday, soared to a 75 and a 54-hole total of 212.

Harney was joined by Marty Fleckman, who had a 73 after setting the course record at Pleasant Valley Country Club 24 hours earlier with a 66. Dave Stockton and J. C. Goosie also tied with Harney at the 212 level.

Moody, an Oklahoma native playing out of Killeen, Tex., since joining the tour last March, was extremely nervous in his first full-scale news conference but settled down after explaining that his 4-year-old son Todd had said, "That's good work, daddy," after he finished the best round of his pro career.

Crampton heard Moody's remark and said, "I'd like to win this myself but if I can't, I'd like to see Orville do it. I'd just be putting the money in taxes and he could use it."

A gallery officially estimated at 27,500 and "the largest I've ever seen on the first tee" according to PGA official Bob Gorham when a three-some including Harney and Palmer teed off spread over the course but were handled by a beefed-up force of marshalls, some of whom who were hurried to the club earlier in the day.

Joel Goldstrand, a University of Houston product who had been one of the early round leaders, went to 74 Saturday to move into the 216 tie while Phil Rodgers, who had been two-under-par going into the round, had a 71 for a 213 total and Mason Rudolph had a four-over 76 for a 54-hole total of 220.

Mann Ties Miller for Golf Lead

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Money-leader Carol Mann and unheralded Sharon Miller shared a three stroke lead Saturday after the second round of the $11,500 Shirley Englehorn Invitational golf tourney.

Miss Mann, trying to dominate the Ladies Professional Golf Assn. circuit by capturing her ninth title of the season, shot a two-under 69.

Miss Miller, Battle Creek, Mich., one of three first round leaders, came home with a 70. It is the first time the third-year pro has been on top going into the final round.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Few Corrections in Derby Listing

Just as all first-night stage productions and first-model cars have a few boo-boos that have to be ironed out, so does The Independent, Press-Telegram tabulation in the third annual Metropolitan Fishing Derby have a few mistakes.

For instance, the list of four winners under the pier and barge classification of croaker catches was almost identical to the list under surf and bay. The surf and bay list was correct, but the pier and barge list should have read this way:

	Weight	Weight Station
1. J. S. Allshouse	3 lbs. 8 oz.	Belmont Pier
2. Wayne B. Miller	3 lbs. —	Belmont Pier
3. Melvin L. Searcy	2 lbs. 8 oz.	Belmont Pier
4. Ralph Sansarino	2 lbs. 3 oz.	Vern's Bait & Tackle

Also, it was related in Thursday's column that only four persons had submitted daily bass catches qualifying them for the plastic tackle kits which Jed Welsh, the tackle manufacturer, gives for the largest bass (kelp or sand) each day.

In the press of many entries, some of the bass entries were misplaced. So, the following names should be added to that list of winners: Hank Werner, 8 lbs., Pacific Landing; Joseph Torres, 7-4, Norm's Landing; Leslie R. Grant, 7 9, Norm's Landing; Jess Henderson, 5-0, Pierpoint Landing; Rich Matthews, 4-0, Pierpoint Landing.

THOSE CHANGES MAKE ALLSHOUSE a weekly winner and entitled to a free ocean party boat trip, but inasmuch as we already had printed the name of John Philip Sousa, with a 6-8 fish, he, too will have a free trip. We members of the committee in charge of determining the winners regret those first mistakes and hope that no others will occur in the future.

As has been pointed out in prior columns, this derby is to encourage Long Beach and out-of-town residents to come here for late summer fishing and to regard the operators of piers, barges, landings, boats and bait and tackle shops as friendly people, always trying to be of service to the customer.

The Independent, Press-Telegram expects to gain nothing except prestige for its many efforts to build this part of the coast as California's leading recreational center, not only in fishing, but also in all other forms of participating aquatic activities.

We also hope that the derby will be conducted in a fine sportsmanlike manner, with no cheating. The committee already has discovered two instances in which a switch in classification from boat to pier was attempted. The entries were declared void.

No person connected with this derby — boat operators, landing owners, piers and barges, bait and tackle shops — receives one cent in pay. Even their families are barred from the contest. In this way, we hope to keep the derby on a high plane, with sportsmanlike conduct all the time.

THE SPECIAL FLY-FISHING SEASON only opens today at Crowley Lake and continues through Oct. 31, with fishing permitted from shore from the mouth of Convict Lake eastward to North Landing. Only artificial flies and barbless hooks are permitted and the daily limit is five trout. Any trout less than 12 inches in length must be released.

This special season is not for beginners. It takes an expert to bring in a bouncing rainbow or brown trout on a barbless hook. To add to the difficulty of fishing Crowley, there is a tremendous growth of weeds along the shore.

Even though the season ends Oct. 31, trout may be taken legally in all other parts of the Sierra Nevada streams and lakes as late as Nov. 15. The Department of Fish and Game, pointing toward top catches late in the season, is stocking heavily this month. Most of that planting will be discontinued Oct. 1.

If you can take the cool — often cold — weather, particularly at nights, fishing in September and October in the Sierras can be of the best. Trout will take flies better than at any other time, the crowds are back in the smoggy cities and often an angler has a long stretch of a stream for his own pleasure. Give it a try; you may find the best fishing that you have experienced in years.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — The DFG still has more than 300 special first-come, first-served archery permits for that special deer hunt in Los Angeles County from Sept. 21 through Nov. 3 (for antlerless deer) and Nov. 4 through Jan. 31, 1969 (for deer of either sex). The permits are available for $5 in Room 9012, State Building, 107 S. Broadway, Los Angeles 90012 and may be obtained in person or by mail as long as the supply lasts. The archers must not have received previous special deer-hunt tags.

Want to be an instructor in the Hunter Safety Program of the DFG? There is a class starting at 7:30 p.m. Monday (that's tomorrow) in the Hamilton Annex of Venice Adult School, 2955 S. Robertson Ave., Los Angeles. The course will continue for 10 weeks and carries 2½ credits toward a high school diploma. Applicants must be 21 years of age or older and the fee is $5.25, except for those 65 and older.

Japan's Volleyball Queens Play in L.B.

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

Japan's world-famous women's volleyball team will play the USA girls in a final tuneup for the Olympics at the Long Beach Area on Sept. 24.

The defending Olympic champions are noted for their strenuous conditioning programs. Members of the national team are products of a large program which starts with highly organized high school leagues and goes up through several levels of club competition, all of which call for year-round drills.

Japan's national men's team also will meet the U.S. Olympic squad in the second half of the doubleheader starting at 7:30.

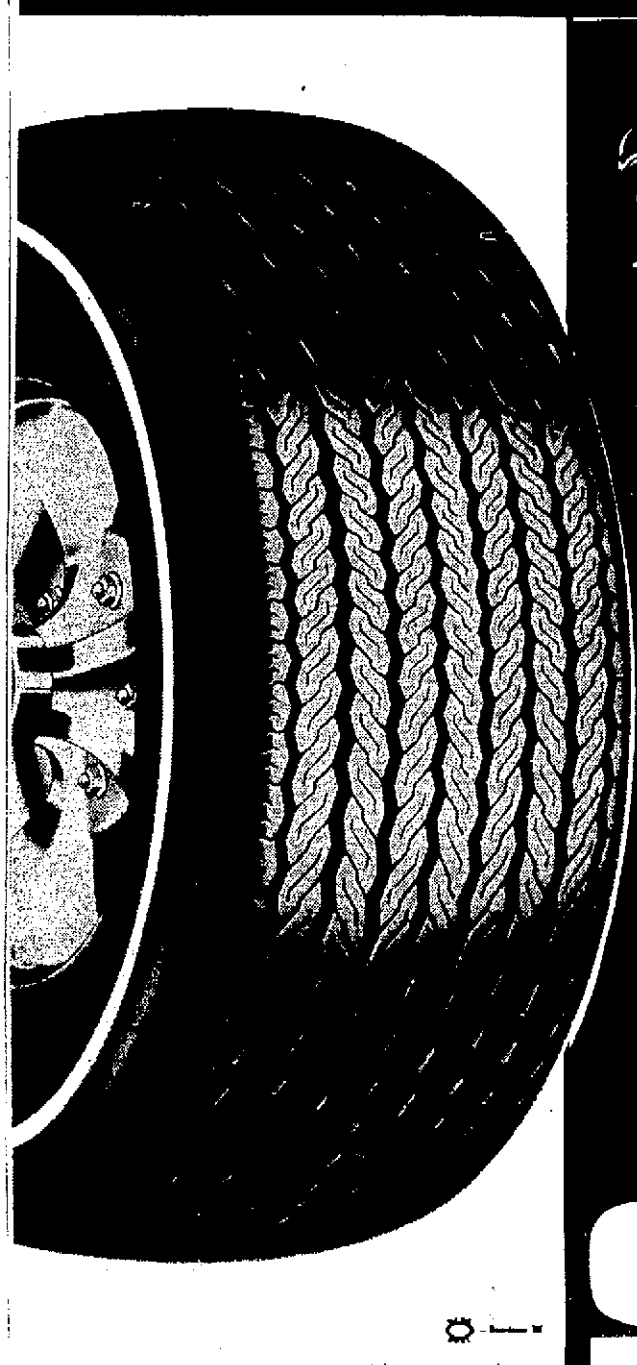

U.S. teams have been organized in recent years to compete against the national squads of Mexico, Japan and Russia.

The women competed in the World Games at Tokyo in 1967, finishing second to Japan. The men were in the World Games at Prague in 1966 and finished 11th out of 22 teams. Both U.S. squads won gold medals in the 1967 Pan American Games.

The Japanese gals have drawn the U.S. in the opening match at Mexico City on Oct. 13. The Japanese men play the USA men on Oct. 23.

The Long Beach appearance is the only tour stop in this country for the Japanese prior to the Olympics. Tickets are on sale daily at the L.B. Arena. Prices are $3.50, $2.50, $1.50 and 75 cents for students.

HURRY! Limited Time Only!

Monday will be filled with excitement for children entering kindergarten—and for their parents, too. Gae Lach, left, teacher at Naples and Willard Elementary Schools, spells it out. Tots beginning school for first time will be warmly welcome. Few will be able to read the word—but all will soon sense its sincere meaning.

A day of high adventure . . . start of school, a new way of life

By IOLA MASTERSON

Monday is The Big Day.

It marks back-to-school for thousands of students.

For kindergarteners entering school for the first time, it may well be the most dramatic moment of their young lives.

A few will play and chatter with the other youngsters. But most will stand in wide-eyed wonder, their little fingers clinging tightly to their mothers' hands or skirts, reluctant to let go.

The scene will be repeated at 57 elementary schools in the Long Beach Unified School District as almost 6,000 tots, averaging five-years of age, begin that memorable, awesome experience — start of formal schooling.

If you are the parent of an entering kindergartener, remember that Monday is a day of high adventure—for both of you.

How can parents make it easier on their children and the teachers as well?

TO FIND OUT, three kindergarten teachers from far-flung areas of town were interviewed. The are Anne (Mrs. Glenn Cook, Longfellow Elementary; Norma (Mrs. Charles) Davis, Garfield Elementary; and Gae (Mrs. Frederick) Lach, whose teaching duties are divided between Naples and Willard Elementary Schools.

Said Mrs. Cook: "Be sure your child is capable of such fundamentals as knowing how to use the bathroom and to hang up his sweater." Mrs. Davis pointed out that kindergarten is simpler for students if they know how to cope with zippers and buttons.

Mrs. Lach forewarned that children should arrive at school well rested and fed. Excitement may hamper normal appetites for awhile, but at least see that your child has as much of his usual foods as possible and that meals are well balanced.

PARENTS WHO express enthusiasm for school will engender an enthusiasm in moppets. For many, this will be a first experience at being away from home and in a strange environment without mother — of being in a group situation where they must share attention with others.

All agreed that each should be taught his full and correct name and address.

After the first day (when mothers are invited to stay with their child through the short, opening session), those escorting little ones to school should see them safely through the gate and leave.

Parents must steel themselves to let go. And it is harder on them than the children much of the time. Especially if the child is reluctant, nervous and shy.

MRS. COOK said that children seldom cry at being left

FIRST THEY WILL GET AQUAINTED WITH THEIR TEACHER
. . . Anne Cook, teacher at Longfellow Elementary, greets Mark, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Loop, and Laura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Holloway, during pre-registration.

Boys win equal exposure; bare knees due on campus

By JOYCE CHRISTENSEN
Staff Writer

Don't banish those Bermudas, boys, they've been given the green light as acceptable attire on all Long Beach high school campuses this fall — so long as they're hemmed. Cutoffs are still cut off.

Younger brothers heading for junior high, however, still will be expected to appear Monday in regular-length trousers, worn at waist level, with "T" shirts tucked in.

For the girls, pant dresses join blouses and skirts, sweaters and skirts, culottes and dresses on the approved list. Since "no undergarments may show below the skirt line," bloomer dresses remain verboten.

The foregoing information is gleaned from the new Senior High School Girls' and Boys' Dress Regulations recommended by joint panels of city-wide school administrators, faculty members and students. Final approval came from the Board of Education, school principals and the director of high schools.

The words "reasonable length" appear in codes of dress for both boys and girls, and relate to the long and short of one of fall's problems — skirts for girls, shirts for boys.

According to one school official, skirts should be no more than four inches above the knee; "T" shirts should not extend below the top of the trouser inseam.

Regulations give no go-ahead to go-aheads and sandals without heel straps are prohibited. While girls are told that "either socks, hose or peds SHOULD be worn," boys are advised, "socks and footwear are required."

Advice on hair, once largely a feminine domain, now gives more attention to the lads than the lasses who are simply cautioned that "no large head coverings, curlers, pin curls or extreme hair styles or colors are appropriate in any classroom."

Now for the fellows.

"Hair should be clean, neat, and trimmed so as not to grow over the ears or collar. Straight vertical sideburns should extend no lower than the bottom of the ear. No beards (defined as the second day unshaven) or goatees are allowed but mustaches ARE permisable if neat and trimmed."

AMONG OTHER taboos for the girls are low necklines, backless and spaghetti strap garments, sheer blouses (unless worn with full slips) high heel, play or lounging clothes.

Using hair spray, applying make-up and manicuring the classroom or cafeteria are termed by the code writers, "violations of good taste."

Boys are cautioned that "jewelry worn to school (the subject is not covered in the girls' regulations) must avoid extremes and be in accordance with district policies pertaining to safety and the general welfare of students."

In other words, "no medallions in the machinery, men!"

Druggists' brew own prescription for informal fling

Once a year men of the Long Beach Pharmaceutical Association host wives at a party, which traditionally takes place at home of Stan and Leota Nickle, 536 Havana Ave. Men give the party—women do all the work! And almost everyone goes swimming in the pool, intentionally or unintentionally.

Eight went in the pool fully clothed this year; many others swam in more conventional suits. This time it was a bring-your-own-steak luau. Among the T-bone toting set in a crowd of 65 were Dick and Yvonne Botzback, Earl and Kathy Crandall, Harry and Dorothy Friedland, Harold and Ruth Gilbert, Floyd and Sandy Savoie, Rick Tead, Don and June Salvatori, Bill and Dani Hawthorne and Hi and Helen Gordon.

Swimming ended at midnight so everyone could eat cake in honor of John January's birthday. John was present as date of hosts' daughter, Penny.

Londons bridge the party gap

WILD WAVES SAY

Splashing into fall on a very high tide of 'sur-ciety'

NOW TO enlarge a dab on the Londons' party (see pictures top right). Sisters-in-law Barbara and Phyllis London have been going to cohost a party for mutual friends of theirs with respective husbands, Jack and Chuck.

They've been going to for a long, long time but they couldn't pin down a date. Finally, they just picked a day and fired out invitations. There was no purpose or theme except friendship.

Lucked out on their date because moon was near full and weather as balmy as Hawaii. Dressy cocktail buffet was at Barbara and Jack's. Partymates had choice of indoor or outdoor settings in which to roam and visit. A few in well-dressed set socializing the night away were John and Norma Craig, Art and Muriel Le Va, Don and Bette Barden, Bob and Lorraine Webb.

Others in merry mood were Chuck and Barbara Price, Kenny and Bobbie White, Jimmy and Don Nutter, Gene and Thelma Dreckman, Bob and Fran Ceniceros, Dick and Johnni Simmons, Ed and Lou Lovall, Bernie and Laurel Specht, "Phil" and Rene Fillipow and Bill and Jane Began.

Phyllis and Chuck were delighted that son, Steve, 20, could be there as well as her parents, Art and Marvel Jones. Both of Barbara and Jack's daughters, Terri, 19, and Christy, 17, were also there to assist.

WINE TASTING party Friday at Edgewater Inn attracted several hundred members of the Forty Niners Club, booster group for all athletic events at Cal State, Long Beach. It was seasonal kick-off before start of collegian studies and honored entire athletic staff. Don Dyer, president of Forty Niners, was chairman and he and wife, Linda, glad-handed upwards of 500 attending.

Assisting were Dan and Charleen Swanson, John and Jill Uttz and Dr. Fred Miller, CSCLB Athletic Director.

Present and accounted for were Dr. Carl McIntosh, president and administrator of the college, and his wife, Mary Carroll, plus all the coaches and wives. Boosters in attendance included Sandy and Liz Lucas, Joe and Margaret Saylor, Gary and Lynn Little, Dick and Bunny Kussman, CSCLB Dean Clarence Bergland and wife, Dorothy, and Mrs. Florence Johnson, one of the greatest boosters of them all.

All Long Beachers are urged to join the Forty Niners and support our college, biggest in the California State system. If you wanta join (and they wantcha to) call or write Don Dyer, associate attorney in law offices of Lucas and Deukmejian, 100 Long Beach Blvd.

IF ALL has gone according to plans, Dave Tallichet brought wife, Cecilia, and their very new baby boy home from Memorial Hospital Saturday.

Dave, who has named his various restaurants without batting an eye, was given responsibility of choosing his new son's name by Cecilia. Tell thee true, he laid awake nights putting together proper monickers and finally chose James Lee as a fine name. Baby will automatically become Jimmy Lee, in tradition of the South's fondness for double names for boys, and will fit nicely into papa's background as a native of Dallas, Texas.

Jimmy Lee went home to sister, Catherine, 7, and brothers, Billy, 5, and John, 4.

GRANDMA for the first time is Mary Ellis Carlton. Her daughter and son-in-law, Susie and Frank Campanelli, have an adorable baby girl, if Mary does say so herself! They named her Kimberly Ann.

Seems to us Susie set some kind of a first-time record for first-time mothers. She was in the hospital just 36 hours from the time of Kimberly's birth until she was home and tending to baby, self and Frank with aplomb.

Other grandparents (who think Kimberly is adorable, too) are Frank and Joan Campanelli of Lakewood.

THE PRICE Bill Price had to pay for his current freezerful of fish almost added up to frostbite. He and Helen went to Lake Mary in the High Sierras and happened to get entangled in one of those early cold snaps. But Bill fished despite snow, hail and rain.

Helen enjoyed the fishing, too. Eating all the brookies and rainbow trout he caught but not holding a pole under those conditions. She just stayed snug in their cabin, toasting before a blazing fireplace.

Having had their winter this summer, they plan to have their summer next summer and go on a trek to Tahiti.

ACTING LIKE tourists, and making no bones about it, are Muriel Trostle and son, Courtney III, 10. They flew to San Francisco Thursday to spend a week at the St. Francis and just mosey all around town.

HIGH ADVENTURE on a river for brothers Don and Jack Crawford ended midweek. They took a five-day rubber raft ride through the rapids of the Colorado from Lees Ferry to Deer Creek Falls.

Riding the bow of the raft, the most exciting place, Don fell in when they came upon a particularly hazardous section of rapids, and part of the raft became deflated. The part he was on. He was dragged under, his foot got caught in a line, through the pounding water for what seemed like an eternity. Jack grabbed him and managed to get him back aboard, gasping, dripping and feeling mighty lucky.

QUICK, MERRY visit here to their old home town from Sacramento was made by Bill and Dolores Daugherty. They moved to the capital about two years ago when Bill was transferred to become assistant director of Youth for California.

John and Mary Lou Dixon and Keaton and Coleen King cohosted a dinner party for them at the Dixons', 2260 San Vicente Ave. A few of their old friends an hand to give the visitors the glad hand were Bob and Joleen Decker, Larry and Joan O'Toole, Tom and Katie Milovich, Joe and Larnell Schoolcraft, Alan and Tiny Payne, Joe and Mary Ellen Spinelli and Bill and Jinny Casey.

The Jay Scrivengers entertained Dolores and Bill on their 40-foot cruiser, Weekender, and Dolores and Bill had numerous little get-togethers with other old friends in thei rmotel suite.

Larry A. Collins Sr. weds Loraine Miller Saturday

A quiet wedding ceremony Saturday, witnessed by members of their immediate families, united Loraine Huntington Miller and Larry A. Collins Sr.

Vows were said at 5 p.m. at the home of the bridegroom's daughter, Mrs. Patricia Collins Cameron, against a background of soft candlelight and muted harp music.

Officiating clergyman at the Episcopalian rite was Chaplain Robert Gunter of Memorial Hospital. Winifred Huntington Martin of Los Angeles was matron of honor for her cousin; Larry A. Collins Jr. was best man for his father.

The former Mrs. Earl Burns Miller (Loraine) is a charter member of Assistance League of Long Beach and has, for a number of years, been chairman, with Mrs. Douglas A. Newcomb as cochairman, of the Howard Oriental Collection information committee for the league. She is well known for her knowledge and interest in Oriental art and Wedgwood ware.

She was one of the founders of the Volunteer Auxiliary to Memorial Hospital, of which she is a past president. She and her late husband endowed Children's Hospital, now under construction at Memorial bearing their names.

She is affiliated with Long Beach Regional Arts Council and serves on its board of directors.

Collins Sr. was editor-publisher of the Independent. He sold his interests when it merged with the Press-Telegram. He has continued as a columnist for the I, P-T, writing the daily L.A.C. Says column.

He is a past president of Community Chest and past president of Long Beach Rotary Club. In addition, he has long served as a member of the advisory board of California State College at Long Beach and is on the board of directors of Downtown Long Beach Business Associates.

Family friends for many years, the newlyweds also have worked on various civic and cultural projects.

Ear alert for symphony

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Henri Temianka will sit in Room 105 of the Music Building at California State College, Long Beach, listening to music.

He will hear string players, wind players, brass players, percussion players.

From this parade he will choose about 70 musicians for the college symphony orchestra which he conducts. A distinguished concert violinist and conductor, Temianka is professor of music at CSLB and founder and director of the California Chamber Symphony.

Each Wednesday at 7 p.m., the CSLB symphony will rehearse music from the classics to the contemporaries and will give several concerts during the year with guest artists. One unit of credit may be earned. First rehearsal will be Sept. 25.

SAID TEMIANKA, "While I would like everyone to be aware of the exciting things we have done, such as having Aaron Copland and Darius Milhaud here to conduct the college symphony, I wouldn't want to frighten away students who fear that they aren't advanced enough.

"Our purpose is to help them advance and gain experience. While we have had such outstanding soloists as pianist Jimmy Fields who since has appeared with the Philadelphia Orchestra and at Hollywood Bowl, and Christine Walevska, brilliant young concert cellist, I want the college students to realize that they, too, will have many opportunities to appear as soloists and as guest conductors in rehearsals and concerts."

Flea mart at benefit

A benefit fashion show and flea market will be staged Saturday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Leslie I. Ferrell, 1431 E. La Palma Ave., Anaheim.

Hostesses will be members of the Hildred Ferrell Circle, of the Florence Crittenton Home.

In addition to the fashion show directed by Florence Smales of Newport Beach, a program of Hawaiian and Tahitian dancing will be presented by Mrs. Marilyn Mason of Palm Springs and her daughter, Kaye, a 1968 debutante of the Orange County Symphony Association.

The flea market will sell everything from gourmet food to antiques.

Funds raised by the event will go to the proposed $500,000 Crittenton Home for Unwed Mothers to be built in Orange early in 1969.

MRS. STEPHEN C. DANIEL

HONEYMOON SPOTS

Couples travel to the islands

Jayde Ann Worley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lloyd Worley of Seal Beach, became the bride of Stephen Clay Daniel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clay Daniel of Decatur, Ga., at Wieuca Road Baptist Church in Atlanta.

In the bride's entourage were Mrs. John W. Nyquist, Mrs. Marvin W. Thome Jr., sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Thomas J. Feltenstein and Carol Ann Jefferson.

Richard Scott Daniel, the bridegroom's brother, was best man. John W. Nyquist, Robert H. Cleveland, Marvin W. Thome Jr., Robert E. Powell and Luther W. Humphreys Jr., were ushers.

After honeymooning in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, the couple will reside in Wichita, Kan. The bride graduated from Wilson High School and Long Beach City College, where she was an Alpha Gamma Sigma. The bridegroom, a Kappa Sigma, is an alumnus of Georgia State College.

Gadd-Hansen

A home in Japan awaits Mr. and Mrs. Richard Edward Gadd following their honeymoon in Hawaii.

The Gadds were wed Saturday in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Temple, Los Angeles. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gadd, 3814 Lees Ave.

The former Leanne Hansen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Phil Hansen, 3816 Woodruff Ave., wore an empire gown of silk organza and Alencon lace with chapel train.

She was attended by her three sisters, Mrs. Roger W. Sant, Mrs. Michael C. Brown and Kay Lynn Hansen.

Marion R. Montierth was best man. Ushers were David Phil Hansen, brother of the bride, and Gary Gadd, borther of the bridegroom.

Shari Lynn Sant was flower girl and Michael J. Sant, ring bearer.

Areception in the gardens of the home of the bride's parents honored the newlyweds.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gadd attended Long Beach City College. Before joining the Air Force, the bridegroom served in Argentina as a missionary for his church. He is an alumnus of Millikan High School.

MRS. DECATUR L. DILDAY

Dilday-Ray vows read

Wedding vows were exchanged Saturday morning in St. Cornelius Catholic Church by Linda Lee Ray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Ray, 5742 Monlaco Road, and Decatur L. Dilday.

More than 500 guests witnessed the marriage rite and also attended the poolside reception which followed in the Country Club Drive home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Barnett.

The bride wore an empire gown of peau de soie with reembroidered Chantilly lace bodice and sleeves. Completing the gown was a nine-foot train of reembroidered Chantilly.

Complementing the all-white of her attire were the deep rose gowns of her attendants, Christine Schima, maid of honor; Mmes. R. Burr Dilday, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Gary Huff, his sister, matrons of honor; another sister, Cindy Dilday, Jean Jonlick, Debby Townsend and Suzanne Landry, bridesmaids; Keely Huff, junior bridesmaid; Gina Dilday, flower girl.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. Paul W. Herklotz of Rolling Hills and the late Robert F. Dilday, was attended by his brother, R. Burr Dilday as best man. Guests were seated by Gary Huff, Larry Ray, brother of the bride, Jim Jones, Earl Dunstan, Jim Richardson, Richard Rebel and Danny Buehn, junior escort. Tad Dilday was ring bearer.

Mrs. Dilday was graduated from St. Anthony High School and Long Beach City College School of Nursing where she affiliated with TNT. She is active in Long Beach Air Belles. Her husband is an alumnus of Polytechnic High School and California College of Mortuary Science.

San Francisco trip for Ellises

MRS. WILLIAM ELLIS

The solemn beauty of a Nuptial Mass Saturday at St. Athanasius Catholic Church, united Patricia L. Feldman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Feldman, 5935 Walnut Ave., and William J. Ellis, son of Mrs. John J. Ellis, Whitehouse Station, N.J.

The bride designed her gown, an empire line of French ribbon lace over peau de soie.

In her entourage were her sister, Janice Feldman, maid of honor; Mrs. Michael Denny and Mrs. Thomas Kota, bridesmaids.

The bride's brother, Douglas Feldman was best man. James Feldman, twin brother of the maid of honor, and Robert Ellis were ushers.

A buffet reception at the parish hall honored the newlyweds. The couple will reside in Long Beach after a honeymoon at Morro Bay and San Francisco.

Mrs. Ellis graduated from St. Anthony's High School and Immaculate Heart College, where she was a member of Theta Iota Pi Sorority. Her husband was educated in New Jersey schools and at Rutgers University.

Miss O'Shea, R. E. Moore are married

In a 1 p.m. ceremony Saturday, Richard E. Moore claimed as his bride Maria Louise O'Shea. Vows were exchanged in picturesque St. Bartholomew's Catholic Church in the presence of 300 wedding guests.

The former Miss O'Shea, who is a native of Dublin, Ireland, is the daughter of Mrs. Walter Ratchford of Riverside. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harrison E. Moore, 5601 Sorrento Drive.

The bride wore a gown of ivory silk organza with reembroidered lace appliques. Styled with empire bodice, it had a double panel train of silk organza with Alencon lace. She wore a Spanish mantilla, also of silk organza, richly appliqued with lace, seed pearls and sequins.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Ivo Ridge, sister of the bride, and other bridal attendants were Gerri O'Shea, Beth McNeely and Mrs. Ronald Clayton.

The bridegroom's brother, Larry, was best man. Ushering were Jon Masterson, Jon Green, Gerald Garrett and John Griffin. Ring bearer was Terone Ridge.

MRS. RICHARD E. MOORE

After a honeymoon to Northern California, the newlyweds will reside in Hollywood.

Following the wedding, the young couple was feted at a reception at the home of his parents.

Torget-Hinds vows read

A reception in Petroleum Club honored Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lee Torget following their marriage Saturday at 2 p.m. in St. Maria Goretti Catholic Church.

The bride is the former Kathleen Barbara Hinds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Hinds, 2734 Iroquois Ave. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arne O. Torget, 3140 Arlotte Ave.

As she recited vows, Miss Hinds wore an empire gown of Chantilly lace over peau de soie with a cathedral-length train.

Her sister, Mrs. Donald B. Swensson, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Betty Jo Mears and Lorraine McGee.

Stephen Poer was best man. The 200 guests were seated by A. James Torget, Campbell Killefer and Donald Swensson.

The couple will return from a honeymoon in Northern California Sept. 21 to establish residence in Long Beach.

H.M.S. Pinafore launches Junior Programs set sail

Junior Programs of Long Beach will launch its new season Oct. 12 with a rollicking version of "H.M.S. Pinafore" by the Los Angeles Savoy-Artes Repertory Gilbert and Sullivan Company.

All productions will be staged at 10 a.m. and again at noon in Long Beach City College Auditorium, Harvey Way between Clark and Faculty Avenues.

The second attraction, "Simple Simon," Nov. 16, will be given by Lynwood Children's Theater. It tells the story of the brave, honest lad who saves the princess.

"The Hobbitts," a musical comedy about the Little People who inhabit Middle Earth, produced and directed by Bluth Bros., is booked for Jan. 25.

On Feb. 22, the Valentina Oumansky Dramatic Dance Ensemble will perform contemporary dances.

LONG BEACH Children's Theater's "Ali Baba and the 40 Thieves" March 1 will bring the exciting, mystical story of an adventure with sultans, robbers, slave girls and Ali Baba's companion, Hud-Hud, the donkey.

Buddy Youngreen is producer and director of "Adventures of Harlequin," to be staged April 19. It is a Comedia-del-Arte dramatization of the life of an actor in old Italy.

The series will end May 3 with "Conquest Island," a mythical story of California's Amazon Queen, produced and directed by Burnett Ferguson.

THE ENTIRE season of seven productions is only $3 for children aged 5 to 12, and adults. Brochures and order forms may be obtained from Mrs. Sheridan Thorup, 351 Daroca Ave. Brochures also are at all Long Beach branch libraries, Buffums', Walker's and J.C. Penney's department stores and the Children's Bootery. Single admission tickets, when available, will be 75 cents.

Junior Programs of Long Beach originated in 1957 to provide a cultural background for children.

The local working committee is made up of women interested in providing children with the best in live theater entertainment and audience etiquette.

Chairman for the 1968-69 season is Mrs. John Vander Lans.

Rasmussen, Robicheau vows read

14vh Rasmussen-Robicheau

A wedding in St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church in South Weymouth, Mass. united Karen A. Robicheau and Roland S. Rasmussen.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Noble L. Rasmussen of Lakewood. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Robicheau of South Weymouth.

The ceremony took place Saturday with Mary and Nelson Lockhart as honor attendants.

Bridesmaids were Anita Russo and Elaine Cotugno. Ushers were Edward Robicheau and Edward McElhiney.

A reception in Braintree, Mass., honored the newlyweds who will honeymoon in Nassau, Bahama Islands, before returning to California to make their home in Lakewood.

Presbyterian rite joins Cain-Gordon

In the presence of 250 guests Saturday afternoon at Lakewood First Presbyterian Church, Kathleen Marie Gordon exchanged wedding vows with Larry Carder Cain.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Euell T. Gordon, 3684 Karen Ave., and Mr. and Mrs. Carder P. Cain Jr., 4258 Ostrom Ave.

For her marriage, Miss Gordon wore a formal gown of chiffon and Venise lace with a chapel-length Watteau train.

Her sister, Linda Gordon, was maid of honor. Dave Hagman was best man.

Other members of the wedding party were Paulett Clark and Linda Smith, bridesmaids; Harold Fox, Glen Thompson, Michael Misiner and Bruce Young, ushers.

The bridal pair left a champagne reception at American Legion Hall, Lakewood, to begin a honeymoon in Northern California, Lake Tahoe and Palm Springs. They will reside in Whittier.

A mother's reflections at the summer's end

By ERMA BOMBECK

The end of summer is to me like New Year's Eve. I sense an end to something carefree and uninhibited, sandy and warm, cold and melting, barefoot and tanned.

And yet I look forward with great expectation to a beginning of schedules and appointments, bookbinders with little tabs, freshly sharpened pencils, crisp winds, efficiency and routine.

I am sadly aware of a great rushing of time as I lengthen skirts and discard sweaters that hit above the wristbones. Time is moving and I want to stop it for just a while so that I may snatch a quiet moment and tell my children what it is I want for them and what all the shouting has been about.

The moment never comes, of course. I must compete with Captain Kangaroo, a baseball game, a Monkee Record, a playmate, a cartoon or a new bike in the next block. So, I must keep these thoughts inside . . .

Too fast . . . you're moving too fast. Don't be in such a hurry to trade formulas for formals. You're going to own your own sports car before you've tried to build one out of orange crates and four baby buggy wheeels. You're going to explore the world before you've explored the wonders of your own back yard.

IF I COULD only be sure all the lessons are sinking in and are being understood. How can I tell you about disappointments? You'll have them, you know. And they'll be painful, they'll hurt, they'll shatter your ego, lay your confidence in yourself bare, and sometimes cripple your initiative. But people don't die from them. They just emerge stronger.

I want you to hear the thunder, so you can appreciate the calm. I want you to fall on your face in the dirt once in a while, so you will know the pride of being able to stand tall. Learn to live with the words "No! You can't! You're out! You blew it! I don't know." and "I made a mistake."

Adults are always telling young people, "These are the best years of your life."

Are they? I don't know. Sometimes when adults say this to children I look into their faces. They look like someone on the top seat of the Ferris wheel who has had too much cotton candy and barbecue. He'd like to get off and be sick but everyone keeps telling him what a good time he's having.

DO NOT imagine for a moment that I don't feel your fears and anxieties. Youth does not have an immunity from disappointments and heartbreaks. No one does.

Fears begin the day you were born: fear of baths, bed wetting, the dark, falling off the sink where you are being bathed, strangers throwing you into the air and not catching you, going hungry, noises, open pins.

Later it's monsters, parents leaving and not coming back, death hurts, and bad dreams. School only adds to anxieties. Fear of not having friends, being called upon and not knowing the answers, telling the truth when you're going to be punished, not getting to the bathroom in time, not being accepted, not getting the car, worrying about war, marriage, career, making money, being attractive to the opposite sex and making the grades to graduate.

Fears are normal. We all have them. Parents have the greatest fears of all. For we are responsible for this life which we have brought into this world. There is so much to teach and the time goes so fast . . .

December wedding date set by Pamela Jean Rudden

Rear Adm. Thomas J. Rudden Jr., USN, and Mrs. Rudden, have announced engagement of their daughter, Pamela Jean, to Capt. Jaxon A.White Jr., USA.

The wedding will be held Dec. 21 in Washington, D.C.

Parents of the bride-to-be, formerly of Bethesda, Md., now reside in Long Beach where Adm. Rudden recently assumed command of Cruiser-Flotilla 3.

The bride-elect has a degree in education from the University of Maryland. She plans to teach this fall.

Her husband-to-be, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jaxon A. White of Mendham, N.J., graduated from Rutgers University with a degree in pharmacy. He is at present adjutant of the Andrew Rader Army Clinic at Ft. Myer, Va.

The couple met at the 1967 National Cherry Blossom Festival where the bride-elect was representing the state of New Jersey as queen.

Tots to have big adventure

anymore. Ten years or so ago crying was commonplace among the tin neophytes during the first few days. Nevertheless, they are still very shy.

Asked what teachers do to put their little charges at ease, they explained that they gather them together as a group as quickly as possible. They thel them an interesting story to get their minds off the strange room they're in and explain the surroundings. They encourage students to explore the room and familiarize themselves with the many toys, chairs and flannel board used to illustrate stories and games. Students are given name tags when they first enter and the teacher always calls the children by name. Within a day or two they know by heart the name of every little Mark, Jimmy, Cheryl and Sue. Being called by name is soothing to the new student and is among the many little ricks employed to make him feel he belongs.

Another first day procedure is to tell the children things that mothers who are there should know, too.

LIKE WHAT are the proper things to bring to school to share. Sharing is a great panacea because nothing brings children together more quickly. Mostly the share-things brought are from nature . . . nests, snails, lizards (teachers must be brave, too-), turtles, shells.

The child who won't conform to group activity is the most difficult for the teacher. Patiently and gently — but with necessary firmness — she must insist that he conform. Parents who train their children to carry out simple instructions without delay earn the teachers' heartfelt gratitude.

TYPICAL student reaction at start of school is a desire to learn everything at once. They can't understand why they aren't able to read and write by the end of the first week — or even the first day. It takes patience and understanding on the part of the teacher to impress on their five-year olds that they CAN'T learn everything immediately and, at the same time, maintain their high level of enthusiasm.

Parents complain that their youngsters don't tell them what's going in school. Advice to mothers and dads is to wait. Don't pester your child with too many questions. It's the child's first OWN experience outside the family circle. He wants to keep it to himself for awhile, like a secret and prized possession.

ONLY CHILDREN are the ones who have the uphill battle unless they have had the opportunity to be with other children a great deal in pre-school years. Twins have difficulty, too, in adjusting because for the first time in their lves they are separated. Twns are almost always put in different classes so that they develop independence.

Mrs. Davis said an excellent method of bringing out the very shy student is giving him duties to do. Finding that the teacher needs him is a big morale booster.

"There should be NO failures in kindergarten," according to Mrs. Cook. "We try never to present a situation to a child that he can't handle."

Little ones are given training in reading, writing and number readiness to prepare them for first grade when such studies begin in earnest.

AND WHAT about that glorious part of every day — recess? It's a time for fun and vigorous activity. Those who don't enter into the spirit of wholesome exercise are gently urged to do so.

Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Lach are typical kindergarten teachers. All feel a great tenderness for the children. They will do everything in their power to make school as warm and friendly a place as is humanly possible.

MOM AND DAD — leave your little guy or doll at the schoolyard gate with your hearts at ease. A new world is opening to them and new worlds take time to conquer.

Home in Provo for Hanrahans

Friday at 10 a.m. in the Los Angeles Temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Cathy Lynn George exchanged wedding vows with Robert Leroy Hanrahan.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph George, 3042 Rowena Drive, Rossmoor, the bride wore a gown of silk organza over peau de soie trimmed with Alencon lace and seed pearls.

She was attended by Carlene George, Cindee George, Beverly Stevens and Diane Sorenson.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hanrahan, 4435 Shadeway Road, Lakewood, asked Gerald Bates to serve as best man. Floyd George ushered.

FRIDAY evening the newly-married couple was feted at a reception at the Latter-day Saints Institute of Religion, Long Beach.

She is a graduate of Western High School and he of Lakewood High School. After a honeymoon in Carmel, both will continue studies at Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah.

Club sets country hoedown

"Y'all come!" East Long Beach Juniors will be calling their friends between now and 8 p.m. Saturday when they stage an old-fashioned barn dance at Compton Hunting and Fishing Club.

Besides live country music, country food and a peck of door prizes are programmed. Mrs. Charles Williams, president, invites the public to attend.

Ticket information may be obtained from Mrs. Larry Hendel or Mrs. Thomas Rasmussen. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Lake Tahoe honeymoon trip for pair

In a garden setting in Yorba Linda Saturday, Susan Nancy Connally, daughter of Mrs. Jacqueline Harmon, 535 St. Louis Ave., and Wilson Connally of Reno, Nev., became the bride of Richard Nichols Nettleton.

The wedding was held before 125 guests at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. MacMahon.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Esposito of Los Angeles and Richard Nettleton of Vista.

The bride made her own wedding gown, a lace cage over peau de soie.

She was attended by Mrs. John McGough, her two cousins, Gene Miller and Katie MacMahon; and Dorothy Alsup, cousin of the bridegroom.

James Alsup, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man. John Blankenship, Michael Ward, John Campbell, cousin, and John McGough, uncle of the bride, were ushers.

After their honeymoon at Lake Tahoe, Mr. and Mrs. Nettleton will make their first home in Long Beach.

JACOBY

Montreal favored, still lost

While the Twin Cities nosed out Montreal in the intercity bridge match played as a preliminary to the Summer National Championships of the A.C.B.L., the biggest swing in the match was in favor of Montreal.

At one table, the Twin City pair reached seven spades. The Montreal West was too smart to double. Had he done so, chances are his opponents would run out to seven no-trump, which makes easily because the club finesse will work.

At the other table, Montreal reached seven diamonds on the bidding shown in the box. South's five no-trump bid was the grand slam force. Ely Culbertson invented this bid back in the '30s but it was too sophisticated for those early days. It disappeared into limbo for almost 30 years but has been brought back by today's experts.

EAST'S double of seven diamonds was another old-time gadget. The Lightner slam double called for an unusual lead against an adverse slam.

If either North or South had run to seven no-trump, East would have been sorry for his double. He was sorry anyway when his partner led a heart. South ruffed in his hand, ran off all his trumps, cashed his ace, king and queen of spades, entered dummy with the king of clubs, discarded his last two spades on the ace and king of hearts and led the five of clubs. East had been forced to unguard his queen of clubs in order to keep a high heart, and Montreal picked up 21 International Match Points on this one hand.

To dedicate 'gift to people'

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Next Sunday at 2 p.m. on the grounds of Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., the Museum Association officially will give to the City of Long Beach a metal sculpture by Peter Voulkos.

Dr. Maurice M. Rosenbaum, president of the association, will make the presentation to City Manager John Mansell and museum director Jason Wong will say a few words about contemporary sculpture. After the pleasant ceremony, the audience will be invited to enjoy refreshments and view the new museum exhibit of ceramic sculpture by Larry Shep who studied with Voulkos in 1958 at Los Angeles County Art Institute.

This is the third significant gift which the Museum Association has commissioned for the museum.

Said Wong, "The sculptural pieces are a gift to the Long Beach Museum of Art and, as such, are presented for the pleasure of the people of Long Beach."

The public, he added, is most cordially invited to the dedication.

THE MUSEUM ASSOCIATION first envisioned a sculpture garden in January, 1964. The board of directors set up an acquisition fund for this purpose and in 1965 the first work was installed.

Of welded copper tubing and fused glass, the 3-foot diameter "Point as a Set No. 16" by Claire Falkenstein was placed just outside the museum entrance. Miss Falkenstein is internationally acclaimed for her architectural commissions in Europe and in this country. In 1965 she completed "Sculptured Water" for the California Federal Savings and Loan Building in Los Angeles more recently a large sculptured work was placed in a reflecting pool in front of the administration building at California State College, Long Beach.

In different mood is "Flora-Fauna" by Harry Bertoia which was the Museum Association's gift in 1966.

This work, which stands beside a walk, seems to invite passersby to stroke its surface of bronze rods, to listen to its strange, other-world sounds. Bertoia created it during the time he was exploring sculptures with sound and motion and said, "It may be something suggestive of the life in the Pacific."

Contract for the new Voulkos sculpture was signed Aug. 16, 1967, when Dallas H. Conklin was president of the Museum Association. The previous president, Leslie E. Still Jr., had appointed the acquisition committee which made the selection — Don E. Raney, chairman; Mrs. John F. Feeney, Mrs. Robert Newhouse, Dr. Rosenbaum and Mrs. Garland Sinow.

Standing 10-feet high, the great work is bold against sea and sky. As yet it is untitled. "Titles mean nothing to me," said the sculptor.

Voulkos, who was born in 1924 in Bozeman, Mont., teaches ceramics at UC, Berkeley. He casts his metal sculptures in his own foundry at his Berkeley studio. His one-man exhibits include those at the Museum of Modern Art, the Felix Landau and the David Stuart galleries in Los Angeles, Art Institute of Chicago and USC.

THE PUBLIC also is invited to a meeting of Long Beach Art Association Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the LBAA Gallery, 800 E. Ocean. Special attraction will be a showing of color slides of the association's recent Sidewalk Art Festival. Sandy Kemp, director of the International Sea Festival, of which the outdoor art show was a part, will give the commentary.

LONG BEACH Jewish Community Center, 2601 Grand Ave., will stage its second annual Art Fair today from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Artists will demonstrate techniques of pottery, serigraphy, sculpture, jewelry crafting, collage and sketching. There is no admission charge. The entire community is invited.

Arts

'West Coast Now' points direction

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"West Coast Now" is an exciting collection of 88 works by 62 artists. It will continue at Los Angeles Municipal Gallery in Barnsdall Park through next Sunday.

Artists can no longer be put in such neat categories as "painter," "sculptor," or "craftsman." Dimensional works are painted, wall-hung works are dimensional. Materials like plexiglas, acrylic, masonite, and lacquer are all combined in one work. A fourth dimension of time often is added by movement of the work or by moving light.

Thus, many of these works are in a state of creating themselves, or, by their many aspects, cause the viewer in his walking or looking around them to participate in the creative process.

Fletcher Benton's symmetrical pieces are framed in shapes of mirror-finished metal within which planes of transparent color on plexiglas move soundlessly, creating new forms and colors as they overlap.

Don Potts positioned the two halves of "Up Tight—Out of Sight" on heavy springs so they bounce reciprocally.

LAWRENCE BECK'S steel sculpture, "Shazan Zonker," is of massive, welded "H" and "I" beams, some twisted, painted white, marigold, and orange. Two coiled five-inch springs bobble around invitingly.

Many of the works rest horizontally. "Sacto Meander" by Richard Randall is like ribbon Christmas candy, only it's molded fiberglass lacquered red, white and blue. Six two-foot wide loops rise and return three feet from the floor, extending for 12 feet.

R. ALLEN JENSEN'S "Peace Brother" is a wall hung, black work, 86 inches high, 56 inches wide, coming forward from its frame 20 inches. A photographed face surmounts a torso strapped into leather around which swirls painted bunting. A handless arm proffers a stuffed white pigeon and a crucifix.

These few samples are indications of the directions without boundaries being taken by "West Coast Now." It is a wildly astonishing collection which shares the quality of beautiful workmanship.

'Funny Girl' to open CLO's 21st season

Long Beach Civic Light Opera will open its coming-of-age 21st season with "Funny Girl" Oct. 31 through Nov. 10 in the Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium.

This will be the first time CLO has produced the musical story of Fanny Brice, star of the Ziegfeld Follies.

The season will end with another first for the company, "Carnival," July 10 through 20.

In between are two repeat shows, "Oklahoma," Feb. 6 through 16, and "Camelot," May 1 through 11.

Season tickets, with a savings of 10 percent or more over the price of single admission tickets, are on sale at CLO headquarters, 518 E. Fourth St., or by mail. For brochure and information, write Long Beach Civic Light Opera Association, P.O. Box 20280, Long Beach 90801.

Free concert

The Fashion Island Pops Concert Orchestra under direction of Henry Brandon will play another free concert Friday at 9:15 p.m. from the stage court in the shopping center's Center Mall.

Fashion Island is in Newport Beach off MacArthur Boulevard and Pacific Coast Highway.

PCC exhibit

The public is invited to a reception today from 3 to 5 p.m. in Pacific Coast Club, 850 E. Ocean Blvd., which will open the second annual PCC Membership Show. Mrs. Leo Malco, artist and PCC art director, will be hostess.

Velma and Ben Messick, Helen and Walt Allen Smith, Ellen R. Conaty and Mrs. Zina Florentine judged the show which will continue through October.

Complexion Beautifier

The complexion takes on a peaches - and - cream look through the use of a tropical moist oil with remarkable beautifying properties. It is isotonic in action, assisting the plasma colloids (the skin's water carriers) to retain a balanced moisture level at the skin's surface, so that the complexion acquires a glorious bloom. Smoothed over the face and neck before make-up is applied, this moist oil of Olay helps the skin to enjoy clear loveliness. Ask your druggist for a supply for your personal needs.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF JEWISH WOMEN

Gardens are for pretty parties

National Council of Jewish Women will launch fall activities at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday with a garden party in the Lakewood home of Mrs. Harold Warren, 4300 Park View Drive.

Mrs. Andrew Baratelle, president, and Mrs. Allan Schulman, vice president, will head the reception line at the event which also marks beginning of the annual membership drive.

Assisting Mrs. Paul Hartstein and Mrs. Norman Gordon, chairmen, will be Mmes. Raymond Abraham, Robert Freedman, Ronald Hartman, Daniel Hyman, Abe Forman, Allan Kolsky, Jerry Rose, Allan Schulman, Harry Pilchman, Thomas Roseberg, Lester Baker, Lou Ozan, Gerard Frankel, Robert Bearson, and Bernard Gruber.

The Council is recruiting volunteers for various community projects. These include Head Start, Women's Job Corps, Senior Adult programs, and recreation activities for mental patients.

Fro reservations call Mrs. Allan Schulman, 4012 Bouton Drive, Lakewood, or Mrs. Hy Slobodkin, 5711 Spring St.

DEAR ABBY

Illness lurks behind his leer

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am interested in your reply to "DIRTY OLD MAN'S WIFE." You said, "He's sick. Get him to a doctor." I've known for years that my husband is "sick." It is so humiliating to sit in a restaurant with him while he flirts with the waitresses, or any woman sitting nearby whose eye he happens to catch. And when he stares at the young girls from their feet up, and then down again, I want to run!

I meet my friends away from my home because they won't come by if they know he's there. I have many worthwhile interests, such as music, gardening, books and church work, but, O, for a companion to grow old with!

Yes, I realize he's sick. But how do you get a man in his 60's to a doctor?

—WISHFUL THINKING

DEAR WISHFUL: You can't call the men in the white coats and ask them to come and throw a net over him. But you can call your family doctor and tell him what you have told me. Together you can work out a scheme to get your husband to submit to a PHYSICAL examination. The mental examination can be subtly worked in without arousing suspicion. There IS help for your husband's illness (and it IS an illness) —and it's more common than you think.

DEAR ABBY: Please help, quick. My 17-year-old daughter is very pretty and an honor student. Our home life has always been good, and she's had the best examples and upbringing. The trouble? She wants to visit a boyfriend who now lives 100 miles away. He would pay her train fare and put her up in a motel for the night.

She sees nothing wrong with this and calls me "evil minded old hag" because I doesn't trust her.

Abby, I do trust her, but I can't get thru to her that there are dangers in a situation like this regardless of her innocent intentions, and 17-year-old girls just don't go off alone like that.

We don't know this boy, and know nothing of his family.

Am I being too strict? She says, "Everybody does things like that."

—"EVIL MINDED OLD HAG"

DEAR HAG: Stick with your decision. The road to you-know-where is paved with good intentions.

CONFIDENTIAL TO F AND L IN TUCSON: Retaliation is for children. Two such "wrongs" could make a write-up.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Querry-Price wedding held in Virginia

A home in Long Beach awaits Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Querry Jr., who were wed Saturday in Falls Church, va.

The bride, the former Lynda L. Price, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Price, 1521 Harding St. Her husband is the son of Albert R. Querry Sr., of Washington, D.C.

Wedding attendants were Ann Ball and John Cashion.

The newlyweds will honeymoon during their cross-country tour from the nation's capitol to their new home.

Protect eyes

When sunbathing, protect bleached or dyed hair with a scarf, apply a good oil or sun-screening lotion to the skin and cover your eyes with soft cosmetic puffs. Contrary to popular belief, most tinted glasses are not effective sun-screening aids; they reduce glare but not the potency of the sun's rays.

Newlyweds choose honeymoon spots in resort areas

MRS. W. A. TOWNLEY

MRS. DOUGLAS PEPITO

MRS. D. C. SCHOFFNER

Townley-Sanchez

Marriage vows were spoken Saturday at St. Maria Goretti's Catholic Church by Rebecca Louise Sanchez, daughter of Mrs. Delia Sanchez of Lakewood, and Wayne Allen Townley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carol Townley of Compton.

The bride wore a crepe sheath with Venetian lace bodice and matching lace-trimmed back panel.

She was attended by Mrs. John Clausi, Rhonda Robles, Alison Wafford, Carol Maiolfi, Mrs. Randal Leal, Cynthia Themelis, Jeanine Avila and Rogene Garza.

After a reception at Golden Sails Inn, Mr. and Mrs. Townley left for Big Sur. They will reside in Long Beach.

The bride graduated from Pius X High School and attended California State College at Long Beach where she was active in Shell & Oar and served on the Social Commission.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Dominguez High School and attended Compton College, where he was a Beta Phi.

Schoffner-Applegate

Dena Rae Applegate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Adair Applegate, 2435 Roycroft Ave., and Douglas Craig Schoffner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Schoffner of Lima, Ohio, were wed Saturday at St. John's Community Presbyterian Church.

The bride fashioned her own outfit of peau de soie and Alencon lace with cathedral train.

Attending her were Janice Bair, Penny Turner and Sharon Millhollin.

Brent Schoffner, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Sidney Rials and Donald Knight.

On return from their honeymoon at Big Bear and Northern California, Mr. and Mrs. Schoffner will make their first home in Long Beach.

The bridegroom is serving with the United States Navy aboard the USS Valley Forge.

Pepito-Beaver

St. Cornelius Catholic Church was the scene Saturday of the wedding of Nancy Jane Beaver, daughter of the Varnell Beavers, 852 Gold Star Drive, and Douglas Pepito, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonico Pepito, 1800 W. Spring St.

Gowned in a princess-line peau de soie and Alencon lace frock, the bride was attended by Mrs. Larry Beaver, matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jay Bartley, Linda Beaver the bride's cousin and Marni Deverman.

Michael Williams was best man. Guests were seated by Frank Marchello, Gary Furuta and Joseph Van Coutren.

A buffet luncheon at Agate Hall followed the church ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Pepito plan their first home in Long Beach on return from their Lake Tahoe honeymoon.

Both bride and bridegroom are graduates of Poly Technic High School. He also attended Long Beach City College.

HADASSAH CALENDAR

Three units bid new members

Events are planned during the coming week by three units within Long Beach Chapter of Hadassah. They include:

NAOMI GROUP

A membership tea and fashion show are planned by Naomi Group (Formerly Aviva-Rishona) at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Solomon, 1450 Bryant Drive East.

Mrs. Florence Smales, fashion coordinator, will present styles from leading fashion shops and boutiques.

Reservations are open to the public and may be made with Mrs. Irving Broitman, 2421 Dollar St., Lakewood; Mrs. Joel Ratner, 11261 Wallingsford Rd. and Mrs. Gary Kramer, 12791 Silver Fox Road, both Los Alamitos.

SZOLD-TABACK

Excerpts from leading Broadway plays will be presented by Mrs. Eugene Temkin at a petite luncheon of Bella Taback-Henrietta Szold Group Wednesday at 1 p.m. in Temple Sinai, Seventh Street and Molino Avenue.

Emphasis will be on membership and welcome will be extended to new and prospective Hadassah members. Mrs. Wilson Gittleman, vice president of membership for Long Beach Chapter, will speak. Mrs. Mary Kolnick is hostess chairman.

BUSINESS WOMEN

Business and Professional Women will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday in Belmont Room, 5200 E. Second St., for a fall fashion review with members as models for styles from Joel's Fashion Center.

Mrs. Herbert Trattner, program chairman, will be assisted by Belle Murks at the membership tea to which prospective members are invited.

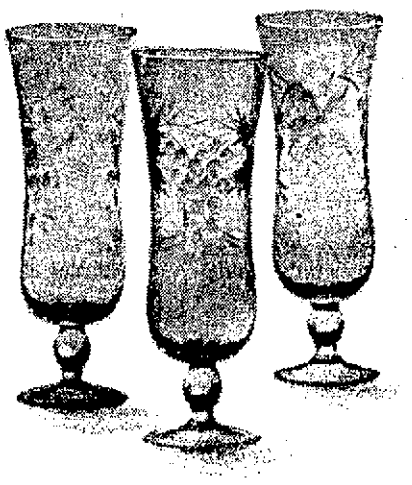

Frances King to attend meet

Mrs. Frances M. King of Long Beach, president of the Desk and Derrick Clubs of North America, will fly to Chicago Wednesday to conduct the 27th annual convention for the 96-club organization.

The association is comprised of 6,000 women in the petroleum and allied industries, and is the only oil women's club in the world.

Lemon massage

Roll that lemon between the palms of your hands to soften it before squeezing out the juice. Or use a cutting board and the palm of one hand for the rolling.

PRETTY PARFAIT

You'd never guess it, but you can put these elegant parfait glasses right in your freezer. The design is a hand-etched version of the very old Bohemian vine and wreath pattern. Simply beautiful and ours alone!

Paris' industrious belles of the night vanish off streets, prosecution of hoteliers blamed

By LLOYD GARRISON
Copyright 1968 New York Times News Service

PARIS — Parisians have become used to many dramatic changes in Paris' landscape, from a tunnel under the Arc de Triomphe to superhighways along the banks of the Seine.

Now suddenly gone is that most colorful yet dingiest part of Paris so blithely romanticized in Hollywood's version of "Irma La Douce."

No one was prepared for the latest change which descended over Les Halles — the centuries-old quarter whose second most important activity besides feeding the city was sheltering the world's oldest profession, without fanfare, the real-life Irmas have quietly stolen away from Paris's central market.

The cobblestone street which border Les Halles had been a haven for prostitution ever since the market place was moved across the Seine from the Ile de la Cite in 1110.

* * * *

TOURISTS now visiting the market's resturants for a pre-dawn bowl of onion soup will find the sidewalks of Rue St. Denis half deserted, the cafes empty, the doors of what once passed as "hotels" firmly bolted.

Why the sudden exodus?

The surete denies it had anything to do with it directly, which is in keeping with tradition. The 17-block area between Rue St. Denis and Rue du Temple had been tolerated as a prostitutes' preserve ever since the reign of Louis VI called "Louis the Fat."

The exodus has not gone unnoticed. The satirical French weekly "Le Canard Enchaine" suggests with tongue in cheek that it's all the fault of Madame de Gaulle, long reported concerned with Paris' virtue. The influential Le Monde published a far more serious assessment, of not less than four columns.

* * * *

LE MONDE began by asserting that the change had nothing to do with moving the market to suburban Rungis next winter. The "belles de nuit," the paper continued, had at least six more months of uninterrupted business ahead of them before D-Day.

Prosecution of hoteliers is not a new development. Beginning in 1958, two laws simultaneously made it legal for women to prostitute themselves — provided they did not solicit indiscreetly, and put hotel owners benefitting from room rentals to prostitutes in the same class as pimps and procurers.

In 1960, police estimated that roughly 400 hotels served prostitutes. A few months ago, only about 90 were still open.

* * * *

THE OWNERS of many of these establishments apparently became convinced that their profits from prostitution were hardly worth the risk of heavy fines and prison sentences of up to five years.

The panic has spread to other citadels of prostitution: also battened down are the hotels on the Rue de Budapest, one block from St. Lazare Station. This street had been "open" for as far back as the oldest commuters can remember.

Where have these "hard-core professionals" gone? Michel Jean, head of the Surete's vice division, says many have migrated to the suburbs and the provinces, a few have left for Belgium and Germany, and the rest have become "Amazones" — girls who solicit from cars.

* * * *

UNAFFECTED by the change are what Jean describes as the more "discreet" prostitutes. These are women who free lance from the better bars behind the Champs Elysees, or have joined the growing ranks of "call girls" who work out of the elegant high-rent western part of the city.

Jean is a 44-year-old police veteran who works out of a small, austere office in the interior ministry whose only decoration is a half-dozen pin-up girls taped over the wall opposite his desk.

Asked how the hotel panic would affect prostitution's future, he remarked:

"In this country, a woman is free to do with her body what she likes and get money in return. It is a civil right. It is the oldest profession in the world, it has always existed and is likely to continue for a long time."

IN THE PARIS JUNGLE, including the Champs Elysees, girls still practice the oldest profession, but free lance from behind better bars or solicit by automobile. (Pan Am photo)

PRIDE OF PORTSMOUTH—Restored to prime condition at Portsmouth Navy Base on England's south coast, the 210-year-old H.M.S. Victory is an appropriate memorial to the days when Britain's sea power reigned supreme. The Royal Navy has invited tourists to solve a mystery hovering over the historic flagship of Trafalgar.

—Pan Am Photo

Seagull Scarcity Spooks Sailors

By HERB SHANNON
Staff Writer

PORTSMOUTH, England — Recently the Royal Navy appealed to patriotic Britons and visitors alike for help in solving a persistent puzzle concerning a national historic treasure and prime tourist attraction here.

The mystery: How come the local seagulls, which liberally decorate all vessels calling at the harbor, refuse to perch in the rigging of the only ship that never leaves port?

The logical target is the 210-year-old H.M.S. Victory, permanently enshrined in drydock as a memorial to Admiral Horatio Nelson and the men who served on the ship at the Battle of Trafalgar. Immaculately restored, the three-masted vessel offers a gull's paradise of line, spar and bowsprit roosts.

Although the square-rigged Victory has been in its present condition and position for nearly 40 years, the birds for some reason have been unable to spot it. Navy investigators have no intention of disturbing the arrangement; they just want an explanation. The answer may provide the first effective defense in the oldest-established form of anti-air warfare at sea.

Located less than 60 miles from the Pan American World Airways terminal at London, the Victory is a popular first stop for Americans exploring England's south coast. Pan Am travelers find the ship and its associated museum a fascinating introduction to British tradition and the values that shape the contemporary English mold.

Spending a few hours contemplating the relics of the days of wooden ships and iron men also helps in adjusting to the speedy jet transition between continents.

A public subscription campaign in the early 1920s raised more than twice the original cost for preservation of the Victory. The restoration is complete with the original armament and much of the other equipment in use at Trafalgar.

Showpiece of the ship is the Admiral's cabin, scaled to his rank and national esteem. Three connecting rooms enjoy one full tier of the magnificent triple-decked bay window curving 50 feet across the stern. Ornately decorated in white, red and gold, the rooms contain furnishings used daily by Nelson and replicas of the bed draperies made for him by Lady Hamilton.

Manpower in quantity was needed for every operation aboard the Victory, from raising acres of sail to steering the 226-foot dreadnaight. In calm weather the wheel demanded four able-bodied men; eight in rough seas.

Weighing the Victory's anchors required the combined efforts of 280 men straining at the spokes of a huge capstan running through two decks amidship. Music for this merry endeavor was supplied by the ship's fiddler, riding the ample top of the capstan like the centerpiece of a carousel.

Leather fire buckets, hour-glass chronometers, the surgeon's one-candlepower lantern and the fiddler's instrument are only a fraction of the authentic artifacts aboard the Victory. This season, as usual, a steady flow of Pan Am tourists will trend her decks for a glimpse of history.

Ahoy!

$230 is all it will cost you to enjoy the Lurline to or from Hawaii this fall.

There are twelve Lurline sailings to and from Paradise this fall. Take one and here's what your $230 ticket will include:

• 5 festive days of carefree living at sea, with congenial fellow passengers in a spirited Polynesian atmosphere. Days that are filled with pleasant diversions—if you want them. Like free Hula lessons, deck tennis tournaments and trapshooting.

• 5 delightful nights filled with gala parties and entertainments. Like the Mad Hatter's Ball and the Captain's Champagne party.

• Exclusively First Class accommodations.

• Fine food, served 'round-the-clock, whenever you're hungry.

• Superb service, from an attentive crew, trained to please the most discriminating traveler.

Of course, you'll also visit beautiful Hawaii at a beautiful time of the year—autumn when the weather is great and the crowds are gone. Choice space is still available on all sailings.

$396 will buy a complete 11-day Hawaiian vacation, including a cruise on the Lurline.

Take our air/sea tour, "the Royal Polynesian," this fall and here's what you'll get:

• Jet flight to Hawaii with lei greeting on arrival.

• 6 days at Waikiki's new Holiday Isle Hotel.

• Tours to Pearl Harbor and Mt. Tantalus.

• Malihini Night at the Princess Kaiulani Hotel.

• 5-day cruise to either San Francisco or Los Angeles aboard the SS Lurline.

The price of your ticket on this special autumn cruise-tour includes hotel, parties, transfers and transportation. It all adds to an exceptional travel bargain.

$630 is the all-inclusive fare for two special 15-day fall festival cruises to Hawaii's four major islands.

The perfect two-week vacation. Take the Whaling Spree Cruise Oct. 25 or the Makahiki Cruise Nov. 21 and all of the following features will be included in your fare:

• Hawaii's lovely islands of Oahu, Maui, Kauai and Hawaii—at their autumn best.

• A special Island festival.

• The Lurline as your resort hotel at each port of call as well as at sea. That means you'll unpack just once for the entire vacation.

• The luxurious seaborne way of life that has come to be known as the Grand Manner of Matson. Excellent food, superb service, exclusively First Class accommodations, and the countless amenities for which the Lurline is famous.

Both cruises depart San Francisco and Los Angeles.

SAFETY INFORMATION: SS Lurline registered in the U. S., meets International Safety Standards for new ships developed in 1960.

Dublin proves beguiling like a pretty colleen

By GORDON QUARNSTROM

DUBLIN, Ireland—Dublin has proved to be an enchantress, a city as beguiling as a rosy-cheeked colleen who woos you with a winsome smile and holds you close in warm embrace.

Yes, Ireland's capital city is an intriguing place in Springtime. St. Stephen's Green in the heart of the city is a jewel in the pleasant sunshine; flower gardens are ablaze with color and there is beauty in the great Phoenix Park in which is located one of the world's truly fine zoos.

History is everywhere, in ruins of ancient castles and in the museums and libraries.

Within a few minutes drive from the River Liffey, spanned by bridges on which generations of Irishmen have crossed, you come upon a perfect example of the round tower, built 1000 years ago as protection against marauding Vikings.

But there is more than history here. There are great hotels, with genuinely courteous Irish staffs, eager to please and serve you. You receive a continuation of the "Ireland of a thousand welcomes" which begins for you aboard a plane of the Irish International Air Lines, whose personnel does their best to make you comfortable and content.

BECAUSE there is so much to see in Dublin, and so much fine shopping in the city's stores and colorful shops, some visitors get too enthralled to venture into the countryside. This is a mistake, for nearby are beautiful places that every tourist will enjoy.

On my visit I was intrigued by County Wicklow, where the hills and valleys are emerald green and where the sea is a vivid blue.

As Fiach O Broin of the Irish Tourist Board explains, the Wicklow region offers virtually the whole range of Irish landscape and waterscape. There are lush fields, pastures with herds of sheep and cattle, rolling hillsides, ruins of old castles, sandy beaches and fine resorts. And all are within easy reach. The big resort town of Bray is the gateway to this area, which includes Brittas Bay, Wicklow town and the busy resort town of Arklow.

In the nearby hills is Glendalough, with a round tower and two small churches reminding visitors of the settlement which was here 1,000 years ago and which drew scholars from all over Europe.

There are gracious estates and gardens among the foothills and along the coast. Most famous is Powerscourt, open each day of the year, a great estate with remarkable plantings.

* * * *

AS THE PERSONABLE and able O Broin explains, "The whole region is steeped in history. The reminders of antiquity from the castles and towers, the lack of modern construction and the small amount of traffic on the roads make it easy to slip into the past. But it is just as easy to return to the pleasures of modern Ireland, with modern hotels, busy stores and a whole assortment of things for all the family to do."

There is one more thing he might have added: Some of the finest cuisine anywhere is found in Irish dining rooms. You can get gourmet meals at reasonable cost, including such delicacies as Dublin Bay prawns and Boyne salmon, roasts and steaks, creamy desserts and the warming drink to conclude the meal—that nectar known as Irish coffee. And no matter where you stay, whether in a large hotel or in a country inn, your day will start with the traditional Irish breakfast, included in the cost of your room: juice, porridge, bacon or ham and eggs, home-made bread with marmalade, and strong Irish tea or coffee.

TREASURES OF HAWAII
Polynesian culture on Island of Oahu of old fluorishes

HONOLULU — The culture of ancient Polynesia, a first-hand view on the "living sea," and a tropical bird and flower collection are high on the list of current things to do for visitors on Hawaii's capital island of Oahu. All are within minutes of Waikiki.

Oldest and best-known is the Bishop Museum, most famous in the entire Pacific. Across town from Waikiki, it contains the symbols and emblems of Hawaiian royalty, including priceless feather capes and helmets made from thousands of tiny feathers of now extinct birds, the royal standards called Kahili, models of temples called heiaus, a full-sized grass house and early Hawaiian surfboards.

The museum, founded in 1889 by Charles R. Bishop as a memorial to his wife, Princess Bernice Pauahi Bishop, last direct descendent of King Kamehameha the Great, also is the repository for artifacts of other areas of Polynesia. Its Kilolani Planetarium reproduces the skies for any instant of any time past or present. The museum is open seven days a week and some holidays. Admission to the exhibit halls and Planetarium shows is $1.50.

* * * *

OF MORE RECENT vintage but still authentic is the Polynesian Cultural Center at Laie on Windward Oahu, a 40-minute drive from Honolulu. Here, under the auspices of the Mormon church, the peoples of Samoa, Fiji, Tahiti, Hawaii, the Maoris of New Zealand and Tonga have built replicas of their native houses and villages.

Tours from Waikiki reach the center in mid-afternoon in time to tour the villages, see the Polynesian curio shop and dine of staple foods of the islanders. A two-hour Polynesian show featuring the dancers of the several areas is staged in an outdoor amphitheater starting at 7:30 p.m. Round trip transportation, Polynesian or American buffet and the show constitute a $14 package.

Concentrating solely on the culture of Hawaii is the Ulu Mau Village, five minutes from Waikiki in Ala Moana Park. The Village, established to keep Hawaiian arts and skills alive, features Hawaiian people practicing crafts, including poi-pounding, canoe making, lei making, printing tapa cloth and Hawaiian games. Admission is $1.50.

Another historical reminder of a different type is the Hawaiian Wax Museum in Waikiki, next door to the International Market Place. It contains scenes depicting Hawaiian history from the arrival of the Polynesians from Tahiti about 500 A.D. through the monarchy period, the first Hawaiian settlers from over seas, and the annexation period to the present day. Entrance is $1.50.

* * * *

ONE-HALF HOUR from Waikiki at Makapuu Point is the unique Sea Life Park, a scientific oceanarium and marineland all in one. A visit includes a porthole's eye view of a living coral reef with its tropic fish and marine life, an exhibition by scientifically trained porpoises of skills learned from man, including responding to sonar underwater signals, and a tour aboard a replica of a Yankee whaling ship for underwater views of a porpoise ballet and a trained false killer whale. The fish perform in unison routines including the Hawaiian hula.

Performances are held every 45 minutes daily except Monday. Admission is $2.30 for adults.

Newest of Oahu attractions is Paradise Park in verdant Manoa Valley, 10 minutes from Waikiki. It contains gardens of tropical plants and flowers, tropical birds, Hawaiian crafts and a restaurant with a Hawaiian show. Admission for adults is $2.50.

Central America primitive, and often sophisticated, too

Relics of yesteryear's civilizations from pre-Columbian Indians through days of the Spanish Conquistadores, quaint villages and beautiful mountain-dotted scenery are all but a few hours by jetliner from almost any part of the Western Hemisphere.

The half dozen nations of Central America, scattered through the narrow stretch of mountains, valleys, plateaus and sandy shorelines that tie North and South America together and keep the Pacific Ocean and the Caribbean Sea, apart, are linked together by the hop-skip-and-jump jet Clippers of Pan American Airways which keep both commerce and tourism on the move.

Add to these Mexico on the north and Panama on the south for an itinerary that is interesting, educational, entertaining and downright fun!

* * * *

READING from the top down: sprawling Mexico with its wide variety of scenery has everything from primitive off-beat villages to ultra-sophisticated Mexico City. Then comes unspoiled but cosmopolitan Guatemala; El Salvador with its silvery lakes and silent volcanoes; mountainous Honduras bulging out into the Caribbean; Ncaragua and its swift flowing rivers; gentle, peaceful and democratic Costa Rica and its very literate, hospitable people.

Southern California travelers board their jets in Los Angeles and hop down to Guatemala, which is also the arrival point for visitors leaving the United States at Houston or New Orleans. Panama is the starting point for tourists from all points in South America.

Visitors find good food, comfortable hotels and well-organized ground tours on a trip through Middle America. To American businessmen the economic revolution taking place with the Central American common market is exciting, with hopes of opening the door to an entirely new way of life for the 12 million citizens of the five countries.

Industries have been springing up in all the countries and their products flow freely to each of the other countries without customs restrictions. Millions of dollars have been invested in factories and facilities by both outsiders and Central American citizens and many thousands employed to create products that once were imported.

Each country has much of interest for all members of the family.

Use of Good Hope spurred

The seaway around South Africa's Cape of Good Hope, opened in the 15th century by Vasco de Gama, has returned to major world trade prominence since the closing of the Suez Canal last June.

For centuries the South African ports of Cape Town and Durban were provisioning, fueling and repair stops for vessels of all types, but the opening of the Suez Canal in 1896 markedly reduced the traffic around the African continent.

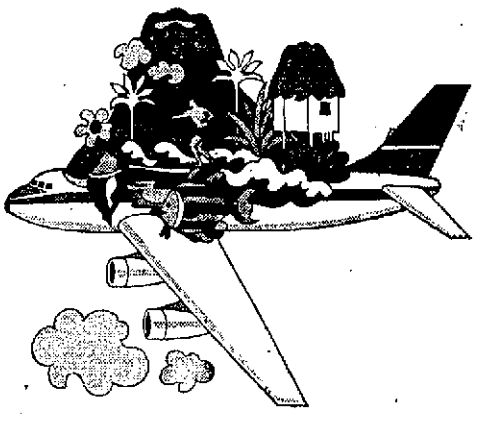

The past six months have changed 99 years of dependence on Suez with more than 2,000 ships of all nations reporting calls at South Africa's major ports.

According to shipping industry observers, this tangible spur to South Africa's economy will continue and accelerate. And informed forecasters see the 100 super-tankers that have been launched recently making the rise in Cape activity permanent because these 160,000-200,000-ton giants cannot use the Canal.

Prospects for this increased traffic are so great that several European shipbuilding and repair firms have indicated their interest in constructing major repair facilities in South Africa.

Trained koalas shock zoomen

BRISBANE, Australia—Zoologists long believed that Australia's koalas just didn't have the aptitude to be trained as performers like dogs, elephants, bears and lions.

But Alan Reid of Brisbane has proved them wrong. Reid's troupe of cuddly marsupials is the star attraction at Brisbane's Lone Pine Koala Sanctuary, which is home for some 120 koalas.

(Koalas, incidentally, are not on the decrease, as is sometimes claimed. At Lone Pine they are breeding so successfully that between 30 and 40 are released each year.)

The Lone Pine koala show begins with a riverside greeting. The sanctuary fronts the winding Brisbane River and there to greet every incoming ferry is a baby koala riding jockey on the back of a huge German Shepherd dog.

* * * *

LATER, in a special compound, Reid presents an amusing show with several koalas performing. In one of his acts Reid holds a female koala in the palm of his hand and begins a highly critical assessment of her feminine charms.

Throughout this the koala, with ladylike disdain, stares haughtily ahead with her back turned to Reid. He ten switches to highly complimentary lines using a smooth Charles Boyer accent.

And sure enough, the koala soon turns to give Reid a loving hug.

* * * *

KOALAS SLEEP high in the treetops with their rumps wedged between forked branches. They never sleep any other way. Reid, however, has taught some of his koalas to lie down on a little mattress and close their eyes, feigning sleep (see picture).

Lone Pine is one of several fascinating sanctuaries in or close to Brisbane that feature fauna species unique to Australia. Particularly famed for its wild life is the Gold Coast, a 20-mile string of Pacific Ocean resorts about 60 miles from Brisbane.

The Gold Coast has two zoos, two large aquariums and a bushland sanctuary for wild parrots, which is at Currumbin.

* * * *

EACH MORNING and afternoon visitors to Currumbin's sanctuary are handed plates of honey mixed with bread and within moments thousands of gorgeously-colored lorikeets swoop in from the surrounding forests.

Although wild, the birds are completely unafraid of people. Without hesitation they perch in multi-colored clusters on the arms, shoulders and heads of everyone present.

Delta opens L.B. office

Delta Airlines celebrated the opening of a new ticket office in the downtown area at a reception Wednesday, Sept. 11.

The office, at 440A West Ocean Avenue, more conviently located to downtown business activity, features an interior decor depicting the many travel destinations served by Delta. A massive mural is a symbolic study of Delta's promotional themes, with interchangeable posters, fares and destinations. A 108-foot gold and blue rug, specially woven for Delta from mills in Jamaica, is another highlight. The mural was designed by Alan Ferry & Associates of Atlanta.

John L. Copland, district director of traffic and sales for Delta, and Long Beach sales representative Don Payne were hosts at the reception.

Long, Hot Summer Said Interesting in Death Valley

The stream of tourists has dwindled at the blast furnace called Death Valley, but about 150 residents stayed for the long hot summer.

These were the National Park Service people, the gas station attendants and service people at hotels that remained open.

Chief Park Ranger Homer Leach was asked what there is to do there in the summer.

"It's kind of limited," he said, "but we do have a few parties, a swimming pool and movies at the Visitors' Center for employes."

And although the Valley floor temperature frequently gets into the 120s, it is much cooler for hiking on the mountain ranges at each side.

The day of the explorer with a parched tongue crawling through sand is long gone in Death Valley. Leach says motorists are aware of the dangers in the desert and are reluctant to leave the road.

"If you have car trouble there is usually enough traffic so you can count on someone giving you help," he said.

A number of people drive through the Valley in the summer to look at the strange rock formation and barren mountains, he said, but many do not stay.

Stove Pipe Wells Hotel and Scotty's Castle have been open on a limited basis for some time. Furnace Creek Ranch stayed open for the summer the first time this year.

Surprisingly the biggest danger in Death Valley during the summer is rain. This comes from the occasional thundershowers that pour a lot of water into a small area. The water washes into the valley and soaks into the ground but often takes chunks of some roads with it.

Death Valley, with a point 282 feet below sea level, averages 1½ inches of rain a year.

The temperature reaches an average of 116 in July and often stays in the high 100s at night. The highest ever recorded was 134, in 1913.

Leach said people can drive through the Valley in the summer without an air conditioner but it is quite uncomfortable that way. At the entrance are instructions on what precautions to take in the heat.

He says it is especially hard for people who are not used to high heat.

"Sometimes a person will come into the Visitor Center suffering from the heat, but this is rare," he asid.

Despite the Valley's name, there is life in this desert about 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas. Wildflowers are gone in the summer, but there are other plants and there are rabbits and coyotes who come out mostly at night. At higher elevations there are big horn sheep, burros and deer.

But the people are there mostly in the winter, when the high temperature is a pleasant 65. At Easter the season is pretty well over.

"After that people start thinking of the mountains and the seashore," Leach said.

Crossing Canada's border no problem

For residents of the United States crossing into Canada for a visit or a vacation there are few, if any problems, to be met at the international border.

In fact, it is as easy as crossing the street in your own home town. As a United States citizen you do not need a passport or visa, although personal papers such as birth certificate, and acceptable identification papers may be useful at certain times. Vacationers are more concerned with what they may or may not bring into Canada.

Normal traveler's effects are of course duty-free. In addition the following may be carried by those over 16 years of age — 50 cigars, 200 cigarettes and two pounds of tobacco — for those over 21 there is a duty-free allowance of 40 ounces of alcoholic beverages. Similarly, gifts, except tobaco and alcoholic beverages, to friends in Canada are duty-free if their value doesn't exceed $10.

* * * *

DRIVING CARS into Canada is no problem except that current valid vehicle registration papers should be carried. You are not required to produce evidence of vehicle insurance but it is advisable to carry some form of insurance and liability card with you. Your current drivers' license is valid.

If you bring a trailer, you require a permit. The trailer must carry proper clearance and tail lights, have a safety chain or safety device between the trailer and motor vehicle and the trailer hitch must be attached to the frame of the motor vehicle. Combined length of motor vehicle and trailer must not exceed 60 feet and trailer width must not exceed 102 inches. A list of removable items in the trailer such as radios, T.V., appliances, etc., will aid you through customs. For persons crossing the border with a U-drive, borrowed or company-owned car, it is necessary to carry a copy of the contract or a letter of permission from the owner authorizing the operation of the vehicle in Canada.

SAVE UP TO $105 PER COUPLE when you go Hawaii first-class on a Berry Private-Jet Holiday.

Have your travel agent put you on board any weekend now thru December

Stay in first-class hotels. Twin bedrooms. Examples: Hawaiian Village, new Naniloa, Sheraton Maui, new Sheraton Kauai, Kona Hilton, Ilikai, Kauai Surf.

Fly in luxurious comfort aboard Boeing 707-jets from World Airways, biggest and best of all U. S. certified supplemental air carriers.

There's a big difference between a Berry Private-Jet Holiday and other vacations! First, you save real money over similar accommodations you could make on your own, because charter air fare savings are passed on to you. (No, you don't have to belong to a group or club to go with Berry.)

Second, you have way more fun and comfort, from the very first minute aboard. Plenty of elbow room, plenty of knee room, plenty of stretch-out room. Once aloft, enjoy cocktails and conversation, a gourmet dinner and entertainment. You'll "party" all the way, to the Islands.

There's a big difference in sightseeing too, because your Berry escort won't let you miss a thing! It's so much easier and more interesting than going alone. Includes Honolulu, Waikiki, the lovely Neighbor Islands, Sea-Life Park, Hilo, and lots more. There's no doubt about it. This is your best buy in Hawaii. No cheaper tour can compare with it. No other vacation at any price can match it for value.

Questions? Ask a Travel Agent. A professional Travel Agent is an independent businessman, a travel "pro" with latest inside information on places and accommodations. Put yourself in his hands. He's a good friend, and he wants to tell you about Berry Private-Jet Holidays.

FIAT 124 Sedan Is Fun Car

Story and Photos
By BILL EMERY

The unpretentious appearance of an Italian-built compact four-door sedan and an aging two-story frame hotel in the quiet community of San Jacinto are twin proofs that quality is more than skin deep.

We borrowed a new Fiat 124 four-door sedan from Fiat-Roosevelt distributors in Compton, importers of the Fiat line and drove to the Hotel Vosburg (established 1885) in San Jacinto, which is about 14 miles South of Beaumont on the Palm Springs Highway 60.

The Fiat 124, which was introduced in 1966 by dropping it from a boxcar over the airport of Caselle, Italy, was judged the "Car of the Year" in Europe that same year.

Although the car was not radical in appearance, it proved to be a first class example of up-to-the-minute engineering by Europe's number one auto producer.

Powered by a 4-cylinder in-line overhead valve 1197 cc engine mounted up front, the 124 develops an unemotional 65 base horsepower, however emotions rise when the small sedan accelerates from a standing start to the quarter mile in 20 seconds.

For a 90-mph 5-passenger sedan, handling is as near perfect as it can get in a small car. That small engine is called upon to do a big job and it does the job admirably.

With power-assist disc brakes on all four wheels, the Fiat 124 pulls up smartly without the fade of the larger cars and with precise control.

The roominess of the compact sedan gives the impression that you are riding in an American intermediate. The car is very wide for its length and the interior exceptionally spacious for a car in its class.

The front bucket seats are very comfortable and non-fatiguing on a trip, and are enhanced by fully adjustable backrests . . . a real bonus in a $2018 economy car.

Body frame is unitized constructed and the car is as tight as bark on a tree. Of particular merit are the width of the doors. Few compacts are as easy to get into and to get out of as the 124.

The transmission is a smooth, fully synchromeshed four-speed gear box, effortlessly operated by a floor stick.

Probably one of the smoothest riding cars in its class, the 124 is suspended on all four wheels with coil springs around hydraulic shock absorbers. In addition, the sedan has a stabilizer bar and swinging arms up front and a stabilizer bar in the rear with two longitudinal and a transversal rod anchoring the rear axle to the body.

It's hard to believe that Fiat can build so much into their cars for the price.

The Vosburg Hotel, a third-generation enterprise that originated as a 15-room project and grew to its present 60 rooms, is living in the past and the customers love it!

Thomas Farmer, who came over from England, purchased the building from the Wright family and promptly established "The Farmer House," a haven for tourists and traveling men — mostly traveling men.

Farmer would meet the train, bring his guests to the hotel and return them in the morning. The guests required an evening meal and breakfast. This was the start of a modified "American Plan" which remains basically unchanged today.

In 1909, Farmer's daughter, Anne, married William Vosburg and the name of the hotel was changed. Traditions such as no alchoholic beverages sold and lunches not served have continued to this day . . . along with the tradition of serving two meals, each equal to a feast, at a fraction of what you would pay elsewhere.

At The Vosburg Hotel, singles run from $12.50 per day and doubles from $17.50 up. These prices include dinner and breakfast. If you just want to eat breakfast alone, it's $1.50. Dinner is $3 during the week and $3.25 on week ends.

Some of the guests are permanent . . . others come from all over the U.S. and Canada. The attractions are many Rooms are well furnished with modern bedding materials and vintage fixtures.

Some rooms are air conditioned; however, since nights are cool, most prefer the quiet night to the cooler humdrum. The lobby, library and dining room are air conditioned.

Nearby is Saboba and Gilman hot springs, each with a challenging 18-hole golf course and each with cocktail lounge and dancing. So there is activity for the restless.

Leaving the valley via Highway 79, Beaumont is just 14 miles to the North. Traveling straight through town on Beaumont Ave. is a scenic loop tour to mile-high Oak Glen where the apple harvest is just now getting under way.

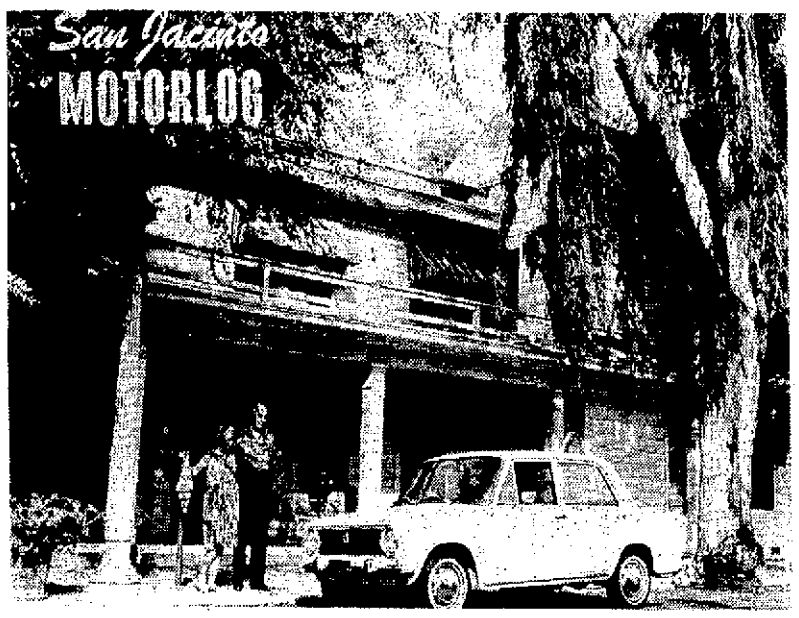

There are several picnic areas in and among the orchards shaded by towering oak trees, and road-side stands offer a wide variety of delectable apples, pure cider and apple juice.

During the weekdays, whole pies are available for purchase. On Saturdays and Sundays during the harvest, the demand for whole pies at the coffee shops is so great that the supply is soon depleted.

About 80 per cent of the crop is the all purpose Rome Beauty. It has no equal for a firm eating, cooking and canning apple and is a good keeper. These are picked for the next two months.

Other varieties include Jonathans, McIntosh, Red Golds, Red Delicious, Black Twigs, Winesaps, Arkansas Blacks, Glen's Seedlings, Greenings and Gravensteins.

It's a most delightful outing and very inexpensive . . . and the Fiat 124 Sedan is the fun car to have an outing in.

HISTORIC VOSBURG HOTEL VISITED
Dr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Smith of Long Beach, frequent guests of the Vosburg Hotel for 25 years, compare the charm of the old with Fiat's new 124 Sedan.

IT'S APPLE HARVEST TIME
Comely Susan Anton, Miss Yucaipa, believes in picking her own apples since she comes from an apple growing family. In a Fiat.

DINING AT THE VOSBURG
Fresh roses on every table and priscilla curtains on the windows give the dining room in the Vosburg Hotel a family touch. The menu is completely different every day.

FABULOUS
FIAT

"the car of the year"

Voted "Car of the Year" by automotive editors from 12 countries—Fiat's 124 Sedan. It's a winner in style . . . design . . . economy . . . safety . . . overall value for the money. Parents reveal daughters' betrothals

Davs-Fox

At a family dinner party in their home, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Davis announced engagement of their daughter, Lynn Marie, to Wayne Robert Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Fox. All are of Long Beach. The wedding will take place next summer.

Solomon-Smith

Valentine's Day, 1969, will be wedding date for Patricia Ann Solomon and James David Smith, according to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon M. Solomon, Lakewood.

Miss Solomon was graduated from Lakewood High School. The prospective bridegroom, son of Mrs. Marguerite Smith of Oakland, is stationed with the U.S. Navy in Long Beach.

Hope-Sneed

Mr. and Mrs. J. Verle Hope announce betrothal of their daughter, Nancy Lee, to Dale Perry Sneed, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Guy Sneed Jr. All are Long Beach residents.

Both young people were graduated from Millikan High School. The bride-to-be is an LVN students at Long Beach City College. Her fiance attended LBCC prior to entering the U.S. Army. He is stationed at Fort Ord.

Anderson-McLeish

Betrothal of Long Beach City College students, Becky Lynn Anderson and David McLeish, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Anderson, Long Beach.

Both young persons were graduated from Brethren High School, Paramount. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. McLeish of Long Beach.

Zimmerman-Kreeger

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill M. Zimmerman, Lakewood, announce the bethrothal of their daughter, Candi Jo, to Stephen Eugene Kreeger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Kreeger, also of Lakewood.

Both young persons are graduates of Lakewood High School. She is attending Long Beach City College. He is serving with the U.S. Army at Fort Riley, Kan.

Tasty burger

Saute lots of onion and green pepper and heat with tomato sauce and drained canned kidney beans. Sprinkle with grated cheddar cheese and serve with hamburgers.

ANCIENT BEAUTY SECRET popular today. NATURAL PUMICE whisks away painful corns and calluses, smooths rough knees, elbows, heels; saves hosiery. PYRAMID-shaped, it is unexcelled for manicures or removal of ink and nicotine stains from fingers. Ask for PYRAMID STONE SKIN SOFTENER at Drug & Dep't. Store cosmetic counters. $1.25.

OUR COVER

There are scores of new college football heroes every season—players who gain big headlines, whose names become famous all over the country and who are selected to All-America teams. But No. 32 in our cover photo is not just another All-America back; he is, in the view of many of the most qualified observers, one of the all-time great runners in football. And it took this young man—Orenthel James Simpson, better known as O. J.—just one season of major college football to create this impression. Last year he led USC's Trojans to a successful season, climaxed by victory in the Rose Bowl, and he's back again this fall to excite the fans and boost USC's hopes for more national glory. In the cover photo O. J. is shown taking the ball in a 1967 game from quarterback Steve Sogge, with Dan Scott set to run interference. Turn to Page 6 for Loel Schrader's story about the great O. J.

Outside House Painting Eliminated for 15 Years

LONG BEACH, CALIF. (CT)—Painting is a thing of the past. Let us show you how FLEXON Fiberglas Textured Coating insulates, waterproofs and beautifies and is factory guaranteed for a full 15 years.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the FLEXON story. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every fiberglas FLEXON job is factory guaranteed for 15 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to FLEXON its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER THE YEARS

FLEXON is one of the oldest coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings since 1946. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 15 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

FLEXON is applied with heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. FLEXON fuses itself to the wall and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects. FLEXON may be applied over stucco, wood, brick, block or shingles.

CITY OF LONG BEACH

Cal-Tex Improvements, Inc., is a licensed City of Long Beach Building Contractor. Most of the work now being done by Cal-Tex is in the greater Long Beach and West Orange County Areas.

THE WELLS REPORT

L. B., Fear B. Adams!

By Bob Wells

I SEE WHERE the City of Long Beach has signed up with the Diners Club for the Queen Mary. This is undoubtedly an excellent idea but a little late. If they had signed up a couple of years ago, instead of handing all that oil money to the Cunard People in England they could just have told them to charge it to their credit card.

The credit card business is highly competitive. Diners Club has the Qeeen Mary and the City of Long Beach but American Express almost had Chicago and the Democratic National Convention. At least all those supposedly foolproof electronic boxes that were supposed to keep everyone but bona fide delegates and Mayor Daley's band off the convention floor were also geared to work on American Express credit cards.

Evidently Diners or Bankamericard or somebody heard about it and protested because when the chairman of the New Hampshire delegation struck his American Express card in the little machine he was promptly arrested.

He was pretty burned up about it, too, but he hasn't seen anything yet. Just wait till he gets the bill for the whole convention.

It remained for Conrad Hilton to work out the biggest deal of all. A demonstrator with a Carte Blanche credit card could charge the entire Chicago Police Department.

Or vice versa.

Anyway, Diners Club's new association with the City of Long Beach opens up a whole new realm of fascinating possibilities. Of course, the contract signed recently only designated Diners as the master lessee to develop hotel, restaurant and commercial enterprises aboard the Queen Mary. But if the association proves a happy one, who knows where it might end.

You might be able to pay your taxes on your regular Diners billing, for example. And if you have questions about your gas or water bill instead of calling the city department you might just call Fred Rosenberg.

Don't be surprised, either, if sometime you are flashed to the curb by a traffic cop and instead of asking for your driver's license he requests to see your credit card. Make sure he gives you the little yellow slip labeled "cardholder's receipt."

Junketing councilmen and city employes instead of submitting bills to the city manager's office will just send him the Diners receipts. Hey, that's not so far out. I understand all the city councilmen are Diners Club members and that's the way they do it now.

Not Leonard Putnam, the Long Beach city attorney, however. He doesn't have a Diners Club card.

"What for?" he snapped when queried. "I haven't been on a diner since they took the Southern Pacific Lark out of service."

The trouble with spending all that time in law libraries is that you lose touch with the here and now.

There will be undoubted cases of hardship and injustice. Like being denied the right to vote because your credit card has expired. Or because the computer isn't speaking to the collection department.

MATTER OF FACT, I feel it is my bounden duty to warn the City of Long Beach that whilst there are many undoubted conveniences in having the world's biggest credit card, there are also pitfalls. I base this on my own experience with Diners Club.

It isn't just the tendency to overspend. Some members might have problems budgeting a monthly billing of, say, one million five-hundred thou, but by turning off a few more lights in City Hall for a month, Long Beach can handle it.

The trouble arises when you get put on the deadbeat list and can't get off. As my dog's veterinarian's pretty nurse likes to say — thereby hangs a tale.

I joined Diners Club more than 10 years ago. It was love at first sight and through the years our affection grew — with my amiable, elderly uncle-type bank acting as the chuckling go-between to ease the path of the young lovers.

I stuck with Diners Club through its great struggle with the percentage cutters — those unprincipled innkeepers who would bypass Diners Club and bill you direct, thus denying to the club the legitimate 7 per cent of the tab by which it feeds its executives' children.

In those days I would often be approached by an unctuous, gold-toothed proprietor of a saucepit or restaurant as I was weaving my way out.

"It will save you trouble, Mr. Wells," he would murmur (drooping his eyelids to hide the quick-glinting avarice), "if we just bill you direct rather than going through Diners."

"Never," I would shout, grasping the edge of a table and drawing myself to my full height. "Do you think I want it on my conscience that Alfred S. Bloomingdale can't afford to send his children to camp this summer?"

We won that one — the Diners Club and I — and our relationship flowered. Still, in human relations disaster strikes when you least expect it. Oh, I was at fault, too. I grew careless. I let my Diners Club tab grow to a $190 or so over a couple of months and neglected to pay it promptly.

I hardly expected, though, to arrive home one day to find a curt letter demanding full payment and return of my credit card. Hurt and confused, I complied. I tore the card in half and returned it with my check.

The next month I received a final billing for $65 or $66 or so. I put that over a couple of months until I could face the final separation, but I finally paid it.

I thought at the time it was the end of something beautiful. I set out to make a new life for myself with Bankamericard.

But it was not the end. I kept getting dunning letters requesting the $65 I had already paid. An outfit calling itself the Harbor Detectives and purporting to represent Diners demanded the return of the credit card I had already returned.

The best way to preserve my dignity, I decided, was silence. In due time the fellow writing the dunning letters, one B. Adams, would look up the telephone number of his computer and call it up for a chat. The computer would tell him I was not a deadbeat. Harbor Detectives would efficiently sort all the wastebaskets at Diners Club and discover in one of them my bisect card.

I studied my former contract. Nothing in it said I was obligated to do Diners Club bookkeeping for them. At one time I would have, of course. Gladly. But that was all over. So I waited for time to heal all.

Then came the crusher. That unrelenting, single-minded collector, B. Adams, did not call his computer for a chat. Instead he wrote a letter to the personnel department of the institution with which I am associated.

It said in short that I was a deadbeat and that legal action would be taken if I didn't pay Diners the $65 or $66 or whatever it was. Sometimes a word from an employer, the letter said, would save a firm annoyance and a debtor extra expense.

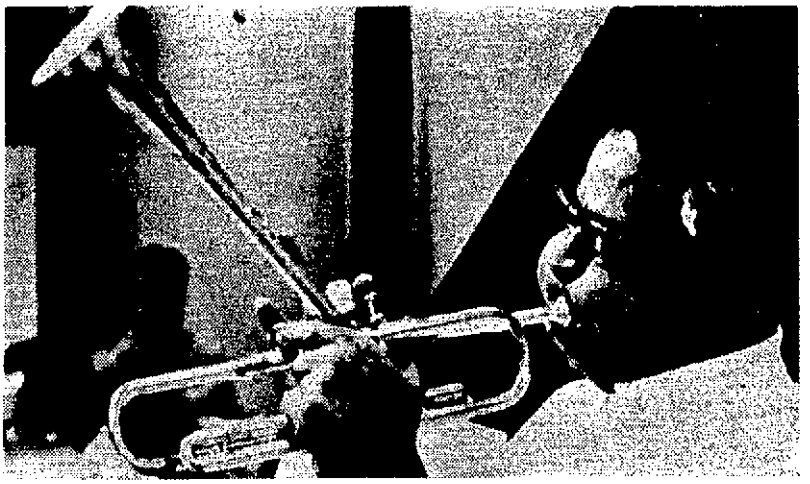

Not only did my former amour throw me over but she has taken to writing letters maligning my reputation. I dashed off a hot letter to B. Adams, but to date I have received no answer.

I am not bitter. I am only writing this to warn the City of Long Beach as she takes up with the Diners Club to watch its step. Pay all your bills promptly. Find out the phone number of the computer. And stay away from a bounty hunter by the name of B. Adams.

Once a Year, Quaint Seashore Town Is a 'Happening Place' --Heaven for Hepsters

Monterey and All That Jazz

By Jim Goodrich

Dizzy Gillespie plays a hot trumpet at West Coast's swingingest bash.

EVERY YEAR after Labor Day jazz buffs invade scenic Monterey Peninsula.

By car, train, plane and bus they make the September weekend trek from points near and distant.

Even on foot some hardy souls, hitchhiking part the way, manage to follow the pilgrimage to the staging ground of the West Coast's swingingest bash: the Monterey Jazz Festival.

Where the rush ends up is in a quaint and serene seashore town, snug by the Pacific Ocean about 120 miles south of the Golden Gate.

Monterey (pop. 220,600), for three late-September days, becomes a teeming burg — a "happening place" where thousands of hepsters go to hear great jazz but can find time to relax, play and savor the sights.

For a decade the Monterey Jazz Festival has lured crowds to the Northern California community.

Always prominent among the pilgrimagers are the swingers from the Long Beach area — those who dig Ellington, Basie, Gerry Mulligan, Cal Tjader, Milt Jackson, Lalo Schifrin and other giants of the idiom.

This year's trek to jazzdom's Pacific shrine gets rolling in a steady stream from the Southland on Thursday.

From Friday evening through Sunday a who's who of jazz is booked for five outdoor concerts on the Monterey County Fairgrounds, one mile outside the downtown area.

Devotees can find a choice — hot, cool or blue sounds. Almost every taste in jazz was catered to in this year's programming. On the bill are singers (Billy Eckstine, Carmen McRae and Mel Torme), big bands (Count Basie and Don Ellis), combos (the Dizzy Gillespie quintet, Oscar Peterson trio and Modern Jazz Quartet) and blues performers (Muddy Waters, Big Mama Thornton and Jimmy Witherspoon).

Festival promoters expect as many as 20,000 people to descend upon Monterey for the 11th annual staging of the jazz extravaganza conceived and first produced in 1958 by onetime San Francisco disc jockey Jimmy Lyons.

More than 3,000 hotel and motel units in the peninsula area (Monterey-Carmel-Pacific Grove-Seaside) have been readied for the invasion.

Restaurants, bars and night clubs plan to add extra labor to handle an anticipated rush for food, drink and after-festival hours merriment.

People have besieged the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce with requests for festival ducats.

Today's successful venture resulted from promoter Lyons' "hopeless love affair with the Monterey Peninsula."

After he fled San Francisco he was headed for Big Sur but stopped over in Monterey. He never completed the journey — and jazz fans are thankful.

All that Lyons has established for the Monterey Jazz Festival, a nonprofit educational corporation, was started on a cadge of 67 $100 loans from local merchants.

He explains: "We picked the pigeons; first the businessmen who'd have an interest in fresh money — restaurants, motels. We had no big money man like the Newport Jazz Festival, and everybody went for the small loan approach."

Few believed the festival would be around in 1968 after the first production turned out to be a dismal flop.

Too many "big names," a lack of careful planning and a $41,000 "nut" for talent overextended Lyons and his backers.

Patrons got a bad deal, too. They had to watch the performances from rickety wooden stands in the Fairground's Horse Show Arena.

"No one could have predicted the absolutely whacky things that could go wrong," Lyons comments. "That first year was a real baptism of fire."

On the second time around for the festival, 1959 proved no more fortunate than 1958.

Critics' praise for the jazz heard at Monterey did not generate a public response at the boxoffice. By more than $12,000 the show finished in the red.

Monterey has been a paying proposition since 1961, when the promoters realized a net income of $12,500 (from a gross income of $101,000 and a total production cost of $88,500).

By 1963 the festival had been moved to where it now is staged on the Fairgrounds — a modern structure that can offer comfortable accommodations for 7,000 patrons per concert.

Monterey differs from other jazz festivals in one particular: all the music is programmed by a professional musician rather than a booker or promoter.

Pianist-composer John Lewis of the Modern Jazz Quartet, who first served as the festival's musical consultant in 1959, still occupies that position.

Every jazz giant has paraded his talents before a Monterey audience.

Speed and power made USC's No. 32, O. J. Simpson, the most exciting runner in college football last year. He's also a sprinter in track.

O. J.'s More Than O. K.

USC Back's a Superstar of College Football, But Has No Pretensions of Grandeur

By Loel Schrader

O. J. SIMPSON has played only one season of major college football, yet his press clippings would match the tonnage of a ticker-tape parade.

In the tinseled world of intercollegiate athletics, he already is a Beowulf, a Ulysses, a Chanson de Roland.

He is saluted by friend and foe.

"If there's a better football player alive, I'd like to see him," says John McKay, his coach at USC.

"I have never seen a greater player in college football, and I've seen them all," comments Bobby Dodd, former coach at Georgia Tech and a veteran of more than four decades in the sport.

From the enemy camp at UCLA, the ultimate tribute: "I thought last year Simpson was the finest running back I've ever seen," says Bruin coach Tommy Prothro. "He's the one who beat us."

But amidst all the praise, the acclaim, the roar of the crowd, O. J. (Orenthel James) Simpson is an anachronism.

He doesn't speed about the USC campus and its nearby environs in a gleaming new convertible; he either walks to classes from his off-campus apartment or rides a motor bike.

He doesn't traverse the campus with a coed on each arm; he has a lovely wife, Marquerite, and they are expecting their first child in late December.

He has no pretensions of grandeur; he understands perfectly the role and importance of football in the scheme of life.

He has not accepted the easy academic path; he is a sociology major who achieved a 2.75 grade point average while leading USC to a national football championship in 1967.

At the conclusion of the 1968-69 academic year, Simpson will be 15 units short of graduation. He intends to acquire those 15 units and probably more.

"My biggest goal is to get a diploma," says the product of a San Francisco ghetto area. "I know at one time I never gave a thought to getting one. It would have seemed an impossible dream."

O. J. credits football and a San Francisco 49er professional player, Abe Woodson, with providing him with the proper motivation.

"He came around to our area and encouraged us to stay in school and try to make good," Simpson recalls. "That was when I first started thinking about getting ahead."

Getting ahead as a football player wasn't an immediate achievement for O. J.

"I weighed 160 pounds when I first went out for football at Galileo High School, and that was pretty big for our team," he recalls. "A majority of the students were Orientals and smaller than I, so the coach put me at tackle."

His career as a lineman didn't last long, however. The tailback for the team was injured; Simpson was inserted into the position and went 50 yards for a touchdown in his first game as a runner.

Victories for Galileo High were a rarity.

"Our school hadn't won a single contest of any sort — football, basketball or track — for three years. By my senior year, we were a joke.

"We lost our first three football games that year and the coach said he would give us one more chance. He said if we didn't make good he was going to get rid of all the seniors on the squad and build for the next season."

It was here Simpson learned the value of work.

"We were to play St. Ignatius, which hadn't lost a football game for three years. Our boys worked hard all week and we beat them, 31-26."

Galileo won five of its last six games and Simpson was propelled on to City College of San Francisco, where he was to gain his first national recognition.

In his first season at CCSF, Simpson scored 26 touchdowns, six in one game. He was selected to the junior college All-America team.

Recruiters were at his door regularly and O. J. very nearly accepted an offer.

"I had wanted to go to USC since 1962 when the Trojans won a national championship," he says, "but my grades weren't good enough after my first year at City College to get me into USC.

"Utah, Arizona State and San Jose State all said they could get me in. I was just about ready to go to Utah when coach Goux (USC assistant Marv Goux) talked to me.

"He told me, 'Anything worth having is worth waiting and working for.' I decided to go back to City College and improve my grades so I could get into USC."

After another All-America season, during which he scored 28 touchdowns, Simpson was admitted to USC in February of 1967.

Although Trojan Coach McKay had seen Simpson perform at CCSF, he wasn't certain of O. J.'s ability until he tested him in the spring of 1967.

For those present at a scrimmage on the 10th day of spring practice, the ritual was memorable.

As if to determine the mettle of this 9.4 sprinter with a 6-1, 200-pound body, McKay sent Simpson inside tackle on six consecutive plays.

And, as if to deliver an unspoken message to his new coach, O. J. cracked fiercely through the beefy Trojan defenders for a sizable gain on each play. The yardage was acquired as much through power and determination as with his unusual speed.

In the coaches' quarters after the scrimmage, an assistant coach made several quick hand claps and said to McKay: "Did you hear those, coach?"

McKay nodded assent.

It was apparent the assistant was referring to the sound of players bouncing off Simpson's pads.

McKay had gotten Simpson's message. The following Monday, O. J. was permitted to join the USC track squad. Later in the season, Simpson was a member of the Trojan 440-yard relay team which established a world record of 38.6 seconds.

Although O. J. had only two weeks

An All-America choice in his first season with USC, Simpson and his wife, Marquerite, read about him in Life magazine article last winter.

Orenthel James Simpson is a married man who enjoys the home cooking of his wife, Marquerite. They're expecting their first child in December.

'I'VE NEVER SEEN A BETTER PLAYER IN COLLEGE FOOTBALL,' EXPERT SAYS of spring practice and three weeks of training in the fall, he started the football season fast and finished the same way.

He gained 1,415 yards rushing and 109 as a pass receiver in leading the Trojans to a 9-1 season which included victories over Notre Dame and UCLA.

And he rushed for 128 yards and scored both touchdowns as USC defeated Indiana, 14-3, in the 1968 Rose Bowl game.

Although a late starter in the race for the Heisman Trophy, an award given annually by the Downtown Athletic Club of New York to the player adjudged best in the nation, Simpson nearly toppled the pre-season favorite, Gary Beban of UCLA.

Third was Leroy Keyes of Purdue, who is expected to be Simpson's leading challenger for the trophy this year.

O. J. readily admits one of his goals is the Heisman Trophy.

"I'd be lying if I said I didn't want it," he says "Any football player would want it. But it's not my main goal in football. What I'd like is another MacArthur Bowl."

The MacArthur Bowl is awarded by the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame to the nation's No. 1 collegiate team.

"You can win individual honors but people will soon forget about you," he explains. "But winning back-to-back national championships is something else. People will remember you and the team a long time for that."

Simpson and the Trojans open their bid for another national championship Saturday in Minneapolis against the University of Minnesota.

Later in the season, Purdue and Keyes will face the Gophers. A comparison of the Simpson and Keyes performances against Minnesota undoubtedly will weigh heavily in the Heisman balloting.

Beyond the 1968 season, Simpson hopes for a career in professional football.

It is no secret the Rams are hoping to put together a package of first-round professional draft choices that would prove irresistible to any National Football League club that might be in a position to choose Simpson.

"Simpson is better right now than Gale Sayers was at a similar stage of his career," says Ram Coach George Allen. "He's faster, stronger and bigger, and he has the same good attitude."

Barring injury, Simpson's value as a professional player should run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

O. J. sees other derivatives from a professional career.

"Eventually, I want to wind up in San Francisco working with young people," he says. "I grew up in a ghetto area where the problems are."

Pausing to reflect, he adds: "I guess I was one of the leading problems myself."

What he views on trips home disturbs him.

"I see kids doing the same things I did," he says. "I want to work with them and motivate them. I don't necessarily mean the athletes.

"People take care of the athletes. I mean the others, with no motivation to go on to college and try to make something of themselves."

The future counts, not the past, according to Simpson.

"Whenever I go home and meet some of my old high school classmates, they always want to talk about the past. Everything is in the past.

"I think I know the reason, too. It's because there's no future for many of them. They weren't encouraged to continue their education, and there's no real chance for advancement."

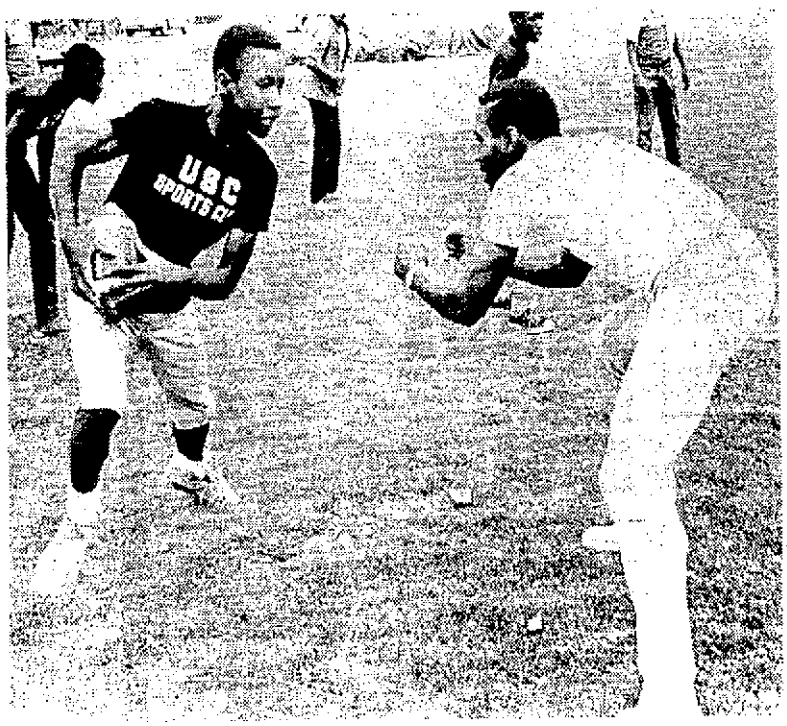

USC's Sports Club, which enrolled 400 ghetto-area youngsters in a summer recreation program, provided O. J. with an opportunity to work with young people.

His message was simple.

"Don't just be satisfied with a high school diploma," he told them. "With an education, there's no limit to what you can do."

His impact on the youngsters was obvious. He was their No. 1 choice.

Just as he may be nation's choice by the end of the 1968 football season.

Simpson gives youngster some tips on running with the football as an instructor in USC's tuition-free Neighborhood Summer Youth Program.

The Wayward Plane

By Col. W. R. Livingston

ON FEB. 2, 1949, newspapers in three cities carried these headlines:

Seattle:
PLANE CIRCLES CITY HOURS IN SNOWSTORM

Tacoma:
GHOST PLANE CIRCLES CITY

Olympia:
MYSTERY PLANE BUZZES ARMY AIR BASE

Military officers cannot always reveal news when it happens. As public information officer at Ft. Lewis, Wash., I could not have given the news if I had wanted to. All I had was a "wild surmise." No hard facts.

Now I will tell the story as it happened. The tale, to my knowledge, has no parallel in the history of aviation.

In training at Ft. Lewis was an excellent regimental combat team, in addition to the largest resident there, the 2nd Infantry Division of approximately 17,000 men and officers under the command of Maj. Gen. Harry Collins. It was preparing for landing maneuvers in the Hawaiian Islands.

Lt. Herbert A. Winters was the pilot of an artillery spotter plane, the L16, nicknamed the "Flying Dutchman." He offered to take Cpl. William G. Keiser with him to introduce him to artillery spotting. Actually the purpose of the invitation was more personal than that; the corporal had never been in an airplane and begged for the experience.

The lieutenant set the throttle at idling speed and went forward to spin the propeller by hand. The corporal, riding in the rear seat, reached forward to open the door for the lieutenant. By accident he shoved the throttle control to full throttle position.

Zoom!

The plane's tail slapped the lieutenant down, uninjured but terrified, and the corporal was airborne!

The plane was about 20 feet in the air and several hundred feet down the runway when it hit a pylon, throwing the corporal out. He suffered head injuries, broken teeth and a broken leg.

The plane then climbed into a cloud layer at 1,700 feet on a northerly course and started doing lazy eights as its motor roared at full cruising speed.

After buzzing Ft. Lewis, it headed for Tacoma in a heavy snowstorm. Then it headed for the north end of Seattle. It dived, droned and covered the city and almost at an hour when its gas supply should have been exhausted (two hours and 40 minutes from takeoff) the sounds ceased.

Bob Kroushop, Kittitas businessman and flier, phoned us on Feb. 15: "The plane was found sitting, jauntily, in the snow on a hillside. It looks to me like it made a pretty good landing." Kroushop spotted the plane, landed, and hiked to it. It had landed about 100 miles east of Seattle.

When our men went to get the plane, they found it in perfect flying condition. They trucked it home.

Apparently, the plane upon leaving Seattle had turned into the strong wind blowing from the west. With its tabs still trimmed for takeoff, it was cruising about 80 miles per hour facing the ocean. Wind currents going east that day were about 100 miles per hour at 6,000 feet. As a result, the unmanned plane kept level and flew backwards over the mountains at approximately 20 miles an hour until it ran out of gas.

The whole matter was embarrassing to the Army, what with Armed Forces Day near at hand and the upcoming Hawaiian maneuvers. I asked the newspapers to treat the matter gently, which they did, I guess because people were no longer interested in the plane.

Cpl. Keiser had cause for a little pride despite his painful injuries. His first flight had been exactly 12 feet longer than the Wright Brothers on their first flight.

Writing the Wright Way

By Dorothy Louise White

SINCE HER "retirement" she's busier than most people are when working at a steady, full-time job.

The Institute of Lifetime Learning in Long Beach referred to Alice Frances Wright as a "remarkable writing teacher . . . so busy it was impossible for us to book her when we opened the institute" in 1966.

Regardless of the kind of writing students aspire to — poetry, novels, plays, trade journals, juvenile stories, "true confessions" — or how to make a bikini out of an old miniskirt, Alice works diligently at helping them.

During her 11 years as a Long Beach City College writing instructor and two years at the Institute, plus weekly home classes, she has had more than 2,500 students, involving 10 classes a year at City College. Some are repeaters . . . "I need her inspiration and discipline, and I learn something new every time I go."

Many Long Beach residents remember the Frances Wright byline in the Independent, Press-Telegram column "In Navy Circles," another project undertaken since her "retirement," for four years.

A young Lakewood student said, "It's worthwhile to attend her classes even if you don't write. It makes you a better person."

A 74-year-old pupil who made her first story sale remarked: "My sons seem to pay more attention to me now and listen to what I have to say."

A former student who now sells more than 80 per cent of her stories and articles says, "You can't beat the Wright rules. When a story bounces from several editors, I send it to Alice. She can say in one sentence what it needs and it usually sells."

ALICE FRANCES WRIGHT

Another "spare time" project was the annual Long Beach Writers' Conference which she managed to find time to launch, and headed for six years.

In all her classes, including 26 years of teaching English composition in New York City Schools, 6 years in Montana schools, and a lecture series on Channel 28, she stressed theme. A student who drove to Long Beach classes four semesters from Fullerton says deciding in one sentence what you want your story to say helps her in news writing, ad copy, her novel, and even her personal letters.

The expression "three-dimensional characters" is heard often in her lectures. She insists human beings just aren't all good guys in white hats and bad guys in black. And when a beginner says defensively, "but it really happened," he is warned that it must be written convincingly and plausibly.

Alice Wright was born in a log cabin in Montana and grew up on a sheep ranch near Big Timber. She received a BA in English from the University of Montana and an MA in English Literature from Columbia. Her interest in people showed up early in her work. As president of the English Teachers' Association in New York City, she organized a committee for the distribution of theater tickets for students at reduced rates. The project was expanded to include symphony and ballet, enjoyed by millions since the program began.

As the wife of an electrical engineer, she was a world traveler, residing in several countries while her late husband was assigned to the Marshall Plan. As usual, she maintained her interest in people and things. She taught English in Turkey . . . and undoubtedly talked turkey in English!

Separating her hobbies from her vocations is difficult if you see the results of her ceramic, jewelry and mosaic pursuits. The Institute of Lifetime Learning, often referred to as "the adult stimulation center for mature minds," is an excellent setting for her. There are classes in music enjoyment, art, travel, languages, speedwriting, sewing, Shakespeare, lip reading and health hints. Alice's name appears on the fall schedule for "Reading and Writing of Poetry" and "Fiction Techniques for Nonfiction Writing."

Dozens of her students are either showing promise with occasional sales to editors, or showing up in print frequently. A short story of Richard Brown's appears in Martha Foley's "Best Short Stories of 1964." Helen Hicks has scored with several "Bonanza" scripts and her agent is marketing her novel.

Alicia Smith, now a Glendale resident, received a Samuel French Award for a play and has a movie in her agent's hands. Enola Chamberlin's byline appears regularly in many religious publications and on a novel going to press in England.

Isabel Dunwoody has sold articles to a variety of publications, especially travel pieces, and short stories to numerous children's magazines. Margaret Roxby's poetry is being enjoyed by many readers.

Former Long Beach resident Phyllis Davis, now in Anchorage, Alaska, received a "best religious magazine editor" award. Florena Fleissig has a flair for how-to pieces for McCall's, Long Beach librarian-clerk Roberta Nichols writes weekly publicity releases and occasional articles.

Many talented ex-students return to brush up . . . "you can't review too often." They hear about the importance of studying publication markets religiously, hooking readers on page one instead of page five, making readers really care what happens, using "fresh settings" in fiction . . . and the value of reading, reading, reading.

One main element in good writing — interest in people and things — stressed so often by Alice Frances Wright, could make the world a better place. One student said, "Great people and nice things have come from log cabins . . . Abraham Lincoln, maple syrup . . . and Alice is a bit of both."

Heberts' two-story townhouse is in Cypress.

Cmdr. and Mrs. Gordon G. A. Hebert relax in family room.

Elegance in interior design highlights family interests.

By Ellen Krec

IT TOOK just two months for Cmdr. (USN, ret.) and Mrs. Gordon G. A. Hebert to look perfectly at home in their new townhouse in Cypress.

The short time involved was due mainly to Mrs. Hebert's full-time career in interior designing as Etta Marie Hebert.

Accent Interest developed from the many years and experiences Cmdr. Hebert enjoyed as a much-traveled naval officer.

Retirement to Cmdr. Hebert only means an exchange of one demanding career for another in insurance securities trust funds. His den-office, however, is devoted to the many years he served and the honors he received during wartime service.

The two-story townhouse was brand new, but Mrs. Hebert utilized the furnishings from a previous, larger home. She insists this is always possible with careful planning and understanding of personal taste.

The color scheme evolved with emerald carpeting, then gold and melon accents were introduced in all rooms to give continuity to the not-too-open first floor.

The off-white Hepplewhite sofa with a pair of print fan-back chairs are equally at home in the full-house-width living room.

Harmony is the Hebert key word, and using biscuit tuft in the tapestry covered sofa updated the period piece to fit neatly into a contemporary - traditional room.

Cane-back barrel chairs in softly striped upholstery form a single group for conversation.

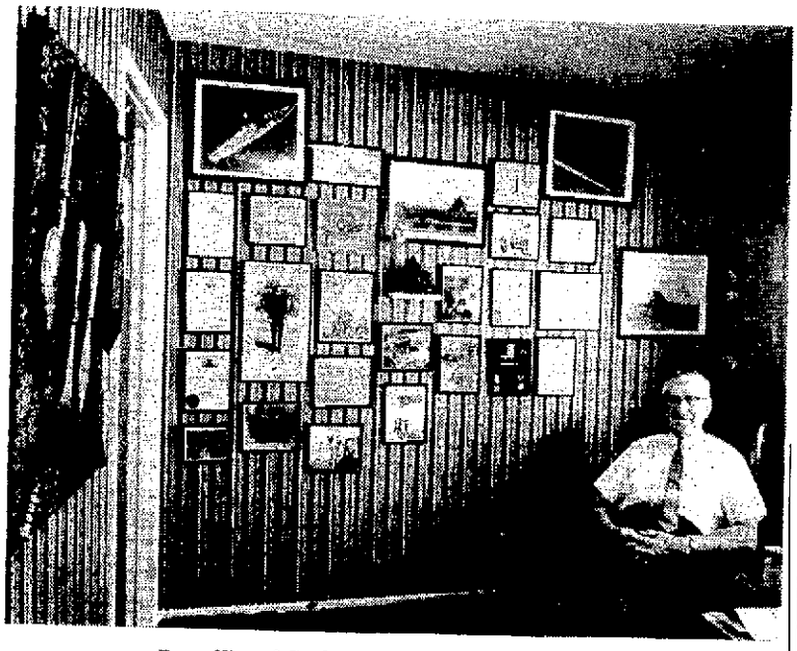

"The two new pieces" were gold curio cabinets flanking the sofa to display a fine collection of Staffordshire and crystal.

The Heberts' love of music with many evenings devoted to "jam sessions" with friends made the organ in the living room a must.

The previous home had the ideal music corner, so one was created near the door in the new home with the organ angled for better sound and then backed by ferns in a garden-like setting.

Can-can draperies give perfect privacy, but Mrs. Hebert topped them with

THE SOUTHLAND AT HOME

Den-office of Cmdr. Hebert has many mementoes.

marigold silk faille tiebacks faced with emerald.

As a violinist, Cmdr. Hebert's instrument posed less of a storage problem, and shares an under-the-stairs niche in the family room with an around-the-world collection.

The foyer wall posed a problem, but not for too long. The wall needed substance to balance the opposite sofa area, so Mrs. Hebert painted an old credenza burnt orange, antiqued it lightly, then applied a fine-quality silk screen wallpaper to the drawers. The result was a simulated chinoiserie cabinet in the weight and color needed for the desired balance. A chest-wide silver frame contains a black velvet-mounted Knight Templar sword.

A half-basket prism light adds to the entry elegance.

Narrow iron railing lightly divides the formal dining area with a marble pedestal table, two melon velvet chairs and an "always used" federal chair.

Etchings from Paris were a friend's thoughtful gift for the no-design wallpaper walls.

The fringed crown chandelier may be seen through all the rooms.

ACCORDING to Mrs. Hebert: "This home is just 100 square feet smaller than our previous home, but that one appeared to be more spacious, while in reality it was much more difficult to care for. Everything is so compact and convenient we feel as though we are playing house!"

A step-up platform leads past the stairs to the upper level and into the kitchen-family room.

Adding excitement to the platform wall is a classic mural bordered by topiary trees and a narrow lineup of potted daisies.

No dividing line was used between the nearly formal family room and the kitchen.

The same green carpeting covers the floors and Mrs. Hebert says: "I always have had carpeted kitchens and find them remarkably easy to live with."

In this case it unifies the cooking and casual living center.

Walnut cabinets and avocado appliances line one wall with a bold stripe ceiling in all the decorator's colors. The stripes drop to the soffit at one side and the coordinating colors form a lambrequin at the patio pass-through.

A small circular table is used for informal dining, but television viewing is from a melon velvet love seat.

A self-enclosed patio was bordered by little-care plants and the Heberts installed the red and white hexagonal tile as a base for the wrought iron furniture.

Emerald carpeting covers the open stairs top and bottom but changes to pink in the feminine sleeping room.

Mrs. Hebert prefers the pale to deep pink as the background for some rare family heirloom furniture.

The still-rope-tied bed was made by a member of her family more than 200 years ago and has a rare blanket roll at the foot of the bed.

The chest also was hand carved as a many-years-ago wedding gift to her mother.

White Austrian shades are capped with pink-lined, white-flocked draperies. Hot pink swags are held in place by gold cherubs, part of an extensive collection of cherubs belonging to Mrs. Hebert.

An open divider at the dressing room allows the same color to be used with "decorator" touches in the cherub collection and a four-foot oval mirror ribbon hung on the wall.

A masculine color change begins with "his" bathroom with red vinyl wallcover and carpet.

THE DEN-OFFICE occasionally serves as a guest room but is devoted entirely to the career of Cmdr. Hebert. One wall isn't nearly enough to contain the highlights of the naval officer's career and citations. A Bronze Star Medal was given Cmdr. Hebert during action as a beachmaster on Iwo Jima during World War II along with numerous other commendations for excellence and bravery.

His Naval service memorabilia fill the closet-turned-book-storage.

"Someday," he says, "I will complete my memoirs which take me from service in World War I to my retirement."

A side hobby was started in jest . . . collecting sand the beginning of many sand-filled bottles.

After five days and five nights without a break on Iwo Jima, Cmdr. Hebert received orders to leave and, in a typical aside, mentioned "the only thing I want from this island is enough sand to get off!" A close friend scooped up some in the bottle and handed it to him. That was the beginning of many sand filled bottles.

Mrs. Hebert selected the oversize print hunt scene draperies for their bright pink as well as representation of another of her husband's hobbies . . . horses. His bedroom is white painted except for a red-flocked wallpaper-covered closet.

White draperies frame the bed, but an alcove effect was created when side wall tiebacks were attached to the ceiling and trimmed with red braid and brocade.

The same braid was used to trim the white fitted bedspread. Red velvet highlights the brass valet chair.

"We wanted a comfortable and inviting home where people would not hesitate to come in and sit down," says Mrs. Hebert.

"We needed a place for listeners as well as conversationalists, so we planned definite places for specific purposes."

SIMPLE SUMMER MEALS

Summertime and the livin' is easy . . . if you plan your menus ahead. Family meals, for example, needn't be a chore if you make good use of convenience foods. Here's an idea to make your summertime meals interesting and easy . . . the Summer Supper. For four servings, cook 2 packages frozen cabbage according to package directions. Drain well and turn into a shallow 1½ quart casserole. Slice 12 ounces corned beef into 8 pieces. Place corned beef slices atop cabbage. Drizzle with ½ cup canned cheese soup. Bake in a 350 degree oven 20 minutes.

Elegant Sandwiches

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

SOME foods are just natural go-togethers. They complement each other in every way . . . flavor, texture and appearance. Top of the list are ham and eggs . . . the main ingredients in this toasted sandwich. Chopped hard-cooked eggs and ham are mixed with mustard, mayonnaise and a little chopped onion and spread between slices of bread. The sandwiches are dipped in a corn meal batter and fried crisp and brown in hot all-vegetable shortening.

Another combination, perhaps not so well known as ham and eggs, is peanut butter and crisp bacon. And in a French toasted sandwich, it's doubly good. Serve these sandwiches piping hot with honey or a tart jelly.

They're fried.

If you're looking for a change from the usual Sunday morning breakfast fare, try either one of these sandwiches. The Peanut Butter and Bacon Toasted Sandwiches will be particularly popular with the younger members of the family.

HAM AND EGG SANDWICH
(Makes 6 Sandwiches)

- 6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
- 1 cup chopped cooked ham
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 1 tblsp. chopped onion
- ½ cup mayonnaise
- 2 tsp. prepared mustard
- ½ tsp. salt
- ⅛ to ¼ tsp coarsely ground black pepper
- 12 slices white bread
- ½ cup sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ cup yellow corn meal
- 2 eggs
- ⅔ cup milk
- 1 cup solid all-vegetable shortening

Combine chopped egg, ham, celery, onion, mayonnaise, mustard, ½ teaspoon salt and pepper; mix well. Spread equal amounts of filling on 6 bread slices (to within ¼-inch of edge of bread). Cover with remaining bread. In bowl sift together flour, baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt; stir in corn meal, eggs, and milk. Beat with rotary beater until smooth. Pour batter into 9-inch pie plate or shallow dish. Heat shortening in large, heavy skillet. Dip each sandwich in batter, coating both sides. Brown on both sides in hot shortening over medium heat. Serve immediately.

PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICH
(Makes 6 Sandwiches)

- 1 cup plus 2 tblsp. crunchy peanut butter
- 12 slices white bread
- 12 slices crisply cooked bacon
- 2 eggs
- ¼ tsp. salt
- ⅓ cup milk
- ½ cup solid all-vegetable shortening
- Honey or red currant jelly

Spread peanut butter to about ¼-inch from edge on all 12 slices of bread (1½ tablespoons per slice) Place 2 strips of bacon on 6 bread slices; cover with remaining bread. Beat together eggs, salt and milk in 9-inch pie plate or shallow dish. Heat shortening in a large, heavy skillet. Dip each sandwich in egg mixture, coating both sides. Brown each sandwich on both sides in hot shortening over medium heat. Serve immediately with honey or red currant jelly, as desired.

Recipe of the Week

MRS. MARJORIE S. CRAIG, 2640 E. Broadway, Long Beach, takes the $5 recipe prize this week.

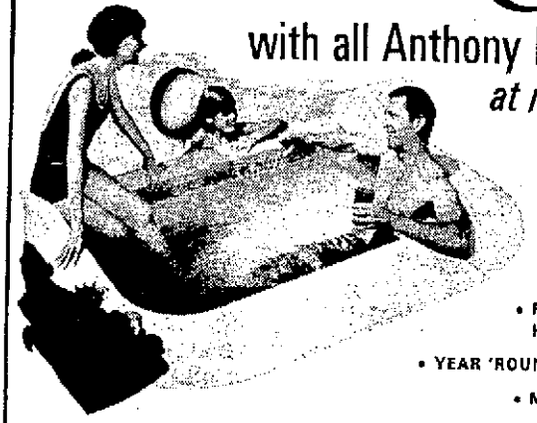

BUCKAROO BEANS

- 1 lb. pink beans
- 1 lg. onion, cut up
- 2 lg. cloves of garlic, cut up
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1 can tomato sauce
- ½ lb. bacon, cut up
- ½ tsp. sugar
- 1 tsp. oregano
- ⅓ tsp. cumin
- 3 tsp. chili powder
- ⅛ tsp. red pepper

Wash beans well, cover with boiling water. Boil 40-50 minutes, keeping beans covered with water. Add all seasonings and cook slowly 3 to 4 hours. Excellent with cole slaw and buttered crackers. A family favorite.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address, to Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

IF YOU are a confirmed romanticist, the name Moreddi would be reminiscent of Rome, Naples, Florence or at least New York; but if you are avidly interested in the smashing turn of furniture events, you will be most delighted to know this import furniture firm, started in 1955 by the brothers Frank, is based in Long Beach.

Moreddi, Edward Frank wryly admits, is Morry and Edward combined in a mysterious Italian fashion.

The idea for importing contemporary furnishings began with a postwar Scandinavian furniture discovery by Edward Frank which grew to classic proportions in a bright new world.

Beautiful teak, rosewood and walnut were the woods sculptured to serve sometimes several purposes.

As a furniture designer, Frank feels a piece of furniture can serve more than one purpose only if each use is completely successful.

A prime example is a solid block teak and rosewood buffet which swings out to form an L-shaped desk. The desk is fully equipped with file-size drawers and a typewriter space. Each use is successful in its function.

Multi-use furniture is preferable in the homes today. The wall system is a perfect example, along with flip-top console tables. Each takes a minimum of space and serves more than one purpose.

Self-contained leaves in game or dining tables also simplify space and effort.

The term Danish modern applies only to the Scandinavian furniture in the United States. "In Denmark," according to Frank, "it is called Old Dutch."

The Scandinavian chair is scientifically designed with the human form in mind. It is lower, so fatigue is lessened. The once prototype furniture has become near-classic in less than 15 years, proving that trends are not necessarily temporary.

Fads are the same in home furnishings as in clothing. They are more often than not the brainchild of a fertile mind or a promotion of style. These are usually known as fashion furniture and can date a home rather rapidly.

Without promotion, the next move in Moreddi furniture design has no name. Plastic art was a logical development rather than a planned fashion and happened independently in many parts of the world at the same time.

Oversized prototype furniture in reinforced fiberglass or cryolac was edited into American proportions by Frank to be accepted for its scaled-down appearance throughout the world.

People who think young are progressive enough to enjoy the visual and functional appeal of the molded synthetic furniture.

One might think the sleek, eye-catching formed plastic tables, chairs, umbrella - flower - magazine racks, lamps and chests are impractical, but the color is an integral part of the object and it never loses its clear, bright appearance. The material won't crack or craze — remember, it is used in cars and boats, and if they will withstand the wear and traffic, your living room is safer than the freeway or Catalina Channel!

You may rub out the scratches and they can be repaired easily with material found in any marine hardware supply house.

And best news of all for the housewife — they are light to move and lift. You can clean underneath the pieces each week rather than hope your guest won't drop anything and get a peek under your not-moved-in-a-month furniture.

If you are bored, pick it up or use it for something else — nice little cushion stools also serve as side tables.

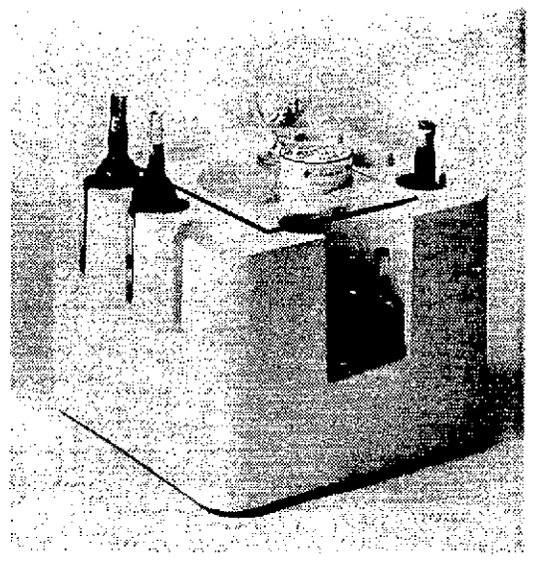

The furrniture, sans cushions, moves outside and that wild little perforated mushroom umbrella stand can pique your imagination endlessly.

I haven't mentioned comfort, but sitting on nine and one-half inches of foam rubber is comfort to me, and that is the cushions' depth on the settee.

In a world pretty well cluttered with promotional names that assist us in purchasing rapidly, sooner or later someone will add that certain ease to no-name plastic furniture. I discovered myself in a moment of freeway boredom calling it Vap, for visual appeal.

I suspect it won't bore us to death with re-use, because the people most interested in the bright new look of furniture are apt to call it theirs!

What's Your Question on Decorating?

By Elizabeth N. Hodgkin, A.I.D.

Do you have a question on decorating? For an answer (only in this column) by a member of the American Institute of Interior Designers, send it to Interior Design Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

Q. My living room is my problem. I need new carpets and drapery. What kind and color should I get to go with a French provincial sectional, brown brocade, leather-topped end tables and round coffee table, yellow chair that matches couch? The walls are off white. There's a sliding glass door and regular glass front door both on the same wall opening onto the patio. What would you suggest for more color? Would blue green carpeting go with the furniture? The dining room is to the right with French doors. The dining room suite is also fruitwood French provincial with light green cushions.

A. Blue green carpet can run the gamut, from turquoise to aqua, to teal, to deeper tones such as forest green. Your medium intensity color is the easiest to work with and easier to live with over a period of years.

A carpet which is too pastel is not as good a background for pale fruitwood finishes, such as French provincial pieces.

same color as your walls and you will find that your room will take on an uncluttered and serene look. If you feel that this treatment is too severe add a simple banding of your blue green to match the carpet color. Use the band 6" up from the bottom of your draperies and up the inside edge. Set this about 6" back from edge. The band should be at least 3½" wide to give you the feeling of enough color.

Remember, you already have, with a brown sofa, a yellow chair and blue green carpet, a scheme of three basic colors. To avoid confusion stick with these colors. Repeat them as you add furniture and accessories. A pair of tailored, small lounge chairs in a linen print, repeating these colors in a floral would fit your existing pieces. Be sure these chairs have tailored skirts with corner pleats. Too many curved legs, as most French provincial pieces have, can make a room seem to have a maze of legs. It is necessary, to keep the furniture from having a tendency to appear to be floating, to have a piece or two skirted to the floor. A small amount of bittersweet or burnt orange would add a little punch. This color could even be found in a print along with your other colors.

There are many handsome accessories in yellows this year. A simple pair of yellow porcelain lamps with white pleated shades would lighten the effect of your brown sofa and repeat your yellow chair.

Remember, since you are working with white walls to stick with fresh clean colors as you add upholstered pieces and accessories.

WORKSHOP

Lamp to Harmonize With Most Rooms

By Steve Ellingson

Southland Magazine is your entree to a different home each week, offering an opportunity to see how others developed decorative themes, incorporated comforts, solved family housing problems

EVERY attractive woman has an aura — her hairdo, perfume, poise, or that inner light that we label her personality. Likewise, every good interior has an aura. The aura of a room is greatly dependent upon its lighting. A well-lit room shows off all the things contained in it, and reflect the personalities of the people who live in the home.

Lamps can be used to emphasize or de-emphasize focal points in a room. And, they can make a house sing or sulk, depending upon their arrangement. Table lamps are often the key to a decorator's color scheme or mood of a room.

The lamp pictured here with pretty Linda Peck of Twentieth Century-Fox's movie "Valley of the Dolls" was designed to harmonize with practically all interiors. Its lines are simple and pleasing to the eye, and what is more, it's very inexpensive when you build it yourself. A small piece of wood is all that you need for the frame. The shade may be made from fiberglass, parchment, or any one of dozens of materials available from your neighborhood dealer. The full-size pattern takes all of the guesswork out of building. You need only trace the pattern parts on wood, saw them out, and put them together. Any novice can undertake this project with success.

What Your Name Means

crossed by a red chevron placed between three red seashells, symbols of ancestral participation in the 12th century Crusades to the Holy Land.

MISS RULE: Would like the origin of MASKE, MASKEY. — E.M., Rockville, Md.

MASKE, MASKEY, German, began as the baptismal name Thomas meaning "twin." In medieval Germany Thomas was shortened to "Mas," then expanded with the suffix "-ke" meaning "young."

MISS RULE: Please identify GARDINER, GARDNER. — W.G., Long Beach; N.G., Artesia.

GARDINER and GARDNER, English, describe an ancestor who was "caretaker and gardener" for an English manorial estate. The root word of these names was "Guardier" meaning "guardian." Geoffrey Le Gardiner of Oxford and Ralph Le Gardiner of Huntingdon were late 13th century ancestors. The Gardner armorial shield granted in 1478 is purple, decorated with three blue seashells on a silver chevron. Old Nantucket, Mass., records note that "Lidie, ye daughter of Richard Gardner Jr. departed this life February 8, 1688.

MISS RULE: What have you on BACA? — A.R., Long Beach.

BACA is a surname derived from the Italian "Iabaca," a form of Iacabo or Jacob, meaning "supplanter." Baca may also be from the Spanish "Baca" or "Vaca" meaning "cow," descriptive of an ancestral cattle owner.

MISS RULE: Please give the origin of JOBE. — S.C., Long Beach.

JOBE and JOBES, English, had a remote ancestor baptized "Job," used in honor of the patient Biblical patriarch whose Hebrew name Iyyobh meant "persecuted one." Early English ancestors included Elyas Jobbe of Suffolk and John, "Son of Job" of Cambridge, 1273.

MISS RULE: Please explain BAUER. — F.B., Long Beach.

BAUER, German, means "farmer." This family's farm-owning medieval ancestor rose to prominence from his industrious activity. The Bauer armorial shield is green, emblazoned with a pair of blue wings. Across the shield's top are three gold stars on a blue stripe.

COIN ROUNDUP

Gentle Art of Coin Hunt

By Maurice M. Gould

EVERYONE likes a bargain. There are occasions when bargains may be obtained from the regular sources, such as coin dealers and coin shows. Usually this is due to a better knowledge of the material on the part of the buyer than the seller, and a specialist in any field has the advantage, even in a battle of financial wits.

The place to start hunting is to first tell all of your relatives and friends that you are a coin collector. Many of them have a few pieces put away which mean very little to them, and they will be happy to add them to your collection.

Another method is to attend antique shows and flea markets. The flea market is actually an antique fair which is held out-of-doors. Many of the dealers involved in the antique shows, while they are more knowledgeable than they were in the past regarding coins, still will sell material reasonably, as this is not their specialty.

Dickering is a part of the procedure not to be ignored. There are flea markets in many parts of the world, many of them called thieves' markets. One in Phoenix has over 1,200 stalls at the race track on weekends, and there, besides the thousands of unusual and regular material, tokens, medals and coins can be found.

If you have any friends who have old homes, tell them to look in the attic, behind the old stoves, fireplaces and other possible hiding places, as many rare and valuable coins have come from these sources.

With so many cities having restoration and vast renewal programs, hundreds of old buildings are being razed every day, and thousands of old coins have come from this source, a number of which are scarce or rare.

Stores or establishments which are going out of business are also good sources at times, as often they have tokens, foreign coins and other nonredeemable material cached away in some forgotten safe or hiding place. When closing out or liquidating, all of this material comes to light.

I have come across a number of successful treasure and coin hunters who have gone out to beaches and other resorts, equipped with metal detectors and special equipment, who have found many unusual and rare coins, as well as spending money. One man who enjoyed this as a hobby would go to the beach early Monday morning after the heavy crowds of the weekend and would always find something of interest or value.

One of my favorite correspondents is Fred Eakin, of Laconia, N.H., and Vero Beach, Fla. His interesting stories of picking up coins on the beaches—washed ashore after many years of lying at the bottom of the ocean, from the many wrecks of the Spanish galleons—make for fascinating adventure.

Eakin wrote me: "Off my own beach lie the two most desired galleons of all. These ships were equipped with solid brass cannon, the only brass Spanish guns ever retrieved from Florida waters. The brass cannon signified that they were from the most important ship of the Spanish fleet, which is recorded as always carrying the greatest treasure. They are in about 18 to 20 feet of water and directly off my shore.

"Even before I found the Spanish galleon, I fished for bluefish or anything else that came along. I have had Mexican silver coins wash up at my feet. I remember one which was a marked silver half-dollar, Max. 1809."

(To order Coins of Special Value booklet, send 50 cents to Maurice M. Gould, Southland, Box 4037, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.)

Indian Sketches

HOWLING WOLF: A Cheyenne Warrior's Graphic Interpretation of His People. By Karen Daniels Petersen, with an introduction by John C. Ewers. American West Publishing Company, $14.

Arrow, a Cheyenne maiden, has emerged from her tipi painted with heraldic devices. It is the home of Red Cloud. Many footprints reveal that she has talked for some time with her suitor, to whom she has finally capitulated and who is leading her away. The lovers are dressed, the commentary tells us, "in the ultimate of Cheyenne finery. The man: dentalium-shell earrings, wrapped braids, calico shirt, silver armbands, vest, breastplate with dangling silver ornament, bandolier, hairplates, robe with wide-embroidered strip, and sword with otterskin streamers with feathers. The girl: dentalium earrings, elk-tooth dress, hairpipe necklace, concho belt with dropper, belt-bag, skirt with side panel, bracelets, and fringed blanket." It is an Indian Romeo and Juliet we are viewing. It is a tale told many times since the world began, this time in a vivid art.

It is one of the dozen delightful drawings from the sketchbook of Howling Wolf, son of Eagle Head, a Cheyenne chief. American West Publishing Company has, in this beautiful volume, brought these brilliant works out of their 90 years of obscurity, and it is cause for gratitude.

The first white men as the Cheyennes saw them on the Missouri River above the mouth of the Cheyenne River; the first horses owned by the Cheyennes, which they are obtaining by trade from the Kiowas on the Arkansas River; the scalp dance of the squaws, in which they are dangling scalps from poles; Cheyenne warriors returning from a raid led by Chief Roman Nose, firing their guns as they near the village; the buffalo hunt, and a horse race, both symphonies in motion, these are among the drawings. — N.H.

First in West

ESTEVANICO THE BLACK. By John Upton Terrell. Westernlore, $6.95.

The first man of Old World blood to traverse the wastes of Arizona and New Mexico was Estevanico the Black, according to John Upton Terrell, and not Fray Marcos of Nice, the purported discoverer of the Seven Cities of Cibola.

Estevanico went ahead of Fray Marcos from Mexico, crossed Arizona, and reached Hawikuh, the most westerly pueblo of Cibola in New Mexico, in 1539 — several days' journey beyond the padre's farthest point of advance, Terrell writes. It was Estevanico, a Moor, who actually opened the land gate to the American Southwest and for this he paid with his life.

Earlier, with Cabeza de Vaca, Andres Dorantes and Alonzo del Castillo, he made the greatest journey into the unmapped wilderness in North American history . . . the first crossing of the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific north of Mexico.

Terrell's account of Estevanico's journeys adds to the lore of the region, despite what might be his controversial contention of downgrading the exploits of Fray Marcos. — Bill Shelton.

Damned Souls

LOVE AIN'T NOTHING BUT SEX MISSPELLED. By Harlan Eillison. Trident Press, $5.95.

In his introduction the author asserts, ". . . the entire point of the title is to hook a wide readership"; however, there is plenty of both love and sex (as well as hate and fear) in this collection of 22 stories.

Harlan Eillison is a controversial and angry young man — very angry about a great many things: About racial prejudice, injustice, narcotics, police brutality, bigotry, juvenile delinquency, book burners, violence in the streets . . . but most of all he is angry about today's lack of understanding and loss of communication between people. In the stories are such diverse beings as ogres, hopheads, soldiers, teen-agers, derelicts, hookers, trolls, hillbillies, models, writers, gamblers and ". . . a hopping, crawling, slithering assortment of poor damned souls . . ." looking for love.

Author Eillison is well known to devotees of fantasy and science fiction and not a few of these stories fall into that genre. If you are subject to nightmares, this book is definitely not your cup of tea. — Pat Bautista.

Gauchos---Some Were Irish

THE GAUCHO, by Jose Luis Lanuza (Foreword by Jorge Luis Borges, photographs by Rene Burri, translated by J. R. Wilcock; Crown, $12.50) examines a colorful character.

"The classical gaucho type," we read, "is white-skinned (tanned, of course, from living in the open), with a beard, usually dark. Gauchos were predominantly of Spanish blood." Sometimes, however, the gaucho was a mestizo, with Indian blood, and on rarer occasions, a mulatto.

The Scottish traveler Robinson even described an Irish gaucho, red-whiskered and red-mustachioed. This man, Pedro Campbell, left many anecdotes behind and carved a niche in Argentine history, for he formed a regiment of Tepe Indians and led them in many a battle.

The author does not mention them, but there are Jewish gauchos on the Argentine pampas. These colonists were settled in the gaucho country at the turn of this century, financed by the famous Jewish philanthropist, Baron De Hirsch. Escaping the pogroms of czarist Russia, they sought the true spirit of the Talmud in getting back to the soil. Their story was told, in "The Jewish Gauchos of the Pampas," by Alberto Gerchunoff, an Argentine-Jewish writer who died in 1950.

Jose Luis Lanuza, in "The Gaucho," traces the gaucho's origins from the 18th century, when he was a semi-savage on the borderline of legality, to the figure of romantic hero. Here he is, dignified, always a fighter, a horseman of great prowess from early childhood, a singer of songs, a gambler, an amazingly skilled handler of cattle. He is a vanishing man, because the wide open spaces of the pampas keep shrinking.

The many photographs by Rene Burri are masterful. The foreword by Jorge Luis Borges, Argentina's great writer, is a gem in itself.

And Try Not to Miss . . .

A MODERN PRIEST LOOKS AT HIS OUTDATED CHURCH. By Father James Kavanaugh. Pocket Books, 95 cents.

The Pope's recent encyclical on birth control and the subsequent controversy over it within the Catholic Church add new interest to Kavanaugh's book. Examining the priesthood, marriage and divorce, birth control, sin and confession, the parish, education, convent life, and relations between Catholics and non-Catholics, he appeals for a new personalism and humanism to replace the old legalism. Kavanaugh last year resigned from the priesthood to protest what he regarded as the bishops' failure to put into effect the reforms proposed by Vatican II, and later married.

THE SHORT END OF THE STICK and Other Stories. By Irving Shulman. Pocket Books, 95 cents.

Two college boys receive a rude awakening on the other side of the tracks in the title story in this collection of tales by Shulman, as always subtle and perceptive. "Summit Meeting" is the story of a war between a Western small town and an Army camp nearby. Three of the stories take place in Hollywood.

THE PREMIER, THE TRAIN. By Simenon. Pocket Books, 60 cents each.

If you haven't discovered the greatest modern master of suspense and of the psychological novel, the Belgian Simenon who writes in French, this is your chance to do so inexpensively. "The Premier" is a poignant study of an aged statesman in his final lonely years of retirement. "The Train" tells movingly of a man's brief meeting with love and his return to reality.

CONCISE DICTIONARY OF CURRENT AMERICAN USAGE. By Jerome Shostak. Washington Square Press, 90 cents.

Author of many books on English, Shostak gives the correct usage for business correspondence or ordinary conversation, the informal letter or a formal talk. In dictionary format, the book solves spelling, punctuation, pronunciation, grammar, vocabulary and word-usage problems.

The Damned Must Help Each Other

By Patrick Hughes

WE TOASTED Elaine with steaming cups of tea and cried "Many happy returns of the day!" It was a good party. We ate our Chinese food and made jokes about the nearby bar.

Elaine was radiant. Her comely Irish face, typical including raven's wing hair, deep blue eyes and fair complexion, held none of its usual anxiety. Elaine needs to be loved, and the Group loved her.

The occasion was her first anniversary of total abstinence.

Less than a month later she turned up at the Group's weekly meeting in a sorry state. Her face was puffy red and pale, her eyes bruised with booze and tears, her hands shaking. Her usually pretty clothes and hair were in disarray.

"I did it again. I don't know why I did it. I'm so sorry, so ashamed."

"Don't you get discouraged with us, doctor?" a man in the Group asked. "You work and work with us, and then we pull stuff like this."

"I'm not discouraged," he said. "You know Elaine's problems. And you know how well she has met them for a year. And I'll bet she will meet them well again. Progress seldom goes in a straight line forward. Everybody regresses from time to time."

The doctor, a silent, smoking man, almost never shows he has emotions of his own. He acts as moderator, takes notes and speaks out about six times an evening. His questions are searching and pointed, his rare statements a summation and clarification of what has been said.

No one could tell Elaine's story in a few words. She deserves a great novel. (So do most, perhaps all the members of the Group.) Here is a brief case history of her life:

Elaine, 35, is Irish American with Deep South and small-town Western background. Her parents were very Catholic, strict, with a bit of alcoholism. She was educated by the nuns and in the university.

She is a lady. She loves literature, music, art and the dance. She no longer goes to Mass, but her attitudes are those of a high-class, sheltered Christian. She cannot accept the prevalance of sin in the world, and did not believe until she learned the hard way that husbands could be attracted to other women.

Her husband is in many ways like her, but with problems of his own. In one bad night on the town he destroyed himself professionally and has since tried to make do with jobs not to his liking and with pay scarcely adequate for their six children.

Elaine took to the bottle — not a bit at a time, but fiercely. She was put in jail after she refused to obey a policeman's order to go home. She ran away from home and for awhile worked as a cocktail waitress.

Elaine loves her children — and her husband. She made it back home — with the help of someone. This kind of lush is hard to help but is helpless without someone. Elaine has tried to repay by helping other young women.

After her downfall I asked, "Did you have any fun on your binge?"

"None whatsoever," she said. "Except for a little while in college I've never had any fun with alcohol. I just drink to blot things out."

Generalities about alcoholism are psychologically dangerous and usually untrue. It is not even true that every alcoholic is a person who drinks too much if you consider his total consumption over, say, a month. The problems are complex, involving the entire personality.

One generality does, as far as I have observed, seem to be true. Alcoholics get no pleasure from booze. They don't drink, like wine connoisseurs, for taste sensations. They don't drink like party-goers to forget their shyness and be merry with friends. They don't drink to calm their nerves a little.

They drink to get blotto, stoned, out of this world. They will drink anything alcoholic, but often their drink of choice is vodka straight because it doesn't taste like anything. Many prefer to lock themselves in a room and drink until the bottles are empty.

The Group is not made up of seedy bums. On the contrary, they would look quite in place at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon. They are mostly people of superior background and, in spite of their massive problems, are mostly a notch above average. Here are some brief paragraphs about them. (All names and stories, including Elaine's, are slightly fictionalized.)

ERIC: Combat Marine, playboy, businessman who has been up and down again and again, a man who has lived hard. He is charming and aggressive when his mood is good. When failure or the fear of failure takes over, he goes on what he calls a "speed run."

JANE: A shy, charming divorcee who feels she is not a good mother. She was so frightened of life that she lived alone with liquor and drugs, not even daring to venture out to the grocery store. Now she drives many miles each day on the freeway to her job. "That is a better accomplishment than your quitting drinking," the doctor said.

HAROLD: A chief boatswain's mate, typically Navy. When he goes on the spree he tends to take out his anger against the world with his fists.

GEORGE: A business executive who limited his heavy drinking to horrendous weekend sprees. He faces a drunk-driving rap which may cost him his job. Since his wife left him, he has not wanted to drink excessively.

ALICE: Wife of a professional man, a woman of cool dignity, who from time to time drinks vodka until she ends up in the hospital. She seems to have no insight into her motives although she is sensitive to the problems of others.

CLARENCE: A shy, bitter man who drinks only when he gets a good job. (He has an upper income occupation.) He is dependent on his wife.

The list could go on and on. The Group changes. Every alcoholic is hiding something from himself. If he is too afraid of self-knowledge, he doesn't come back. If he thinks he has found enough self-knowledge to live a better life, he may not come back.

The Group is frank in the way they could never be to friends and certainly to spouses. We are all in this together. We are all "gentlemen rankers" and "little black sheep" who are trying to find out where we lost our way and whether we're really damned from here to eternity. We're fiercely perceptive of each other's lies, tolerant of failures, quick to share real griefs. It is a first-name society, like that of a saloon. We don't socialize much outside the Group.

But what we learn in the Group carries over into our lives. We learn that we are not unique in our damnation and suffering. Trouble is the common fate of mankind. In our talks together

TEEN ACTION LINE is your service, solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get action, write TEEN ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial HE 2-3453 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. or 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. Monday through Friday. Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness.

Your Very Own

Q. Zygomas, an on-campus club of 20 Wilson High School girls, cannot find a mug shop to personalize 20 pottery mugs. We want our mugs for the football season. Can you help us? M.W., Long Beach

A. You can get your names and club emblem painted on the mugs at Hanson House, 1310 W. 15th St., Long Beach. The ceramic specialties firm can do the personalizing in either gold or black lettering. The firm also carries mugs if your group has not already purchased some.

Get the Message

Q. On my shortwave radio, I pick up a lady giving several different numbers each day. At the end, she says, "airpage." Could you please find out what I am listening to? S. G., Long Beach.

A. You are listening to Airpage of Long Beach, a one-way radio paging system which started operating in January of 1955. Several doctors, lawyers, salesmen and even juvenile officers subscribe to the service for $10 a month, said Bernice Arnold, district manager. Each subscriber carries a six-ounce radio receiver pre-tuned to the Airpage with him or in his car. He is given a three figure identifying number. A combination of letters and numbers after that identifying number is a coded message. For example, 101-A2 might mean "call your office." When a call comes into the Airpage answering service, a dispatcher will pick up a microphone and read the subscriber's number and a coded message into it. This message is recorded on a tape recorder that keeps repeating it automatically every few seconds. When the client presses a button on his tiny radio, he can hear his serial number and the coded message.

Sugar, Spice and Beets

Q. I am doing a science experiment for which I need a sugar beet. Where can I purchase one? S.H., Long Beach.

A. TEEN ACTION LINE contacted Spreckels Sugar Co. in Los Angeles, which extracts sugar from sugar beets. Bruce Adeson, office manager, and Lucille Della Pella, senior clerk, said they would arrange to have some sugar beets brought down to you from Northern California where they are grown. According to "The Lincoln Library of Essential Information," sugar beets grow best in a temperate climate. They are white and usually contain about 12 to 18 per cent sugar, compared with 10 to 16 per cent in sugar cane. The beets are harvested around September, cut into thin slices, and put into tanks of warm water. The water dissolves the sugar out of the chips. Later, the solution is purified and crystallized, and the sugar is refined.

Dirty Dogs

Q. Can TEEN ACTION LINE find out where I can get my stuffed animals cleaned? B.K., Long Beach.

A. Rivoli Cleaners and Dyers, 1413 Magnolia Ave., and Alert Cleaners, 273 Market St., clean most stuffed animals. The price would depend on the size of the animal. However, the proprietors of both shops recommend that you do not have your stuffed animals cleaned as it is very difficult to get the dirt out and it ruins the looks of the animals. They recommend that you lightly clean the animals yourself using a cleaning solvent.

TEENS IN ACTION

SHATTERING the stereotype of the public speaker who talks well, but knows nothing, is 18-year-old Robert Gerst, winner of numerous speaking awards. He not only speaks well, but has something to say.

Before graduating from Paramount High School in June, Robert was president of the Speech Club, editorial and news editor of the school's newspaper, and president of the Senate during the school's mock U.S. Congress session.

Robert, who lives at 6042 Coke Ave., plans to major in religion at Oklahoma Christian College this fall, and eventually become a minister in the Church of Christ.

His views:

—I don't agree with the statement that young people are turning away from Christianity. They never turned to it. Most parents don't really expose their children to religion in the proper way. The parents may go to church on Sunday, but what religion do they practice on Monday morning?

—One of my pet peeves is the indictment of today's youth. I conducted a one-month survey of the newspapers in this area and found negative articles printed about 90,000 young people. According to government statistics, there are 104 million people under 25, yet they are being indicted for the actions of 90,000.

—I realize that a newspaper is responsible for printing the news, but when it reports how many students at a school were involved in a demonstration, why doesn't it tell how many were not involved?

—When the Paramount students organized their mock U.S. Congress session, they couldn't even make the last page of the local newspaper, yet six students on the steps of the Federal Building with placards supplied by a television station got national coverage. Newspapers don't seem to be interested in what concerned young people are doing.

—There must be a change in the attitude towards young people, and the communications media can help change it if they will stop being so concerned about circulation, and more concerned about the good in the community.

—The only difference between the older and the younger generation is that the younger generation admits what it is doing, while the older generation hides its actions under a veil of hypocrisy.

—However, there are some hypocrites in the younger generation. Some young men claim they are avoiding the draft for religious reasons, when it is really for other reasons. Actually, the teachings of Christianity respect the right of a government to wage war and to require its citizens to support it.

—The restless generation is an accurate title for young people. They are restless because they are searching for something. But whatever it is they are searching for it can be found in faith in a Supreme Being.

The only medication that gets to a major cause of hemorrhoids

New COUNTERNOID

offers most complete 3-way relief

This important development in hemorrhoid treatment comes to you after five years of scientific and clinical testing. Not only does Counternoid work by lessening pain fast, and by coating, soothing, and protecting injured tissue . . . but unlike every other hemorrhoid product Counternoid also works a third way.

Thanks to an exclusive formula with DSS₁₀,™ only Counternoid gets to a major cause of hemorrhoids: Painful constipation. Without irritating laxative effect. Here's how: In hospital X-ray tests doctors have demonstrated that the remarkable Counternoid formulation with DSS₁₀ penetrates in minutes to the top of the rectal area to soften the stool and ease the bowel movement.

It is this unique action that does so much to make natural healing possible.

So, if you live with the pain and fear of recurring minor hemorrhoid troubles, get temporary relief with medically-tested Counternoid.

Actually, used as directed, Counternoid offers the most complete 3-way relief you can get without a prescription or without surgery. In stainless cream or suppositories.

At all drug counters.

MEDICINE AND YOU

New Drug Brings Asthma Relief

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Editor

A NEW-TYPE drug, disodium cromoglycate, has been able to bring about improvement in more than half of a group of patients suffering from asthma.

The drug, also known as Intal, was administered as a powder inhaled through a plastic-inhaling device called a Spinhaler. Patients did this four times a day.

Studied were 51 asthmatic children. Youngsters inhaling Intal fared three to four times better than those treated with a dummy drug.

In a study of long-term treatment, improvement could be maintained in 90 per cent of patients.

During drug treatment, pulmonary function tests showed improvement in two-thirds.

A major advantage offered by use of the new drug is that the use of cortisone-like drugs could be reduced. One-third of patients who had been taking such drugs were able to stop them altogether. Another one-third reduced the amount of cortisone-type medication.

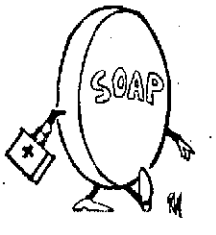

No significant side effects have been seen with use of Intal, according to a report in British Medical Journal.

Researchers who performed the study were Drs. J. M. Smith and G. F. Devey of Brimingham Asthma Clinic in England.

A SAFE, simple, effective way of treating a scaly skin eruption called erythrasma: daily use of an ordinary antibacterial soap.

The recommendation is that of Baylor University skin specialists.

For a long time, the doctors note, the antibiotic erythromycin has been the treatment of choice for the condition. Even so, the eruption frequently recurs and the cost of erythromycin for two weeks averages $20.

Dr. Kit Duncan, one of the researchers, says: "We feel that equally good results can be achieved in mild to moderately severe cases with a soap that contains antibacterial ingredients."

If symptoms don't clear up after three weeks of soap treatment, Dr. Duncan then advises adding erythromycin, either oral or ointment form, to the regimen.

The report is in Archives of Dermatology.

RESEARCH reports continue to suggest that protracted infections may set the stage for development of leukemia and other blood malignancies.

A Columbia University medical professor says he found 10 leukemic patients who previously had a long-standing infection before leukemia appeared. In some instances chronic infection had persisted for as long as 30 years before malignancy developed.

The chronic infections varied—but all were marked by an increase in pus cells, according to a report in Medical World News, newsmagazine for physicians.

Dr. Elliott F. Osserman, associate professor of medicine at Columbia University, thinks that the development of leukemia in these patients may be related to long-term stimulation of production of monocytes, a type of white blood cell. These cells are common in certain types of leukemia.

TO A LIMITED degree, a jet of carbon dioxide gas can clear a plugged-up coronary artery of fatty patches, medical researchers report.

The coronary arteries (there are two) are those that nourish the heart itself with blood.

So far, technical considerations have restricted use of the technique to the right coronary artery. The operative risk is regarded by many surgeons as too high at present to justify its use in the left coronary artery.

But in the right coronary artery, surgeons have been able to use the procedure to improve blood circulation through the vessel.

The technique is technically known as gas endarterectomy. A needle is inserted into the vessel wall and carbon dioxide pressure separates the outer covering of the vessel wall from the diseased artery lining. Then the inner core is removed by surgical instrument.

The report is in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

A DRUG CALLED naloxone looks promising in the treatment of heroin addiction, a New York doctor reports.

The new experimental drug, it is said, can block heroin's action without causing significant side effects. Furthermore, patients do not build up a tolerance to naloxone's action against heroin.

Still, naloxone is not ideal since it is effective only for short periods. What is needed is a long-acting form of the compound.

Research with naloxone is scheduled to continue at New York Medical College.

CARBON monoxide poisoning can be treated successfully by placing the patient in a special chamber and subjecting him to oxygen under pressure.

According to a report in Archives of Surgery, two brothers poisoned by carbon-monoxide inhalation recovered completely after two and one-half hours' exposure to high-pressure oxygen in a chamber.

Doctor's Choice of Dogs

By Eleanor Avery Price

Dr. Robert Franklyn, noted Hollywood surgeon, finds a Golden Retriever is ideal playmate for his baby.

ALL the stars of stage and screen know of Dr. Robert Franklyn because he is one of Hollywood's leading surgeons and has kept many people youthful in appearance with the magic of his work.

But the question here is, what kind of dogs would a man of his importance select for pets for himself and family. The answer: Golden Retrievers and Scottish Deerhounds. Dr. Franklyn probably has the largest private kennel of Goldens in the nation.

Among dogs, the Golden cannot be outdone for his placid, affable behavior even as a puppy, for his sweetness and tolerance toward children, his aptness in learning, his bright beauty. He makes an ideal home pet the unbeatable pal for children, the perfect companion for the sportsman, an intelligent guard, a fine dog for the blind.

If you don't answer the call of the open country and yet still want a Golden for his other fine qualities, you can keep him content with backyard retrieving. Never throw rocks for him (or any other dog) to fetch, for not only is there the hazard of his accidentally swallowing them, but there is danger of the wear on the enamel of his teeth. He'll enjoy retrieving a ball. It should not be of the size to get lodged in his throat, however. The Golden will also enjoy romping in a sprinkler, for he loves water.

As for the Scottish Deerhound, Sir Walter Scott called his own dog, Maida, "The most perfect creature of Heaven." The breed is not as lavish in his affection as more maudlin dogs, but he gives unswerving loyalty if he is kindly treated.

Once this breed was used almost solely to stalk deer for artistocracy. His numbers in our country are still not many, for he is a large dog, only slightly smaller than the Wolfhound. And using dogs on antlered prey is not legal in the United States. The Deerhound, however, works well on other game.

It may be a long time before this dog gains more popularity, for in all the rush and bustle of our time the quiet dog stays in the background. I can only add that the Scottish Deerhound's gracious manner may be just the sense of peace and dignity you need to make life easier. It is no wonder that a famous and busy surgeon chooses to own the kind of dog that greets him with great and loving dignity at the close of day.

Pincushions

By Ruth C. Ikerman

THE OTHER day a little girl asked me what I was using on my desk, and I was surprised to find she had never before seen a pincushion. A little research showed me that these are not as much used as in days past, since we rely on the ever ready paper of pins, or those which come with packages from the market.

The little girl was pleased, however, when she received her very own pincushion made from two pieces of felt. These can be made in many shapes, but one of the easiest is the familiar sunflower.

Cut a circle approximately four inches in diameter from yellow felt, and cut small triangles along the edges, so there are about 16 points of the yellow. Then in the center paste or stitch with brown thread a two-inch diameter circle of deep brown. Into this an assortment of pins can be placed, where they will be kept ready for instant use when taken from the felt.

A friend made for herself a pincushion from black and white felt, cutting it in the shape of an old-fashioned telephone, and attaching it near her own modern telephone. She said she was always needing a pin when near her phone, and she didn't see why she couldn't have one there instead of inside her needlework box.

Infinite are the variations available for such sewing boxes. Children love pincushions made in the shape of their pet chickens or bunnes with tall ears, and since children's books often include such illustrations it is fairly easy to secure a copy. By sewing two identical pieces of cloth or felt together, there is opportunity to stuff the little pincushion with cotton from the top of a medicine bottle or with double folds of soft cloth, so the pins go into it more easily when placed by little fingers.

On the other hand oldsters love pincushions which remind of children and the past. One of my own favorites is made in the shape of an old-fashioned girl with a red bonnet, and pantalettes of lace on the white felt body. A few French knots on her dress and bonnet speak of the delicate work of the cherished friend who made the treasured gift.

Since the days in American history when a woman had a little "pin money" to buy pins when they were made available as the scarce commodity they were, even unto the present when they are in great abundance, there has been daily pleasure in a pincushion pin-up. Making your own favorite variety can become a pleasant hobby pastime.

Stilts for Kids

By Alan Farrant

STILTS THAT are easy to make—and fun to use—are made from tin cans. All you need are two large empty cans, and some rope or very strong string. The fun follows in a short time!

Cut one end out of each can. Then punch two holes at opposite edges in the end which is not cut out. Into each hole put one end of a piece of rope. Stand on the can, with the cut out end down. Hold on to the loop of the rope, so it is reasonably tight when you stand up. Put a knot on the rope just inside the can, against the hole where the rope enters. Do this with both ends.

Your tin can stilts are now made!

To use them, just stand on each can. Hold the ropes tightly and walk. It's easy. Yes, and it's a lot of fun, too, for youngsters.

The Damned Must Help Each Other

we learn that we are not lonely monsters but just human beings. We tried to cure our wounds with alcohol. That is bad, but there are worse ways.

Where does one find help? It is not always easy but it will not be found unless it is sought. Alcoholics Anonymous, which has been called a "church for drunks," has helped multitudes to a new life. For others it does not work because their personalities are not susceptible to its peculiar appeal. Real churches do not have a mission to drunks, but some pastors and church organizations do. The State of California carries on an extensive program in this field. Physicians can guide patients to suitable therapy.

Liquor, a pleasant luxury for most people, does not cause alcoholism. Rather, alcoholism is a painful and sometimes fatal symptom of dark trouble in the personality. There is no cure until the person can learn to bring his trouble into the light and look at it. Seldom can he do this alone.

MONTEREY AND ALL THAT JAZZ

Holiday appeared on the first show.

—Duke Ellington's band has garnered top honors on two occasions (1964 and 1966).

—Trumpeter Miles Davis made a sensational debut in 1963.

—Brazilian guitarist Laurindo Almeida has been there — so have Gunther Schuller, Harry James' band, Ornette Coleman, Horace Silver, Woody Herman's band and many another jazz luminary.

Several performers left lasting impressions.

Fans can look back with happy memories upon an evening concert in 1961 when trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie, his flashy bop style on exhibit, broke up the show.

Unquestioned hit of the 1963 festival was progressive piano stylist Thelonious Monk, on his first Monterey appearance. Known for making "way-out" music, Monk turned about to play a swinging, mainstream rendition of "Sweet and Lovely" that surprised the audience and generated calls for encore after encore.

Blues artists have had their fine hour, too. One occasion was the 1964 Saturday afternoon concert that saw the performers deliver what the billing promised, "Blues Right Now." A packed house rocked and reverberated to the nitty-gritty sounds voiced by the top vocalists in the indigo idiom. Joe Williams, Lou Rawls, Big Joe Turner and Willie Mae (Big Mama) Thornton — all took turns at rousing the crowd.

"They really tore it up, man," recalled one who was there.

Insiders expect some exciting moments this year at the Sunday evening concert when singer Billy Eckstine hosts "An Evening with Mr. B."

Slated on the bill is a reunion of Eckstine with jazz immortal Earl (Fatha) Hines, the piano-playing maestro who gave Billy his start as a bigtime vocalist.

Another scheduled highlight of the festival: the first presentation of Lalo Schifrin's "Jazz Suite on Mass Texts," with the composer conducting a concert orchestra and choir.

Triumphs often come as a complete surprise at Monterey.

Once it was a long-shunned tenor saxist who opened without applause but went on to captivate the listeners.

On another occasion an unknown jazz vocalist's catchy rhythm style moved the crowd to a frenzy.

Performers praise Monterey, say it allows them to "stretch out" — to "do their thing" unpressured for time.

Atmosphere at the jazz festival is relaxed yet festive, bucolic yet hep.

While the picknickers loll on lawns ringing the Fairgrounds, inside the open-air arena jet-setters listen to cool sounds or ogle an avant-garde art exhibit.

Hawkers, ensconced in bright-hued booths, peddle souvenirs: exhibit posters, hand-crafted jewelry, pottery and trinkets.

Elsewhere a concessionaire serves up "soul food."

A few feet away a line queues up for hot dogs, pizza and soft drinks.

All about the mood is informal.

Casual garb — and the ever-present sunglasses—mark the customary attire.

Sharing the common experience at the "American Salzburg," people mix, imbibe, discuss jazz and make new friends.

Everybody — the Los Angeles businessman, San Mateo housewife, Stanford sophomore or Seal Beach store clerk — can feel at home in the unhurried setting.

Monterey's ocean-front weather adds to the comforts. Warm afternoons give way to cool, pleasant nights.

"There is something about the place," wrote Willis Conover in the Saturday Review, as he exuded over Old Monterey. Columnist Ralph J. Gleason defined it as a "Monterey Mystique."

Long have tourists drooled over the town's old world charm.

Some who go to the jazz festival say the fascinating sights of Monterey, now celebrating its 200th anniversary, enthrall them as much as the music.

One thing appears certain: town and festival make a happy wedding.

"It's a real groove," said a hepster. "The jazz swings, and Monterey is something else."

If you go there, the spirit may move you, too.

Crowd responds to singing of Janice Joplin with Big Brother and The Holding Co. at the 1967 Monterey Jazz Festival.

Count Basie is one of the many big-name Monterey performers.

The man who guides the Monterey Jazz Festival is Jimmy Lyons.

Southland Dining at its Finest in the Long Beach and Orange County Area

By FRANK ANDERSON
(For Vacationing Tedd Thomey)

VARIETY is the spice of life and good food — which is by way of commentary on the well-seasoned menu at Ken's Restaurant, 3918 Long Beach Blvd.

Sea food, chops, steaks, egg dishes, appetizers — with that shade of difference separating the mundane from the extra special — all are featured at Ken's.

There's a specialty for every night of the week, and the swordfish comes highly recommended. After fencing with the idea of ordering the swordfish, I remained true to my meat-and-potato past and selected the top sirloin steak.

I wasn't disappointed. My appetite hadn't given me a bum steer. The meat was rare, as I prefer, and so tender it could be cut with a fork's edge. The cut stood about two inches high, or about half the altitude of the Matterhorn of baked potato, which wore a tiara of sour cream and chives.

An appreciative knife and fork cut the potato down to size and potato and the bites of steak strolled amicably past the sentinel taste buds. A dash or two of A-1 sauce completed the retinue.

The dining experience opened with clam chowder, always an amiable companion on a Friday night. I was pleased to find the chowder true to the standards of my Massachusetts boyhood, when no trip to Cape Cod was worthwhile without a dalliance with clams.

The service, even at counter where I was seated because of a waiting list for the tables, was impeccable. Owner Bill Snodgrass, who keeps an attentive eye on the dining room, has trained his staff well. And it shows.

Every good restaurant has a touch of its own, and Ken's is no exception. A small, homemade loaf of unsliced bread is presented to the steak dinner on an individual board. Supplied with a keen-edged knife, the patron slices his own bread and thus feels more at home.

The check was a modest $4.35, but there was nothing modest about the enjoyment of paying it. The steak rang a bell with me, which may be the reason Ken's cash registers ring so merrily.

A Happening In Central Park

New York City's largest park will be the setting, and the lighted skyline of Manhattan the backdrop, when "Barbra Streisand: A Happening In Central Park" is presented as a one-hour special in color at 9 p.m. Sunday, Ch. 2.

The presentation is a video tape of Miss Streisand's one-woman concert under the stars on the immense sheep meadow in New York City's Central Park last summer. Although this huge open area of the park was thought capable of holding no more than 55,000 people, the star gave her alfresco performance before an audience estimated at some 130,000 persons.

Miss Streisand worked on a transparent plexiglass platform over a natural rock formation, framed by trees, sky and buildings. Six television cameras and a film camera mounted in a helicopter flying over the scene covered the concert from every con-

NBC STARTS ITS new season this week. Above are six characters from new shows this season—the policemen are Kent McCord and Martin Milner of "Adam 12"; Diahann Carroll and Marc Copage who plays her son in "Julia"; Gene Barry of "Name of the Game" and Darren McGavin "The Outsider" (lower right).

Prospects for TV Season

By JACK GOULD

New York Times Service

Television's fall season, which nominally gets under way today, will reflect economic caution and modest adjustment to such social issues as curtailing use of violence and introducing more Negroes into shows and commercials.

There will be fewer changes in the schedule of regular weekly offerings, the financial backbone of the medium, than in any year since at least 1962. The number of premieres of shows expressly designed for TV is down to 22, compared with as many as 34 in some recent years. High production costs, adding to the risk of coming up with hits, have in part dictated the cutback in innovation.

For the first time, viewers will have the opportunity of looking at a full-length feature movie in prime time every night of the week. The National Broadcasting Company has plugged the last open evening for movies—Monday nights — and also is initiating what could be the forerunner of the double feature in TV. On Friday nights, NBC is offering a series of original 90-minute movies under the title of "The Name of the Game," they will overlap with the CBS Friday night movies, bought from producers of films for theater showing.

THE DEPTH of television's commitment to public affairs in prime evening hours is interestingly reflected in the weekly schedule of fixed viewing. The prime hours are considered to run from 7:30 to 11 p.m., which works out to a combined total of 73½ hours a week for the three networks.

Only a single hour — the CBS News Hour at 10 p.m. on Tuesdays—is regularly committed, week in and week out, to matter other than entertainment. For the statistically minded, this means that an awesome total of little more than 1 per cent of regularly scheduled network TV is reserved for public affairs in the violatile year of 1968-69.

In practice the figure will not be quite so low. NBC is doing a series of specials on the urban crisis and, come January, will be offering a monthly two-hour documentary on current events. On a more limited scale, the American Broadcasting Company will follow a similar course, with programs such as a documentary by Truman Capote on capital punishment.

THE TV medium, moreover, can be counted upon to pre-empt entertainment hours to cover unexpected developments in the news, and it will be reporting the political

PAN AND FAN MAIL

I'M INTERESTED in knowing why the program "Exercise With Gloria" at 6:30 a.m. has been discontinued.

I'm a middle aged housewife who has returned to college and I found the program was great for keeping me in shape. I was a Jack LaLanne viewer for years but because of my school schedule this summer, I joined Gloria every morning and found the results better than what I had done with the Jack LaLanne program.

I have two teen age daughters that have exercised with me and we are all so disappointed. Please find out if this will be back on or will it be just me and my shadow?

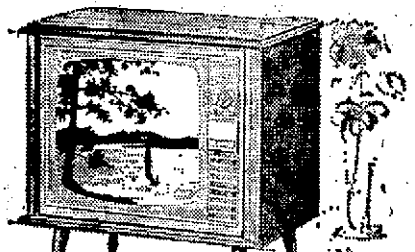

Mrs. Irene Holbrook, Long Beach

("Exercise with Gloria" has been dropped by Ch. 7, which says it has rerun the programs several times and feels that's enough).

I AM referring to the letter from a reader commenting despairingly on two of the world situations in "Pan and Fan" (Sept. 8) and your referral to Job 5.7.

Without questioning the truth of this verse, I should like to ask you and any others not to stop at this point, but to read on through verses 8 and 9 especially, and in fact, through the (Continued Page 15, Col. 3) campaign this fall. ABC also will be giving very extensive attention to the Olympics in Mexico City next month.

As for the staple entertainment schedule — the bread-and-butter shows that enjoy the most consistent year-round exposure—the promised 22 premieres do not appear in general, judging from advance network descriptions, to offer any radical departures in format.

Particularly interest, probably an unreasonable amount, attaches to the debut of Diahann Carroll as the first Negro star of a regular program (Bill Cosby was co-star in "I Spy"). The NBC situation series entitled "Julia," Miss Carroll's vehicle, is awaited as possible holding some sociological significance. Only time will tell.

Actually, the concern of both the networks and advertisers over the white image of the home screen found belated expression after many shows had already gone into production. What the networks did was a shoring-up operation, quickly hiring Negro actors to appear in new and continuing programs. It may be a step in the right direction, but there should be no confusion over the larger fact that the networks are not yet bold enough to suggest Negro life as it really is.

AS A RESULT of the national concern over violence, the networks also initiated efforts to edit out extremes of brutality as a dramatic end in itself. The total elimination of physical conflict cannot be expected in any viable form of drama. But what TV has done in the past is to reduce violence to a mere handy tool without the plotting, characterization and gift of language that make it plausible and justifiable. In fairness to innumerable TV writers, they are not truly devotees of violence but of what TV likes to call "action."

HOPE LANGE stars in "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir," premiering 8:30 p.m., Saturday, Ch. 4. Edward Mulhare is the ghost.

The new weekly TV schedules, which begin this week with NBC and next week wih CBS and ABC, are probably the least flexible phase of TV. Of greater importance to the cause of diversity are the irregular specials in drama. Here there is leeway to deal with themes that do not need to be presold for 26 weeks, plus summer repeats, and a chance to show that TV has a measure of vigorous fiber. The medium needs independent writers and documentarians who can drag televisions into the realities of the modern era.

TV should abandon its token tip-toeing around the anxieties of 1968-69 and wade in with a vigor that could inspire, infuriate and, in the long run, contribute to a dialogue that is the best type of constructive cartharsis. Television's self-imposed isolationism undoubtedly carries its generous share of welcome relief from reality, but the medium can survive only through a balanced boldness over the full spectrum of its undertakings.

TV NOTEBOOK

The famous opening shot of television's veteran show "Gunsmoke" has been holstered — permanently.

Each week, for the past 13 years, Dodge City hero Marshall Matt Dillon has gunned down a bad guy of CBS's Old West.

But network executives felt the scene should be eliminated in light of present day drive against guns and violence.

Star Jim Arness will now ride his horse across the plains and into the living rooms of viewers when the series returns this month.

Ironically, the scene was filmed last season when the series was to be canceled. The decision was later reversed.

When told of the axing of his show, Arness rode his horse as fast as he could in a scene — something he had never spurred to do in more than a decade.

JIM ARNESS
Puts Pistol Down

"AFRICA," the four-hour prestige show produced by the American Broadcasting Co. and aired in a single night will be shown on Educational TV Ch. 28 — in two parts, starting at 9 p.m., Sept. 24 and 25.

CBS's "Petticoat Junction" has cast June Lorkhart in a new role as a woman doctor in the series. It is obviously a replacement of a maternal figure in the programs now that Bea Benaderet has taken a sabbatical to regain her health. Miss Lockhart has started work on her first episode and will not appear until later in the season.

She was the mother in "Lost in Space" for the past couple of seasons and before that was the mother in the family that owned "Lassie."

WHAT DO television stars do when their series are canceled and they are out of work? They take on guest roles, even when they don't get billing.

And that has been the humiliating fate of a series star of two season back. Flipper, the lovable dolphin, will be back in a minor role in the season's premiere of "Gentle Ben," on CBS Sept. 29.

It will be one of the several trained dolphins whose combined talents were used in the Flipper series. "Flipper" and "Gentle Ben" are products of Ivan Tors' production company in Florida.

"T.H.E. Cat," starring Robert Loggia, returns to TV at 10:30 p.m. Sept. 26 airing on Ch. 7. . . . Rance Howard, featured on "Gentle Ben" Sundays on the CBS Television Network and father of Clint Howard, juvenile star of the series, got his first theatrical job outside the theater. He was a doorman at the Roxy theater in New York when he first arrived from Oklahoma. "I was tall and thin, and they had a uniform that fit me," he says.

KEEFE BRASSELLE, whose novel, "The Cannibals" deals with the inner-workings of the inter-sanctums of television's internationally known stars and industry moguls, will be guest host on Ch. 9's TEMPO II program — Sept. 16-20, from 2-4 p.m., for vacationing Bob Dornan.

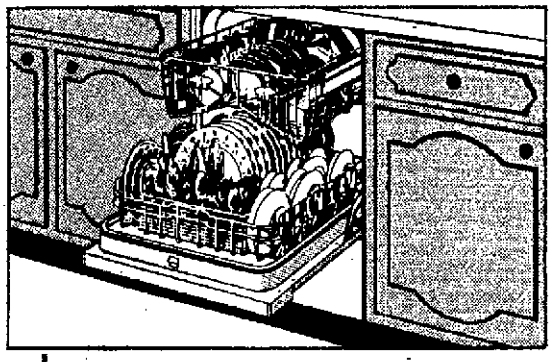

PHYLLIS DILLER'S "The Beautiful Phyllis Diller Show" debuts at 10 p.m. Sunday, Ch. 4, with Johnny Carson as a guest.

OUR 36TH YEAR

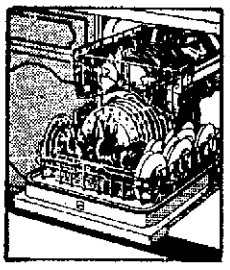

1ST SHOWING, THE ALL-NEW KITCHENAID DISHWASHERS

for people who believe in old fashioned quality

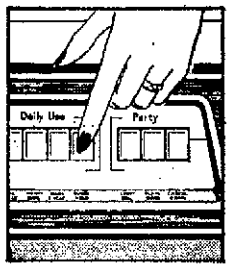

KitchenAid built-in dishwashers

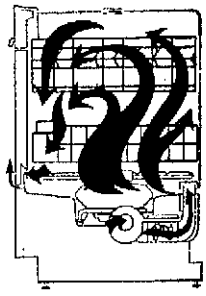

KitchenAid dishwashers and disposers are built with good, old-fashioned quality . . . the kind of quality that means years of dependable performance, day in and day out. Every KitchenAid is built better to work better and last longer. There are many types, many models . . . one just right for your needs.

WONDERFUL LOADING FLEXIBILITY. You'll appreciate how easy it is to load and unload a KitchenAid Superba. Upper rack is easily adjusted to 9 positions; Flex-O-Dividers can be raised or lowered, individually, to 16 positions. So you can load odd-shaped or extra-big items like roasters.

7 PUSH-BUTTON CYCLES. A perfect cycle for every dishwashing need. You can select SaniCycle, that preheats final rinse water to 180° for extra family health protection. Also Plate Warm, Heavy Soil, Full Cycle, Light Soil, Rinse/Hold, Cancel & Drain.

FLO-THRU DRYING SYSTEM. Exclusive with KitchenAid. Thorough yet safe even for fine china, good plasticware. No hot spots.

CRITICS' CORNER

AROUND THE WORLD OF MIKE TODD, aired Sept. 8, Ch. 7.

. . . In an age when show business is increasingly run by committee — and mergers make more headlines than talent — any sign of individual, spectacular force seems welcome, and has impact. . . .

It was not a truly well-rounded study of Todd. . . . It was more of a tribute, which was to be expected since the co-producer was his son, Mike Todd Jr. — and if there were any negative aspects to the father's flamboyance, they were hardly mentioned. . . .

This fantastic promoter — described in the hour by restaurateur Toots Shor as "A typical, perfect American hustler" — is worth a well-rounded documentary study, particularly his earlier years. But this early period was brushed over lightly as the hour concentrated mainly on the making and promotion of his film, "Around the World in 80 Days" — and also on his marriage to Elizabeth Taylor. . . . The reason that more about his life would have been welcome was that it was his life, and not any of his productions, that was really his perfect creation. "I've been broke a hundred times," he said, "but never poor. Poor is a state of mind."

—Rick DuBrow, UPI

MISS AMERICA PAGEANT, aired Sept. 7, Ch. 4.

. . . The big effort was to turn the contest into a sort of variety show. The girls, of course, were pretty and the level of professionalism in the performances by the finalists was higher than in other years.

There were excellent production values — the sets and costumes were effective. But things bogged down when they dragged in that "Traveling the Road to Someday" theme.

—Cynthia Lowry, P

JOHNNY CARSON DISCOVERS CYPRESS GARDENS, and THE BANANA SPLITS, aired Sept. 7, Ch. 4.

. . . A time-killer combining a few gags mixed with demonstrations. . . . A new children's series, "The Banana Splits Adventure Hour," was supposed to downgrade violence in entertainment for the youngsters, but dished up considerable mayhem-as-usual in its film, cartoon and costumed animal segments.

—DuBrow, UPI

WHAT GAP?, aired Monday, Ch. 7.

This little fantasy . . . was obviously misfired somewhere. There was Wally Cox with a pretty hippie on a dream-like motorcycle tour of the city. They dressed Wally in funny wigs and beards and in hippie clothes. About the only portion that came off well was a satiric cocktail party in which the women in normal clothes discussed baseball and the stock market while the men, in hippie dress, chatted about clothes. The show seems to have been on the network shelf for awhile — a little too long since it seemed stale and almost outdated.

—LOWRY, AP

HERE COME THE STARS, aired Sept. 9, Ch. 5.

Format of "Stars" would seem to be one that would show George Jessel off to his best advantage, but the preem program didn't. For the most part it was a tired succession of unfunny jokes, routinely punctuated with ordinary music. As planned, show is to simulate a Friars Club type of dinner that roasts and toasts the guest of honor, but this attempt lacked the zip and zing of lively entertainment . . .

Preem show was to "honor" George Burns . . . In execution it came off as a pointless and unentertaining variety show. Burns deserves sympathy. If that was the best his friends could do for him, he needs no enemies.

—Beig, Variety.

Chicago Reaction
Mail Heavy to Networks

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

In a flurry of white envelopes and purple prose, thousands of people are taking the three television networks to task for their coverage of the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

The response is largely critical. Some of it is of the "you-dirty-Communist" genre, but much of it seems to come from ordinary people who are angry and frustrated. Here are a few examples:

"I have never witnessed such one-sided versions of any news in my life. They (the commentators) certainly had no right to condemn any city, person or persons without knowing the true facts before millions of viewers in this country and around the world." From a Chicago Woman.

"I CAN'T recall a single interview with anyone who liked Humphrey, the convention, the mayor, or even Chicago." From a California man.

"A great part of televiewers saw exactly what you did, and are not fooled, a fact which you must be becoming painfully aware of in the light of increasing indignation by the set owners who are forced to obtain our news through the eyes of your prejudiced camera crews." From a New York City man.

"In my opinion you set the stage for another assassination. Many of us worried through the convention for fear the mayor would be murdered." From a Chicago woman.

ONE NETWORK official said ruefully, "My own sister told me there ought to be some control of television. What're you going to do?"

NBC so far has received 3,782 letters, telegrams and telephone calls — 759 approving the network's convention coverage and 3,023 critical.

A large number of the communications received at NBC have come about equally from Chicago and Illinois. After that, most have come from California, Texas and New York.

A CBS spokesman said an analysis of its mail has not been completed, but it appears to be heavily critical.

THE NIGHT of the clash between the Chicago police and the demonstrators, Wednesday, Aug. 27, ABC received about 3,000 telephone calls in five major cities. Ninety per cent of the callers bitterly protested that ABC correspondent Jim Burnes had said the Chicago police had been brutal.

Burnes said he has gotten more than 100 letters from across the country "and it seems to be running about 10 to 1 against me." This appears to be an exception, however. Most letters addressed individually to newsmen at the networks are favorable.

A Cleveland, Tenn., resident wrote Burnes: "Today one hears much about stereotypes — What does Mr. Burnes think his comments have done for law enforcement? He has stereotyped the Chicago police and probably all police as being brutal."

Burnes said he was "concerned about the letters because people seem to be confusing law and order with sheer police power." Other mail from youths and Negroes praised him for "telling it like it is."

Mike Wallace, a CBS correspondent who was knocked to the convention floor by a security officer, said: "People who bother to write, most of them, have been, what's the word, complimentary." But one resident of Bellwood, Ill., wrote Wallace: "I must say the time in which I thought CBS had the best coverage was the time you were in jail."

Wallace had been detained briefly at the security headquarters.

DAVID BRINKLEY, who shared anchorman duties at NBC with Chet Huntley, said the hundreds of letters he has been receiving are mainly favorable.

What is to become of this mail?

First of all, it is being read and a record is being made of the opinions. These analyses and some of the more lucid pieces of mail will be circulated among the news executives.

The reasonable mail, with names and addresses, probably will be answered eventually. Letters such as those assailing the networks as being "Communist-controlled" are for the most part anonymous and will not be answered.

What is to become of it all is uncertain. One network spokesman said all reasonable suggestions would be considered, but there seems little likelihood it will affect television coverage. Said Richard S. Salant, president of CBS News: "We can't exercise our news judgment on the basis of popular votes."

Lombardi—Pro's Most Winning Coach

VINCE LOMBARDI

Green Bay's Vince

When most professional football coaches, players, writers and fans think of excellence, the name that most readily springs to mind is that of Vince Lombardi, the game's most successful coach, who for the first time in 22 years has given up on-field responsibility to devote all his time to general managerial duties.

A one-hour profile of this gridiron great, entitled "Lombardi," will be presented at 8 p.m. Sunday, Ch. 2. The presentation will span his early years when he was one of Fordham University's "seven blocks of granite" through his tenure as coach and now general manager of the National Football League's Green Bay Packers.

The Special will be seen on the same day that the Network begins its 13th year of covering regular season NFL games.

USING STILL photos as well as newsreel footage never before shown on television, the filmed program will be narrated by John Facenda with special commentary by several Packers, members of Lombardi's family and former associates of the Green Bay mentor.

One of the highlights of "Lombardi" will be audio film of the coach on the sidelines during two games last season, one a victory over the Minnesota Vikings and the other a last-minute loss to the Los Angeles Rams. A microphone was attached to Lombardi during the two contests.

Since joining Green Bay as head coach and general manager in 1959, a year after the Packers suffered through a 1-10-1 season, Lombardi amassed a record of 141-39-4 for a .783 winning percentage.

FROM 1960 on, his Packers never finished below second as they won six Western division and five world championships, including an unprecedented three in a row in 1965-67 and the first two world championship contests with American Football League teams in 1966-67. In fact, of 10 post-season division playoffs and world championships, Lombardi's Packers have won nine.

Three years in Wisconsin will be examined, as will his four seasons as offensive line coach with the New York Giants (1954-58) during which the Giants won two Eastern division titles and one world championship; six years with the U.S. Military Academy at West Point as assistant to coach Earl (Red) Blaik, and two at Fordham as line coach.

SPORTS TODAY

NFL FOOTBALL, 6:30 p.m. (2), in color, has Jack Buck and Pat Summerall at Busch Memorial Stadium for the season opener between the Rams and St. Louis Cardinals.

SPECIAL

REPEAT Premieres — The weekly series leave the networks, then return for daily runs in re-broadcasts. KCOP (13) airs "Batman" daily at 6 p.m., with KTLA (5) picking up "National Velvet" at 2:30 p.m., "Please Don't Eat the Daisies" at 4:30 p.m. and "Lost in Space" at 7:30 p.m.

JEANNIE (4), 7:30 p.m. (C) — 4th season premiere. Series shifts to slot vacated by "The Monkees," as Tony and Roger land in mountain country where they're met by hillbillies with raised shotguns and Jeannie's revived with a bucket of moonshine.

LAUGH-IN (4), 8 p.m. (C) — 2nd season premiere. There'll be new faces, new features and a new moustache for Dan Rowan — plus initial guests Barbara Feldon and Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner.

MOVIE (4), 9 p.m. (C) — It finally happened — movies 7 nights a week. Opener for NBC's new Monday series is that oft-filmed "Madame X," with Lana Turner as the gal from the wrong side of the tracks who "disappears" to save her husband and son from shame.

THAT SHOW (13), 11 p.m. (C) — Want still another late-night talk show — and with a femcee? This one, a nightly half hour, is helmed by comedienne Joan Rivers, a frequent guest of Johnny Carson, with initial week's guest list including Carol Lawrence, Jerry Lewis, Joel Gray, Don Rickles and Godfrey Cambridge.

SPECIAL

JERRY LEWIS (4), 7:30 p.m. (C) — 2nd season premiere. "Tell It Like It Is," a new Ralph Rotten segment, and wacky vignettes of "who was first" are among Jerry's added features as he returns in an earlier time slot. Guest Robert Culp joins semi-regulars Nanette Fabray and the Osmond Brothers, with 7-year-olds from Pasadena' Montessori's school joining Lewis in the unrehearsed "tell it like it is" segment.

JULIA (4), 8:30 p.m. (C) — Premiere. Diahann Carroll stars as an air force captain's widow, starting a new life in L. A. for herself and young son, in series created and produced by Hal Kanter. A registered nurse, Julia tries to get a job in an aerospace plant health office — but her son would rather find her a new husband. Lloyd Nolan plays a recurring role of the doctor for whom she hopes to work.

ICE FOLLIES Premiere (13), 8:30 p.m. (C) — At the Forum in Inglewood, Bill Burrud and Alan Sloane talk with celebrities in the audience, and backstage with guest star Peggy Flemming and Ice Follies regulars Richard Dwyer, Mr. Frick and the Casey Twins.

MARIJUANA (2), 10 p.m. (C) — Mike Wallace finds the nation's reactions to pot more emotional than reasoned, so he investigates its physical and psychological effects, the legal penalties for its use and possession, and its place in the nation's social structure (it has been used by an estimated 6 to 12 million Americans). Views are given by young users, attorneys, psychiatrists, a judge and medical experts — and we see a controlled experiment from Palo Alto as a graduate student describes the effects of an 8-hour period under the influence of THC, a synthetic marijuana.

Public Broadcast Laboratory

Second Season of Experiment Starts Dec. 1

By GEORGE GENT
New York Times News Service

Despite rumors of internal collapse and imminent disaster, the Public Broadcast Laboratory plans to start its second season of experimental broadcasting on Dec. 1 at 8 p.m.

PBL is planning 22 Sunday night programs, the majority of which will run 90 minutes. It will also offer four "specials" on public affairs and culture to its approximately 150 noncommercial affiliates.

Rumors of the PBL's demise have been circulating almost from the time of its first program last season. Since then, the laboratory has been reorganized and there have been a number of resignations.

The Ford Foundation underwrote the first two years of the experimental series to the amount of $10.5 million. It will not be decided until February or March whether the grant will be renewed. Consequently, PBL officials are placing a high priority on early success in the new season.

Many PBL employes are already feeling the pressures of job insecurity because of the uncertainty over the Ford renewal of the funds.

Av Westin, executive director, and Frederick M. Bohen, executive editor, said that "the norm" for this season's program would be 90 minutes.

He said it would not be known for at least a week if any stations would refuse to carry the laboratory's programs.

A number of noncommercial stations object to the Sunday programs because they do not ordinarily televise on that day.

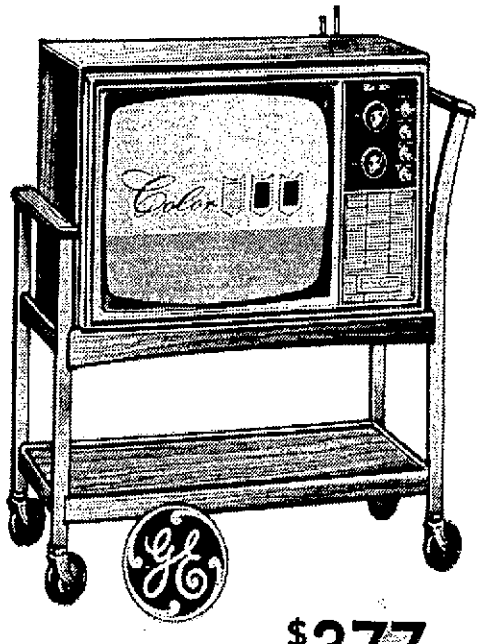

The Laboratory plans less concentration on hard news and more programs of a thematic nature.

"Our format will place a continued emphasis on interpretative comment as opposed to hard news reporting," Bohen said.

16th verse. We are not as though without hope.

Robert W. Price,
Long Beach

IS IT possible to find out if "The Prisoner" is still in production in England? And, also, where can I write to obtain a picture of Patrick McGoohan?

K. Pape,
Garden Grove

WOULD YOU please tell me if "The Prisoner" will be back this fall? I hope it is as it is my favorite program, and everyone I know enjoys it also. If it isn't returning will Patrick McGoohan be in any other series? I'm also a fan of his "Secret Agent" (via reruns). Could you tell me when these were made and how many. It seems that they rerun the same few over and over.

I would appreciate it very much if you could tell me something about Patrick McGoohan. He seems to be something of a mystery as I can't find out a thing about him in fan magazines, etc.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

What is his age, height, coloring . . .?

Marilyn Paine,
Long Beach

(McGoohan was born in New York in 1928 and his family took him to Ireland at the age of 2. He received his education in England and held various non-acting jobs, including chicken farmer, until he joined a repertory company where he met and married Joan Drummond. They have three girls. McGoohan is 6 feet, 2 inches tall, weighs 170 has brown hair and blue eyes. "Secret Agent," made in England under the title "Danger Man," first aired in the U.S. on CBS in 1965. He made 45 episodes.

(The current series of episodes of "The Prisoner" some of which he wrote and directed—he is the series executive producer—will end with the Sept. 21 segment. All have been completed. No plans have been announced for continuing the series or any other project. For a picture of McGoohan write c-o Columbia Broadcasting System, 6121 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood, Calif., 90028).

DUE TO the coverage of the Democratic convention, the "Tonight Show" was not shown. The week before, it was announced that David McCallum was to appear as a guest on one of the programs. Will the "Tonight Show" with McCallum's appearance be shown sometime in the future?"

Hopeful,
P.R., Lakewood

(NBC which carries the "Tonight Show," says McCallum was not scheduled to appear on the show and is not on the current schedule).

ZERO MOSTEL gets a garland of roses, complete with water, in the fourth season premiere of "The Dean Martin Show" at 10 p.m., Thursday, Ch. 4.

★ SPECIAL

DANIEL Boone (4), 7:30 p.m. (C) — 5th season premiere. There'll be no Mingo this year, with Ed Ames quitting series to focus on his singing career, but singer Jimmy Dean makes the first of several appearances as trapper Josh Clements.

IRONSIDE (4), 8:30 p.m. (C) — 2nd season premiere. Sorrell Booke guests as a master jewel thief with whom Ironside matches wits. A public showing of a multi-million -dollar gem collection is their mutual interest.

DRAGNET (4), 9:30 p.m. (C) — 3rd season premiere. On a TV "talk show," Friday and Gannon debate with two anti-police political activists, defending their department against charges of brutality, ineffectiveness and ignorance.

DEAN MARTIN (4), 10 p.m. (C) — 4th season premiere. Broadway star Zero Mostel offers a comic ballad and joins Dino in a spoof of rock singers as he makes one of his rare TV appearances. Other guests on the season opener are comedian Shecky Greene, singer Lena Horne, and dancer-turned-hillbilly Buddy Ebsen.

SPECIAL

HIGH CHAPARRAL (4), 7:30 p.m. (C)—2nd season premiere. As Tarzan vacates his jungle hour, the Cannons move in from their Sunday slot. Tonight an Indian outbreak threatens to erupt when Billy Blue and an Apache boy fight over ownership of a prized wild stallion.

NAME of the Game (4), 8:30 p.m. (C) - Premiere. Robert Stack, Gene Barry and Tony Francioasa are rotating stars of a 90-min. series dealing with the behind-the-scenes operation of an international publishing empire—each show boasting top name guests, and planned for release aboard as a movie. Initial offering stars Francioasa (he covers intriguing people and events) with regulars Susan Saint James and Barry (he's the pixblisher, so sometimes guests with the others) in an investigation of a top government official who could be involved in either blackmail or a dangerous scandal. And the witness he seeks is found dead.

STAR TREK (4), 10 p.m. (C) - 3rd season premiere. The U.S.S. Enterprise takes off at a new later hour, where a beautiful woman's ghostly image startles the crew on the bridge of the ship. And the woman's disappearance brings the discovery that Mr. Spock's brain has been surgically removed, and is being used to run the computer apparatus of a complex all-female subterranean civilization.

SPECIAL

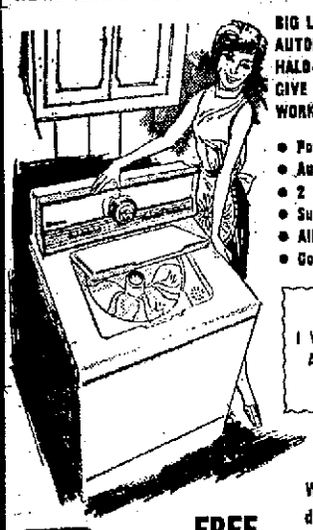

ADAM-12 (4), 7:30 p.m. (C) — Premiere. After years driving "Route 66," Martin Milner gets into another car for this "Dragnet on wheels," teaming with Kent McCord in a series with the official sanction of the LAPD. Working together for the first time in opener, the senior officer and rookie are involved in a high-speed chase, the capture of two robbers and an emergency call to save a suffocating baby.

GET SMART (4), 8 p.m. (C) — 4th season premiere. KAOS unintentionally plays Cupid! Trapped in a TV control booth and with death apparently at hand, Max finally admits he loves 99 and would marry her if only there were a way to escape. That's all 99 needs!

GHOST & Mrs. Muir (4), 8:30 p.m. (C) — Hope Lange and Edward Mulhare star in a movie-based series about a young widow who moves with her two children into an old seacoast house still occupied by the ghost of its former owner — a 19th century seaman. The captain tries to frighten her out of the house, but the stubborn widow won't be intimidated. (You'll see the ghost in the "flesh," so NBC promises there'll be no hanky-panky).

ceivable angle, as well as the audience.

PRODUCER - director named Robert Scheerer said "The hardest thing about getting this concert on tape was that there were no ground rules, no precedents to follow. This sort of live taping had never been done before, at least not with such a minimum of rehearsal time. To give you an idea, Barbra flew into New York from California, where she was making a film only two days before the Saturday-night concert.

"And even rehearsals wouldn't have meant all that much, except that, such as they were, they gave me a chance to establish approximately where Barbra would be standing on the stage.

"That was what was meant by rehearsals," Scheerer continues wryly. "The rest was flying blind, playing it by ear. I really had little idea of what Miss Streisand would be doing — outside of singing, of course — at any given time, any movements she might make. I simply didn't know. But — and it's a highly important 'but,' maybe the crux of the whole thing — I didn't want to know. That was the whole point — to keep this a live concert, to record an event as it was happening. We were there to get a happening, not a studio production, on tape."

Q. There's an anecdote about Richard Nixon and a pregnant lady at the Republican National Convention. It involves a sign or something. Can you find out about it and print it if it's printable?—Amos Jenkins, Panama City, Fla.

A. During the recent Republican National Convention in Miami Beach Nixon supporters plastered the city with signs which read, "Nixon's The One. Nixon's The One." These signs were on boats, taxicabs, trucks, hatbands, etc. One obviously pregnant young woman, wearing a sash with the legend printed across it, was a star attraction in the lobby of the Hilton Plaza Hotel.

EARTHA KITT

LENA HORNE

DIAHANN CARROLL

LESLIE UGGAMS

Q. I would like to find out why Lena Horne, Leslie Uggams, Diahann Carroll, Eartha Kitt—practically every black female vocalist winds up with a white husband?—Bugs Henry, New York, N.Y.

A. In show business circles, men of equal success stature are more likely to be white.

Q. What sort of a man is Larry O'Brien? First he was John F. Kennedy's campaign manager. Then he transferred his loyalty to Lyndon Johnson, then to Robert Kennedy, now to Hubert Humphrey.—E.G., Boston, Mass.

A. O'Brien has not been accused of being a man of towering integrity, just a loyal Democrat.

Q. How much does Mia Farrow earn per motion picture?—Ellen Wolff, Jersey City, N.J.

A. Her asking price is $350,000.

Q. It is no secret that the late Bobby Kennedy did not want his brother to choose Lyndon Johnson as his running mate in the presidential campaign of 1960. Whom did Bobby want as vice president?—Norton W. Evans, Baltimore, Md.

A. He preferred Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri.

Q. I read in the papers that President Nasser of Egypt has been in Soviet Russia recovering from a secret disease. What's wrong with him?—Bertha Allende, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. Nasser is a diabetic, suffers from Berger's Disease, which involves loss of blood circulation in his limbs. Frequently this leads to gangrene, necessitating amputation. Nasser sought medical help in Russia because (1) he doesn't want the Egyptians to learn of his affliction and (2) there are no Egyptian specialists who treat the disease.

Q. Can you tell me if Tiny Tim was really paid $50,000 a week for singing—if you can call it that—in Las Vegas?—Chris Christopherson, Cedar City, Utah.

A. Caesars Palace in Las Vegas paid Tiny Tim $50,000 for a week. The Fontainebleau in Miami Beach will pay him $60,000 a week later this year. Last year Tiny Tim was earning $50 a week when working.

Q. Who said, 'The mass of men lead lives of quiet desperation?"—Owen Pennybaker, Des Moines, Iowa.

A. Henry David Thoreau, 1817-1862, in his classic, Walden.

Q. Have the Elvis Presleys lost their second child?—Louise Baxter, Henderson, N.C.

A. Yes, Mrs. Presley miscarried in her second pregnancy.

Q. Richard Nixon's running mate, Gov. Spiro Agnew of Maryland, is of Greek extraction. Yet Agnew is an English not a Greek name. What is Agnew's real name?—Peter Donaldson, Hartford, Conn.

A. Agnew is the Americanization of Anagnostopoulos, his original Greek family name.

Q. Hiram Fong, the U.S. senator from Hawaii — is he Japanese, Chinese, or Hawaiian? — Nola Vilensky, Milwaukee, Wis.

A. Hiram Fong — real name, Yau Leong Fong— is the son of a Chinese coolie who came to Hawaii to work on the sugar plantations. Fong was born in Honolulu in 1907, educated in Hawaiian schools, is an attorney, a wealthy corporation president, a Republican. Fong took the name Hiram because he considered it a political advantage.

Q. How old is Jackie Kennedy? Is it true that she and sister-in-law Ethel Kennedy have never gotten along? I also would like to know if Bobby Kennedy wasn't angry at his brother-in-law Sargent Shriver for working so closely with Lyndon Johnson.—Elaine Wishinsky, Asbury Park, N.J.

A. Jackie Kennedy is now 39. She and Ethel Kennedy have always had different life styles. Ethel was born into a family of great wealth, developed into a secure, outgoing, athletic woman of warmth, friendliness, openness; generosity, and simplicity. Jackie was born into the fringes of wealth, developed into an insecure, introverted, artistic woman who regards herself as an intellectual.

Bobby Kennedy did not take too kindly to Sargent Shriver's working with Lyndon Johnson, but he understood that Shriver was a talented, ambitious activist whose first loyalty was naturally to himself and his own family.

Q. I have been told that basketball's Wilt Chamberlain has bought a $500,000 mansion in Beverly Hills. Is this so?—Hubert Owsley, Roxbury, Mass.

A. Chamberlain has bought a $300,000 home in the Trousdale Estates above Beverly Hills, not far from where his candidate, Richard Nixon, used to live.

HAPPINESS IS A FOG— FOR SOME PEOPLE

If there's anything Gene Kooser and Tom Bucchino can't stand, it's a beautiful day, roofed over by blue sky and bathed in golden sunshine. But, they're ecstatically happy when they wake up in the morning and find everything socked in by an ugly, gray, pea soup fog.

Kooser and Bucchino aren't grouches or congenital sun-haters. It's just that they're engaged in an unusual occupation —developing a workable, artificial method of dispersing fogs over airports. For them, a day of no fog means a day of no progress.

"Sometimes," says Kooser, wearing a rueful expression, "we're all set to go into action against a lovely, thick fog and then that darn sun comes out and burns it off and ruins everything."

The two men—owners of World Weather, Inc., of Houston, Tex.—have recently been making holes in fogs around Sacramento, Calif., and Nantucket Island, off Cape Cod, Mass. Using a chemical spraying process, they work sometimes from an airplane, sometimes from the ground. And though they have further refinements to make in their process, and further obstacles to overcome, they contend that they've already proven that fog can be dispersed at man's will.

One of their favorite stories tells how they cleft a trench in a solid 600-foot-high fog over the Sacramento Municipal Airport, giving themselves sufficient visibility to land. Bucchino recalls: "A man in the control tower yelled, 'Wow!,' and a United Airlines pilot who happened to be watching hollered, 'It's Moses and the Red Sea all over again!' "

The $100,000 project the two men are presently working on is of prime importance to their employers—34 U.S. and Canadian commercial airlines—because disruptive fog over airports costs them at least $75 million a year.

Says W. Boynton Beckwith, United Airlines chief meteorologist and technical director of the Kooser-Bucchino project: "Things are so interlocked in American aviation that a two-hour fog at just one airport—O'Hare in Chicago, the world's busiest—backs up air traffic from coast to coast."

Zero zero

Kooser, 55, and Bucchino, 39, both pilots and Navy veterans, are quiet, soft-spoken, family men. There's nothing about them to suggest the daredevil. But when their weather conditions are ideal —ceiling zero and visibility zero—and they're operating from their airplane, the work is exceedingly dangerous. In fact, Lloyd's of London is the only underwriter in the world which will handle their liability insurance.

"When fog forces everybody else out of the air," says Kooser, "then it's time for us to go up."

They go up in a 32-year-old, twin-engine Lockheed which, on close inspection looks as much like a plumbing job as an airplane. Outside they've rigged the white, red-trimmed craft with piping and nine nozzles to spray their fog-dispersing chemical in liquid form. Under the fuselage they've built in one much larger nozzle for the chemical in powder form. Inside the plane, which was built to carry ten persons, there's room for only Kooser and Bucchino because they've filled the rest of it with pumps, pipes, generators and big steel drums full of chemicals.

"This plane isn't meant to win beauty contests," says Kooser, founder and president of World Weather. "It's meant for work."

Kooser preserves some mystery over his chemicals. There may be competitors in the field and he's attempting to develop an exclusive system with which he can grant franchises. He does disclose that the chemicals are non-toxic and have certain electric qualities that force billions of tiny fog-causing moisture droplets to combine, sometimes making "rain."

"Here's an analogy," he explains. "Suppose the air was full of golf balls, packed so closely together that you couldn't see through them. You spray something into the air that causes them to combine into beach balls. The beach balls are much bigger but now you've got room to see through them."

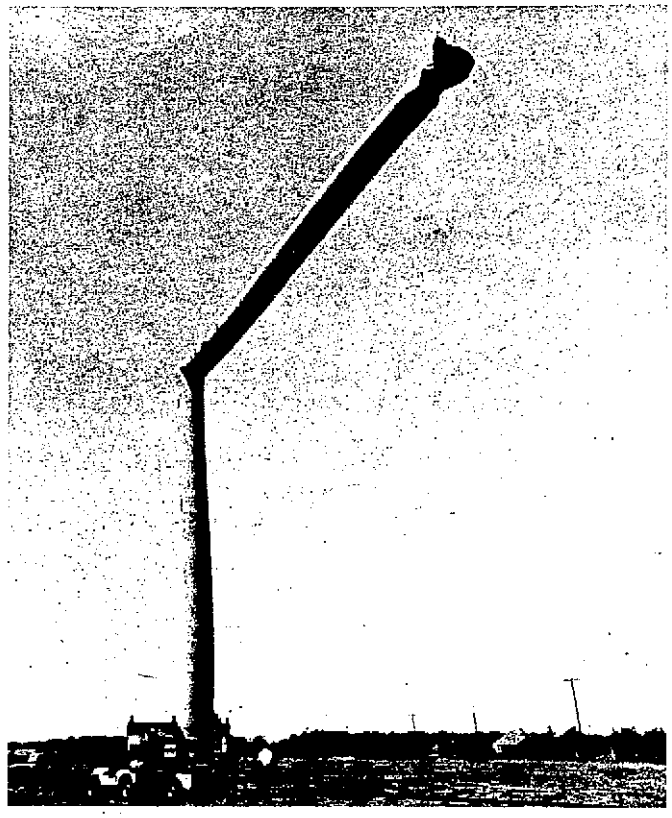

'Giraffe' kills fog

Each run of the plane can cut a swath about 300 feet wide. On a still day the plane works back and forth over runways until they're cleared. A windy day is more of a problem. Often the swaths are soon clogged again by moving fog. Kooser and Bucchino are still working on run patterns that will minimize that effect.

When they attack a fog from the ground, they use a machine called "Fog Sweep." It was built to order for them and is the only one of its kind. When in use it looks like a misshapen giraffe. It has a small squat body but a nylon neck that's 100 feet long. A fan blows a 100-mile-an-hour wind through the sky-pointing tube, forcing chemicals to the top and throwing them another 100 feet into the air. "Fog Sweep" gets a lot of laughs but it also gets a lot of fog.

The Air Transportation Association of America, made up of the 34 airlines which commissioned the project, is eagerly awaiting its further development. And, though Kooser and Bucchino have so far received little publicity, they've had inquiries from three foreign cities—London, Glasgow and Milan—asking details on fog dispersal.

Probably the principal drawback still remaining is the big expense of equipping an airport with fog-dispersal gear. "When we get that one licked," says Kooser, "schedule delays caused by airport fog ought to be just a memory."

Fog, fog, go away: 100 mph wind fanned through this 100-foot-long tube sprays fog-dispersing chemicals high into air over airports so planes can land.

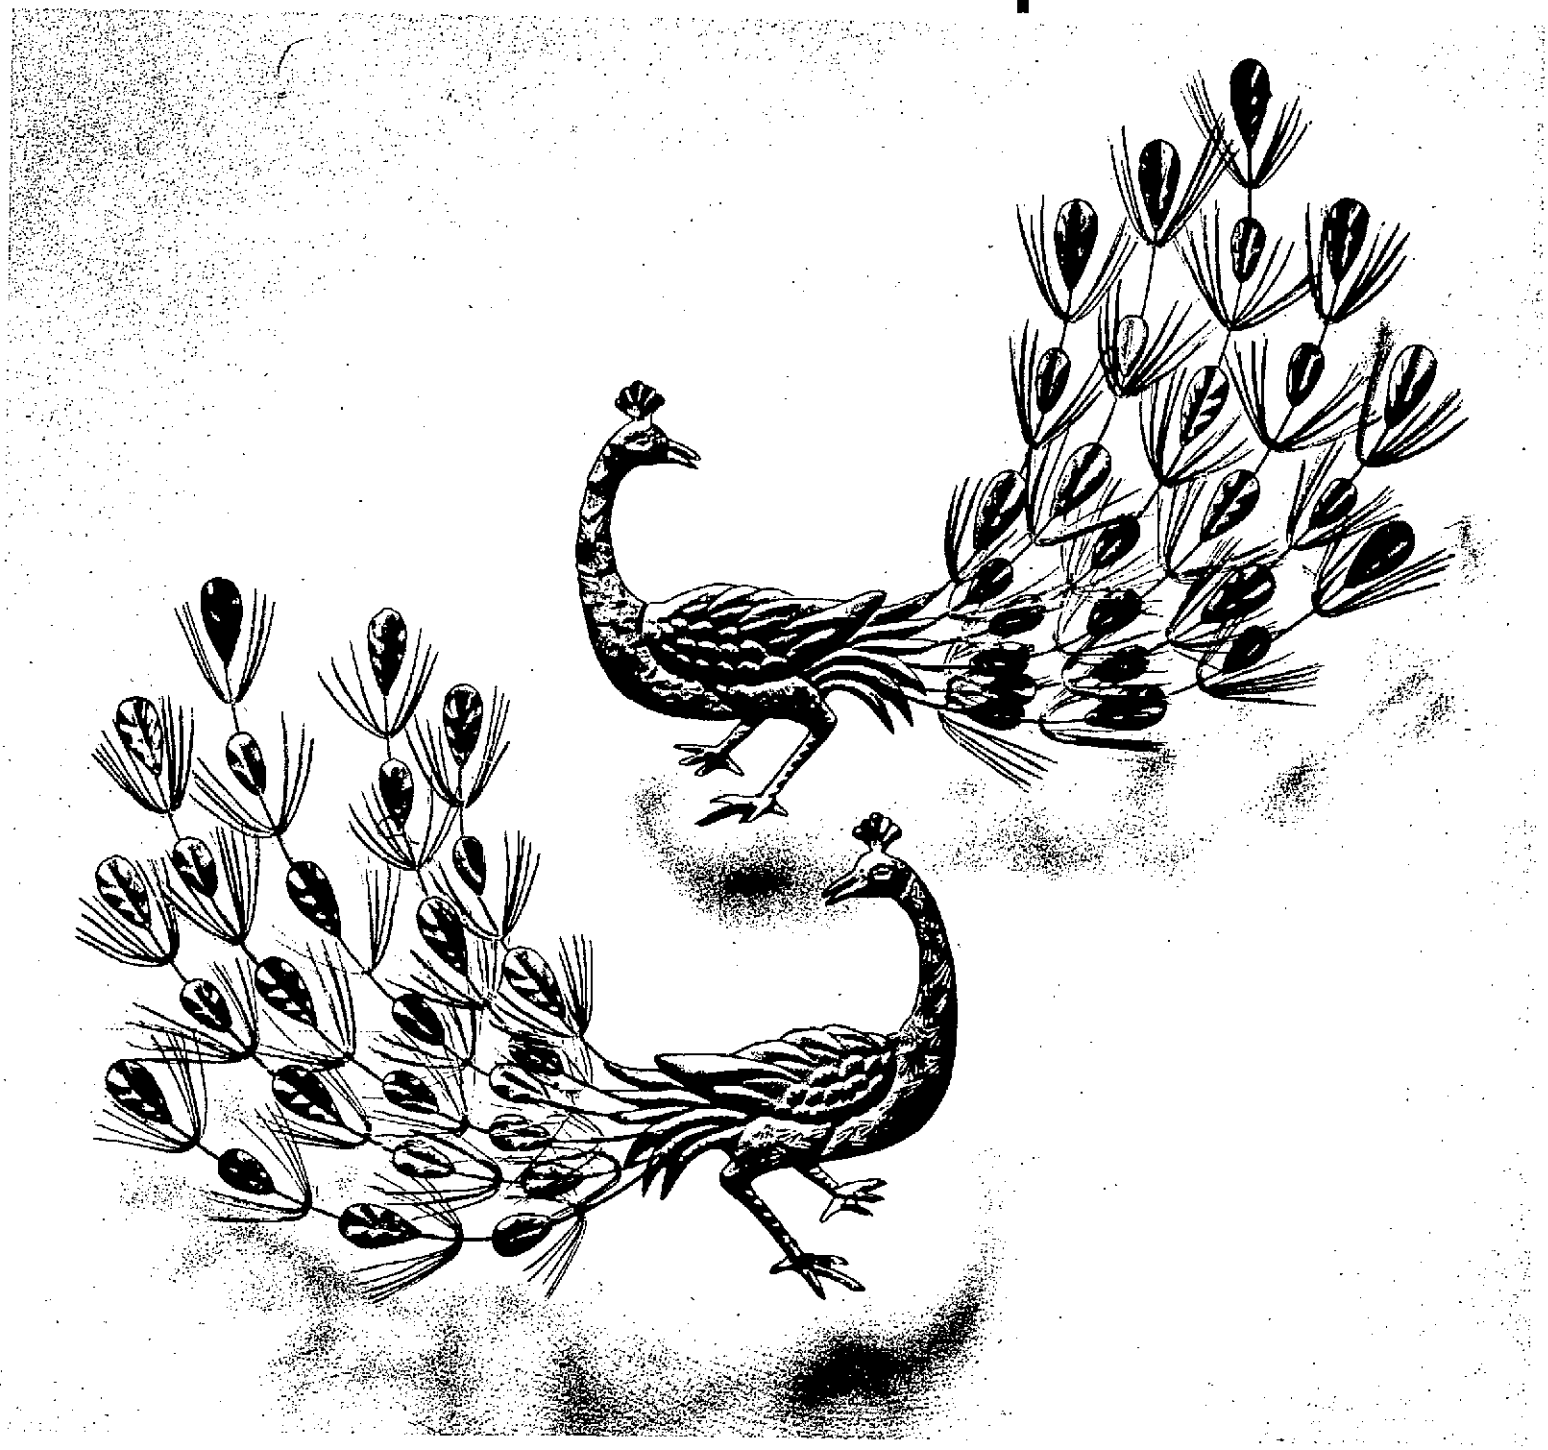

Before: sometimes chemicals are sprayed from airplane. Here the attack on a fog over Stockton, Calif., is just starting.

After: the same scene a few minutes later shows that the fog has begun to break up as chemicals coalesce its water droplets.

DRAMATIC NEW DECORATING DISCOVERY!

Magnificent Pair of Hammered Iron Peacock Wall Plaques

Create the Ultimate Decorator Touch Over Your Fireplace—Mantel—Couch or Buffet With These Majestic Peacocks

Imagine the brilliantly exciting way you will dramatize your home or office with this handsome pair of hammered iron Peacock wall plaques. The latest decorating rage, each is a masterpiece of craftsmanship. Their feathery plummage and graceful bodies are exquisitely worked in delicately wrought, hammered metal; finished in vibrant blue and accented with flourishes of gold. The total effect is one of such breathtaking beauty that they will be the focal point of beauty in your home. Unfortunately it is impossible to reproduce the full breadth of their three dimensional "sculptured" bodies from the small black and white illustration here. Only when you see them gracing your home can you fully appreciate the drama they bring to every setting.

Stars with high price tags: left to right, Natalie Wood, Kim Novak, Gina Lollobrigida, and Claudia Cardinale. But is it the star or the story that counts today at the box office? The fact is that three of the year's biggest money makers—"The Graduate," "Valley of the Dolls," and "2001"—have no marquee names to draw the fans while name-star films have as often as not been duds.

WHO'S WORTH $1 MILLION A PICTURE?

BY LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.

There are eight super stars who demand and receive $1 million or more per motion picture.

They are (1) Julie Andrews (2) Elizabeth Taylor (3) Paul Newman (4) Richard Burton (5) Cary Grant when he chooses to work (6) Audrey Hepburn (7) Marlon Brando (8) Frank Sinatra.

Immediately beneath them is an echelon of $750,000 stars which includes Gregory Peck, John Wayne, Steve McQueen, Elvis Presley, Charlton Heston, Sean Connery, Jack Lemmon, one or two others.

All of the above-mentioned stars make various financial deals predicated upon their tax liability. Some will accept a guarantee of $400,000 plus 10 percent of a film's gross. Some will accept $500,000 and 50 percent of the gross. Elvis Presley will take $750,000 per film and a hefty percentage of the profits, providing a film does not cost more than $1,500,000. Some stars will defer their entire salary and gamble strictly on a 50-50 basis. Paul Newman, Charlton Heston, and Richard Burton have all done this. Their financial demands are not rigid. The all-determining factor is their tax base.

Julie Andrews, who is rapidly becoming the wealthiest woman in Great Britain, does not mind making two or three motion pictures per year at $1 million and up, because she enjoys a relatively low tax base. She has established residence on Alderney, one of the Channel Islands which, according to treaty, is not part of Great Britain for income tax purposes but is otherwise British. If Miss Andrews continued to maintain her residence at Wimbledon where it once was, most of what she earned would be confiscated in the extremely high British income tax rates.

Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton, Sophia Loren, David Niven, Yul Brynner, and Audrey Hepburn live in Switzerland where taxes are minimal, so that large salaries do not defeat them since they retain most of their loot.

Other stars like Jack Lemmon and Steve McQueen have organized their own corporations to channel earnings and profits into the corporate rather than the individual tax computation bracket.

What Hollywood is mulling over at this point is whether any of these stars is really worth the fortune he or she is demanding per film. The U.S. star system is under attack. Theater owners are complaining that astronomical salary demands by the stars inflate the price they must pay to book their films. The movie fans complain in turn that admission prices have reached an all-time unjustifiable high.

Admissions skyrocket

The U.S. Commerce Department reports that admission prices to movie theaters have jumped 69 percent in the past ten years. But moviegoers insist that prices have skyrocketed at least 200 percent in the same decade in their own neighborhoods. Worse yet from the consumer viewpoint, Hollywood has fallen into the greedy habit of road-showing about 10 films a year at $5 tops, many of these big-budget productions turning out to be nothing but overripe lemons.

The all-important question now making the rounds of studio production circles is: which is more important to the public, the story or the star?

Three of this year's largest box-office grossers—The Graduate, Valley of the Dolls, and 2001—boast no name stars. The Sound of Music, which has already grossed more than $100 million, making it the most successful film ever produced, offered Julie Andrews in the leading role when she was far from being a star. She was paid $200,000 for her work in that film and in gratitude for being given the opportunity to act in it, agreed to make another for 20th Century-Fox at the same price. Thus, one of her latest releases—Star, a musical biography of Gertrude Lawrence, brought her only $200,000 in salary. For her next film, however, Say It With Music, MGM is paying her $1,250,000. For previous motion pictures such as Thoroughly Modern Millie, Hawaii, and Torn Curtain she received $1 million each.

Several producers declare that Julie Andrews is worth at least $1 million since her name on the marquee accounts for that much additional revenue. Other producers insist that Julie Andrews means something in a musical, nothing in a drama, point out that Torn Curtain with Julie and Paul Newman, two super stars, was a flop because it was dull. Word-of-mouth criticism from audiences described it as such, and the public refused to patronize a shoddy spy melodrama.

A simple rule of thumb

One agent who deals regularly with studio heads and independent producers and is convinced that many of them have intelligence quotients of 2, 4, 6, and 8, says: "There are three or four super stars who are possibly w... a million dollars in the right vehicle. But the rule of thumb is a simple one. A super star can increase the box-office revenue of a good picture, but a super star can do nothing to help a bad picture.

"Take Dr. Dolittle as a case in point," he continues. "The story is primarily for children. It could have been made with anyone for very little money and probably have shown a fair profit. Instead, they paid Rex Harrison one million bucks to star in the picture. Now frankly there is not one 12-year-old kid in the world who says, 'Goodie! Rex Harrison is playing at the Bijou tonight.' Rex Harrison has no following among kids. He is worth 30 cents maybe in South Yorkshire some place. He is a fine actor but kids couldn't care less about fine actors. Besides, as I say, fine actors can't help a lousy film.

"I remember Harrison in something called The Agony and The Ecstasy. That was another bomb.

"In the old days," this agent contends, "when I first came out to Hollywood and most of the studio chiefs were semi-illiterates, movies was the mass entertainment medium. The audience was relatively unsophisticated. People bought stars like Greta Garbo, John Gilbert — not stories.

"Nowadays, the bulk of your audience consists of young people, 16-26—high school graduates, college students, young adults. These kids are smart, sophisticated, literate. Junk they can see on television. What they want in a movie is quality, excitement, humor. They go for foreign films, because foreign films are exotic, daring, stimulating. But you don't catch them buying Brigitte Bardot or Claudia Cardinale or Gina Lollobrigida. Only the American film producers are stupid enough to pay $500,000 for Claudia Cardinale or $400,000 for Gina Lollobrigida or $200,000 for Virna Lisi, who is worth maybe 300 lira in Palermo.

"I doubt if there is any other industry in America where there are so many unsure, insecure, and stupid executives as in the motion picture industry. Only yesterday I ran across one who was playing around with the idea of paying Yul Brynner $700,000 to star in a picture. Brynner has a small following in Western Bulgaria, but can you imagine paying him $700,000?"

The 'immortals' are gone

The truth about Hollywood executives is that for decades the film industry was controlled by dictators like Harry Cohn, Louis B. Mayer, Jack Warner, and others of that driving, acquisitive ilk. On the hopeful but unrealistic grounds that they were immortal, these men never groomed any successors.

The result is that chaos now rules the various motion picture lots. Several of the studios, including some of Hollywood's biggest, are currently manned by executives who are relatively inexperienced in the production of films, particularly in the creative departments. Thus, unsure of themselves, they continue to make ludicrous financial deals with yesterday's stars, believing that a name, any big name, guarantees some box-office insurance, which doesn't happen to be true.

Take Marlon Brando, 44, one of the most talented screen actors in the business. In the 1950's Brando earned a well-deserved reputation out here. By virtue of his work and undeniable box-office appeal, his salary zoomed first to $500,000 a film, then $750,000, then $1 million.

But Brando's record in this decade is a dismal one. He starred in and directed for Paramount One-Eyed Jacks, a monumental flop. He starred in a remake of Mutiny on the Bounty for MGM, and the film reportedly lost some $10 million. Six of his latest films have proven box-office disappointments, and that's putting it gently. Who remembers such scrambled eggs as Bedtime Story, Code Name, Morituri, The Chase, The Appaloosa, Countess From Hong Kong, and Reflections in a Golden Eye?

On the basis of his track record, Brando is worth closer to $200,000 a film, if he is worth that, than the $1 million a picture his agents ask and, surprisingly enough, get.

Others in the same league with Brando are Natalie Wood, Kim Novak, Glenn Ford, William Holden, Rock Hudson, Frank Sinatra, Tony Curtis, and Anthony Quinn. The box-office value of any of these players is highly questionable, but still producers pay them a small fortune.

Why?

The simple answer is that many producers are not particularly bright. They have no faith in their story judgments. In some cases the bankers who finance the producers are even less bright. Unable to properly evaluate screenplays, they insist upon star insurance, not realizing that today's audience, especially in the nation's 25 largest cities from where more than 70 percent of a film's revenue is obtained, is more interested in story value than star value.

It has taken 50 years in addition to inroads made by radio and television, but the star system as Hollywood and the bankers have long known it is on the way out.

In 1968 the story in more and more films has become the star.

Marlon Brando and Tarita in the remake of "Mutiny on the Bounty," which has reportedly lost $10 million.

Julie Andrews in a scene from "Star." For her next film, "Say It With Music" (and money), she'll get $1.25 million.

At the end of the rainbow you'll find a pot of gold.

You don't believe it? You'd be surprised how many people do.

Because so much of the American dream of financial security is based on fairy tales instead of reality.

When you were six years old, you put your baby tooth under your pillow and the good fairy came while you slept and she left a shiny coin.

And though we grow older and stop believing these things, a little lingers on.

The ship will come in.

Some day your prince will come.

A long lost relative will leave you a fortune.

If you've reached the point where you've realized that wishing won't make it happen, The Travelers Companies would like to tell you about a new financial planning program for realists.

All you have to do is write to James R. Bryant, Jr., Vice President, The Travelers Companies. He's as real as they come. And he can show you how to build a flexible financial program. Do something to help yourself now.

And maybe you'll live happily ever after.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

EDITED by LLOYD SHEARER

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

PSYCHO-DIETING All behavior is learned. Eating too much is part of a particular behavior problem. If people want to eat less, they can be conditioned to change. So believes Richard Stuart of the University of Michigan, who, writing in the Journal of Behavior Research, tells how he taught eight obese women to eat more sensibly and lose on the average of 38 pounds in the process.

The therapist's main task, Stuart asserts, is to make the would-be dieter over-conscious of eating. His eight patients were instructed to keep a detailed record of when and what they ate. They were ordered to weigh themselves frequently during the day.

They were told to slow their eating rate by taking smaller mouthfuls of food and eating more slowly. Television was removed as a distraction. They were ordered to eat foods which required preparation and to eat them only at the dining-room table.

In three-times-a-week therapy sessions their records were reviewed and examples of over-eating discussed. The dieters were taught to substitute other pleasurable activities for between-meals eating and to associate their favorite snacks with weight-related anxieties.

One woman found that a telephone call to a friend would distract her at a critical time of the day. Another learned to abstain from sweets by imagining that her husband was being unfaithful. After one year of diet therapy, all of Stuart's patients showed great improvement in attitude and appearance. Their average weight loss: 38 pounds in 29 therapy sessions.

PRIMITIVE Few Americans have any realistic idea of how uneducated, untrained, and primitive the residents of Africa's underdeveloped nations are.

In Botswana, formerly Bechuanaland, for example, which achieved independence in 1966, there is not a single dentist for the entire population of 550,000.

Anyone, including President Seretse Khama, who wants to see a dentist must leave the country. Khama generally flies to neighboring Rhodesia for professional dental treatment.

VOTING THE LAST TIME Can Richard Nixon do in 1968 what Richard Nixon and Barry Goldwater failed to do in 1960 and 1964: win the vote in a majority of the nation's largest cities?

In 1960 Nixon lost out to John F. Kennedy in 19 of the 25 largest cities.

In 1964 Goldwater lost 24 out of 25 to Lyndon Johnson.

Here's the way the voting went in some of our largest cities during the last presidential election:

	Democratic	Republican
New York	2,183,589	801,877
Chicago	1,141,148	466,196
Los Angeles	1,568,300	1,161,067
Philadelphia	670,645	239,733
St. Louis	207,958	59,604
San Francisco	230,758	92,994
Detroit	545,015	136,275
Cleveland	249,917	51,849
Baltimore	218,520	85,318
Washington, D.C.	169,796	28,801

America's cities have become Democratic strongholds over the years, especially as more whites have moved to the suburbs and more blacks have moved into the city cores. The traditional Republican strongholds, rural areas and small towns, have diminished in power and influence as more than 1 million people a year in the past 15 years have moved from farm to city. If Nixon is to win this year he must find a way of enlisting the city vote, which may or may not be disenchanted enough with the incumbent Democratic Administration.

WORD FROM 'PAPA'

Colonel Papadopoulos, egocentric leader of the Greek military junta which took over that country last year, is following the example set by Chairman Mao of Red China.

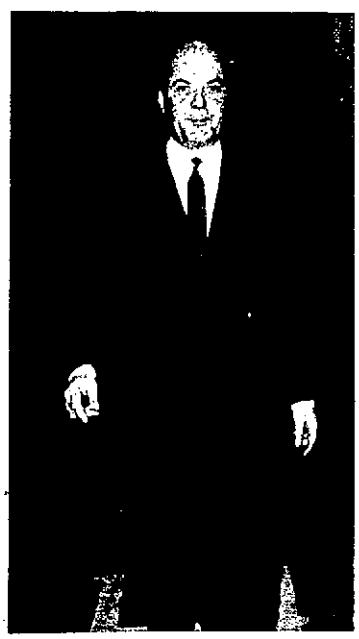

Papadopoulos, self-appointed Prime Minister of Greece, has had 2 million copies of his thoughts printed in a white book and distributed free to his countrymen.

"Not only should this book be read," declares the foreword, "but also constantly and carefully studied. It must become required reading for both young and old.

"The inspirations of the enlightened Prime Minister," it says, "express with great clarity the desires, wishes, and beliefs of the healthy and overwhelming part of the Greek people."

Here are a few of "Papa's" thoughts:

"Protect yourselves from the insatiable appetite for material goods. It is the weakness of our age. It is the weakness of humanity ...be evangelists of law and moral order. Be missionaries...free yourselves from the worm of egocentricity."

GREEK STRONG MAN PAPADOPOULOS—NOT EVEN A PENNY FOR HIS THOUGHTS.

EGYPT DESPERATE

The museums of Egypt are loaded with a variety of unrecorded relics, jewels, coins, statues, artifacts, spoils of all sorts. But over the years many of these prizes have been pilfered by various officials and disposed of through illegal channels.

President Nasser has now been advised that Egypt's antiquities should be sold through government-owned shops erected beside the pyramids. Prices would be set by the state and payment would be accepted only in hard foreign currency.

The trade, it is estimated, would be worth at least $3 million a year. The best of the antiquities would, of course, remain in the museums, and the least valuable sold to the tourists. With the Suez Canal still closed, Egypt is desperate for foreign exchange, so desperate it is willing to sell pretty nearly everything worth selling.

PILL IN SPAIN

The Pope's controversial and momentous declaration against all forms of artificial birth control has won plaudits from Spain's conservative class and dismay from the working wing. It has not, however, affected the rising sale of the pill in Spain's major cities.

Seventeen months ago the Franco government quietly authorized the manufacture of the pill within Spain. Spanish pharmaceutical manufacturers are now producing 2 million pills a month, importing another 20 million from abroad.

Drug stores in Madrid, Barcelona, Seville, Malaga, all the leading cities -- stock at least eight different brands of the pill, sell them at prices ranging from 70 cents to $2 for a month's supply. Officially, Spanish women cannot buy any without a prescription, but few druggists ever ask for one. In the last two years the number of Spanish senoras taking the pill has reportedly doubled to a figure estimated at 600,000.

SOPHIA LOREN AND CARLO PONTI—THEIR NIGHTMARE ENDS.

CLEARED OF BIGAMY

For 11 long years screen star Sophia Loren has lived a miserable nightmare. Accused on bigamy charges along with her producer husband Carlo Ponti, she has been hounded by Italian prosecutors year after year.

A few weeks ago, however, tribunal judges in Rome finally acquitted the couple after deciding that their 1957 proxy marriage in Mexico "never legally took place."

Ponti, long married to Giuliana Fiastri, daughter of an Italian general, obtained a Mexican divorce in 1957 in order to marry Sophia with whom he was then living in Hollywood. Divorce is not recognized in Italy so two weeks after Sophia and Carlo were married by proxy in Mexico, the public prosecutor of Rome filed bigamy charges against them. He insisted that Ponti was still legally married to Giuliana Fiastri, mother of his children.

In 1966, tired of the repeated bigamy charges, Ponti decided to renounce his Italian citizenship and become a citizen of France. As a French citizen he divorced his first wife in France and married pregnant Sophia in Paris. Still the Italian authorities persisted with bigamy charges.

Last month, however, even the public prosecutor grew tired of the legalistic nonsense. He joined with Ponti's lawyers in urging the court to dismiss the bigamy charges. The judges agreed. The result is that multimillionairess Sophia Loren is overjoyed. She is again pregnant, after having suffered two miscarriages, wants her first child born in her native Italy, expects the baby to arrive early in December, its legitimacy unquestioned.

When the Mexicans say hot dogs, they're not kidding.

There's nothing average American about these hot dogs. They're made with Ortega® Green Chile Salsa, a spicy blend of green chiles, tomatoes and onions. Hold on to your sombrero. Here's the recipe:

¼ cup salad oil
¾ cup chopped onions
½ pound ground lean beef
2 cans (8-ounces each) tomato sauce
1 cup water
2 tablespoons chili powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 can (7-ounces) Ortega® Green Chile Salsa
Cooked frankfurters
Toasted frankfurter rolls

Heat salad oil; add onions and cook over medium heat until tender. Stir in beef and brown lightly, stirring occasionally. Add tomato sauce, water, chili powder and salt. Simmer 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in Green Chile Salsa. Simmer about 10 minutes, or until sauce is of desired consistency. Serve over frankfurters in toasted rolls. Makes about 1-quart. Note: Leftover sauce may be stored in refrigerator or freezer.

Pineapple Cookies

½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 egg, beaten
1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar 'n' honey wheat germ
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup drained crushed pineapple

Cream shortening and sugars until light and fluffy. Add egg; mix well. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt; stir in wheat germ. Combine vanilla and pineapple. Add dry ingredients and pineapple alternately to sugar mixture; mix well. Drop by spoonfuls on greased cookie sheets. Sprinkle tops with a little additional sugar 'n' honey wheat germ. Bake at 375° for 10 to 12 minutes or until light golden brown. Makes about 4 dozen.

Peanut Margueritas

2 egg whites
1⅓ cups sugar
⅔ cup chopped salted peanuts
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Add sugar slowly while continuing to beat until mixture is stiff and glossy. Fold in peanuts and vanilla. Drop by teaspoons, well apart, on greased cookie sheets. Bake at 325° for 15 minutes or until set and delicately browned. Makes about 4 dozen.

Why I Can Truly Say "I KNOW God!"

"Oh, come now," some may object. "Believing in God is one thing. But claiming to know Him . . . isn't that ridiculous?"

On the contrary, no human knowledge we possess is so certain as the knowledge we have of God.

For it comes from God Himself!

Through Divine Revelation, God makes Himself known to us. By words and demonstrations, He manifests His divine nature in ways we can understand. He reveals the purpose of His will, which otherwise would be hidden from us. He tells us what He expects of us, what we may expect of Him. He expresses His love for us and His concern for our earthly and eternal welfare.

It was this sure knowledge of God that the Church reiterated and again promulgated at the recent Vatican Council. And the Council's Constitution on Divine Revelation reviews the words and acts by which God has progressively charted the course of human salvation.

It is easy for almost anyone to believe in God even without any divine revelation to support such a belief. For nothing less than a supernatural power can explain the mystery of life and the marvels of the universe. But why settle for so little when the God of revelation invites you to understand Him, to believe Him — to truly know Him?

We have a brand-new pocket-size pamphlet on the topic of Divine Revelation . . . and we'll gladly send you a copy free upon request. It covers such topics as "Revelation Itself" . . . "The Transmission of Divine Revelation" . . . "The Divine Inspiration and The Interpretation of Sacred Scripture" . . . "The Old Testament" . . . "The New Testament" and "Scripture In The Life of The Church."

No matter what your religious convictions may be, you'll find this pamphlet interesting, informative and spiritually stimulating. So, write today. Ask for Pamphlet No. PR-43. There's no cost, no obligation — and nobody will call on you.

The road to self-discovery and self-confidence: teenagers at a YMCA "sensitivity training" session where they pour out their innermost feelings and frankly criticize one another.

Do You Know Who You Are?

by John G. Rogers

NORTHFIELD, MINN.

Calling all U.S. teenagers! Do you have boy or girl friend trouble? Does a certain teacher give you a hard time? Is it difficult to confide in your mother? Are you shy in front of strangers?

If these or any other personal relationships are clouding your life in your growing-up years, you might benefit from an increasingly popular educational experience called "sensitivity training." It's something like group therapy in that people gather in circles of eight to 14, pour out their innermost feelings and criticize each other. It loosens you up and the theory is that you learn to understand others and get along with them by first learning fully to understand yourself.

Sensitivity training is frequently used in the business world where it's important that young executives understand each other to achieve the best possible cooperation. But it is also regarded as particularly valuable for young folks whose personalities are still developing.

'These kids have been changing right before my eyes—and theirs.'

The developing personality gets a chance to unfold at gatherings like this where strangers confess their personal hang-ups to one another and often end up as close friends.

PARADE attended the largest recent application of sensitivity training in the rolling, green hills of southern Minnesota where the YMCA assembled nearly 1000 high school students at St. Olaf College.

Strangers at first, the boys and girls soon became the closest of confidants. During their week on the campus they unloaded enough personal problems on each other to script a hundred soap operas. And at the end, the trainers—they're the adult "quarterbacks" who sit in, one to a group—told of heartening improvement in perception, awareness and attitude among the young participants.

Typical was the comment from Bob Cunningham, a YMCA official from Arlington, Tex., who presided over a group of students of very diverse origin and background:

"These kids have been changing right before my eyes—and theirs. They're getting a sharp new appreciation of themselves through being criticized by others. Take Eddie, there, from New York. It has suddenly dawned on him that he's been acting like a phony. He's been playing the lion when, in reality, he's a kitten inside. It's been bothering him, unconsciously, and now he understands this completely. He's going to quit trying to play the tough guy and stand honestly on his own feet."

'Don't pull any punches'

Eddie's self-discovery through the keen observations of strangers came after several days of intimate group discussion had built up a strong sense of confidence and recognition among the teenagers. It wasn't easy for the cocky kid to submit himself to others but he forced himself to mutter:

"I can see I'm not exactly the most popular one around here. Now don't pull any punches. What's wrong with me?"

Janet, of Dallas, blurted out: "When I first saw you I thought of someone who belonged on a motorcycle wearing a leather jacket and carrying a switchblade knife."

"You came on a little too strong," said Ray, of Presque Isle, Me.

"You swagger around," said Susan, of New York, "but actually I think you're quite confused."

"Are you consciously trying to play the tough guy?" asked Bob, the trainer.

Eddie, peering out through longish blond hair that hung down his forehead, looked contrite and confessed: "I'm the kid from the big city and I think I ought to live up to some kind of reputation."

Danny, of Chicago, and Jeff, of Los Angeles, were quick to point out that they, too, were big-city kids but they didn't feel any compulsion to act like obnoxious big shots. Eddie, obviously going through considerable inner turmoil, conceded that it hurt to be so rudely judged by his peers but he said he was grateful and could see that he'd have to make over his image.

Day by day the confessions ran on, sometimes at random, sometimes with one member feeling the hot concentrated light of attention from all the others. Danny felt left out and said there was almost nobody in the world he could trust. Ray said he had the fault of judging people too hastily. Sheryl, of St. Louis, said she was so shy she had a hard time having fun. Susan said, "I love my mother but I confide in my sister." Alex, of New York, said he and his mother weren't very nice to his father. Jeff deplored, "Sometimes I get sick of my best friend."

Most of the discussions were in low key, now guided by the quarterback, now just drifting. But trainer Jim Lipscomb, of Detroit, reported that one girl, seared by ruthless though well-meant criticism, fled from her circle in tears. The group converted this to an overall gain when several members ran after her and insisted she return. This touched the girl and gave her new heart because she'd thought they didn't want her around.

What they gain

Some of the change that a person undergoes in sensitivity training is subtle, some is obvious. Surveys have shown that 70 percent of participants feel themselves improved. Among the benefits listed:

- A brand-new sense of confidence. No more fear of volunteering an idea.
- Fuller realization of self and others.
- A new feeling of how to deal with people having excessively strong personalities.
- A sense of being a more complete person.

PARADE sampled the boys and girls at St. Olaf. What could they do better when they got back home?

Janet: "I'll understand that lots of kids have the same problems I have."

Alex: "I won't be afraid to open up."

Danny: "I'm going to trust people more."

Ray: "My job's going to be to re-evaluate some of my snap judgments."

Laurie, of Milwaukee: "I'll start assessing people longer before becoming friends."

Sensitivity training programs, developed by the National Training Laboratory of the National Educational Association, are available through various organizations, including YMCA chapters in a number of cities. Typical duration is a minimum of 15 hours, split into convenient sessions. At St. Olaf the high school students met twice a day, two hours each time. And was it worth it?

Judy, from Pawtucket, R.I., put it most dramatically: "I feel so different that I keep looking in the mirror. I feel so much better and more meaningful that I keep thinking my looks must have changed, too."

THEY CAME, TALKED, LISTENED

Eddie—"The kid from the big city" who came on too strong.

Sheryl, of St. Louis—so shy she had hard time having fun.

Jeff, of Los Angeles—"At times I get sick of my best friend."

Playtex* invents the first-day tampon.™

Outside: it's softer and silky (not cardboardy). Inside: it's so extra absorbent...it even protects on your first day.

We took the inside out of this new applicator to show you how different it is. Feminine. Flexible. Silky.
And the inside is so absorbent... you can feel sure (and secure) on your first day. Your worst day.
In every lab test against the old cardboardy kind... the Playtex tampon was always more absorbent.

Actually 45% more absorbent on the average than the leading regular tampon. Because it's made in a fantastic new way...actually adjusts to you. It flowers out. Fluffs out. (Not just up and down.)
Designed to protect every inside inch of you, so the chance of a mishap is almost zero. Even on your worst day!

Try it fast. Why live in the past?

Now...Denture Invention

For people with both "uppers" and "lowers"

The big difference between natural teeth and dentures is in performance. Natural teeth are held solidly in place by living connective tissue. Without connective tissue, even the most expensive dentures may slip and rock. Gums often get raw and sore. Constant rubbing may cause serious bone damage. Eating can be slow, painful. You speak less clearly. You dare not laugh for fear of dentures dropping.

Now chemists have developed an artificial connective membrane – FIXODENT. It connects dentures with gums and mouth surfaces. It is incredibly effective for both uppers and lowers.

FIXODENT's elastic membrane absorbs the shock of biting and chewing – helps protect gums from bruising and irritation. You eat faster–bite harder, without pain–enjoy your food more. Eat hard-to-chew foods–steaks, fruits–prevent "denture malnutrition," a problem of older people.

FIXODENT helps you speak easier, faster, more clearly. When dentures slip you hold them in place with tongue and cheek muscles that ache. FIXODENT helps prevent strain.

The special pencil-point dispenser spots FIXODENT with precision – no oozing over. Often lasts 'round-the-clock. It even resists hot drinks. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get special FIXODENT at all drug counters.

The President, Mrs. Kennedy and Gov. Connally leave on fatal Dallas journey.

A NOTED AUTHOR'S NEW FINDINGS

Johnson's Dilemma When JFK Was Shot

BY JACK ANDERSON

That awful day in Dallas when President Kennedy was killed has been relived many times over. Investigators have pieced together every detail of the crime; researchers have re-created every minute of Nov. 22, 1963. Yet out of the ant bed of details, some startling findings have been uncovered by still another chronicler, Jim Bishop, whose The Day Kennedy Was Shot will be published on the anniversary of the assassination.

This is a book that the Kennedy family tried to keep out of print. When Bishop sought information from Jacqueline Kennedy in 1964, the still distraught widow wrote to him: "The idea of it is so distressing to me. I cannot bear to think of seeing—or seeing advertised—a book with that name and subject . . ." She added: "I hired William Manchester to protect President Kennedy and the truth. He was to interrogate everyone who had any connection with those days—and if I decide the book should not be published, then Mr. Manchester will be reimbursed for his time . . ."

But Bishop believed that no one, not even the tragic widow, should be permitted to censor history. He went ahead with his manuscript, and PARADE has now been given an advance peek at it. Here are some of his findings that should produce headlines:

• President Johnson was just about persuaded by his bodyguards that the Kennedy assassination was part of a worldwide conspiracy. Yet he didn't know how to use the secret codes that would have been necessary to unleash nuclear retaliation against an attacking enemy. For hours, he was actually out of communication with the warrant officer who carried the secret codes in a locked, 30-pound metal suitcase and who was supposed to be within calling distance of the President at all times.

Johnson's story

• In reverse of Mrs. Kennedy's stand, Johnson refused to talk to Manchester but gave an exclusive account of his actions on Nov. 22 to Bishop. Manchester had reported, for instance, that the Kennedy aides resented Johnson's takeover of the presidential aircraft for the return flight from Dallas. Bishop claims that Kennedy's confidant, Kenneth O'Donnell, made the decision for LBJ to board Air Force One. The compelling reason was that it contained security equipment not available in the back-up plane.

• The new President, anxious to calm public fears over the assassination, wanted to demonstrate a continuity of leadership. With this in mind, he asked Mrs. Kennedy to disembark with him and got back an acceptance from her. Instead, Kennedy aides physically blocked him from joining her as she prepared to leave the presidential plane with her martyred husband from the rear ramp.

• Bishop concludes from his 4½ years of painstaking research that Lee Harvey Oswald, alone and unaided, gunned down President Kennedy. Bishop also points out that Oswald made no real attempt to escape, therefore suggests that he wanted to be captured. A human cipher, he yearned for his place in the world spotlight.

The most startling fact that emerges from Bishop's vast accumulation of material, of course, is that the survival of the United States could have been in grave danger in the hours that followed Oswald's senseless act. The metal suitcase, containing the secret codes needed to order nuclear retaliation, was carried by a warrant officer named Ira Gearhart. In the Bishop book, the movements of Gearhart become crucial—and chilling.

After Oswald's shots crashed into their mark, Secret Service agents suspected there might be a plot by a foreign power to destroy the leaders of the United States. They hustled Johnson into a remote corner of the Parkland Hospital emergency room, and their warnings finally filled him with silent dread. As he sat on an ambulance cart, legs dangling, eyes focused moodily upon the floor, he told an aide: "We don't know whether this is a worldwide conspiracy, whether they are after me as they were after President Kennedy, or whether they are after Speaker McCormack or Senator Hayden [next in line for the presidency]. We just don't know."

Yet if this had been the beginning of an assault against the U.S., with armed missiles coming over the polar icecap, America's ability to strike back was dependent on a warrant officer who couldn't be found. Bishop relates how Secret Service agent Lem Johns made his way down the antiseptic-smelling corridors, inquiring for the "bag man" as the custodian of the suitcase was called.

Where's the 'bag man'?

"It was ironic," Bishop writes, "that, in the past eight minutes no one knew where the bag man was or who he was; and the bag man didn't know where the President was, or who he was. If there was a time when the United States could not react instantaneously to a nuclear attack, these were the minutes."

Bishop tells how Gearhart was kept in another part of the emergency room. Indeed, the new President didn't even know the secrets of the sinister suitcase. Drawing on his wide knowledge of the Civil War, Bishop states: "As the radicals of the Republican Party had kept Abraham Lincoln from briefing his Vice President, Andrew Johnson, on matters of war and peace, so too the men around Kennedy had kept the doctrines of power from Lyndon Johnson. He knew there was a bag. He knew there was a man several booths away, standing with a bag. But, if this shooting was a particle of a larger threat to the security of the United States, Mr. Johnson had neither the combination to the bag, nor the exact knowledge of what to do with it."

Yet Ira Gearhart remained the forgotten man. When the Johnson motorcade began its rush from the hospital to the airport, Gearhart was left behind along with Kennedy's military aide, Maj. Gen. Chester V. Clifton—the man who understood the codes and how to use them.

This is the sort of detail that characterizes Bishop's book. In its own way, The Day Kennedy Was Shot will become part of the monument that America is still erecting to its greatest modern folk hero, John F. Kennedy.

Johnson is sworn as President on Air Force One shortly after the assassination.

ALL ABOUT WIGS

If you're thinking about buying a wig or hairpiece or wondering how to improve the styling of one you now own, you need advice from an expert. What better counsel than from a woman who is in the wig business and who personally has a collection of 14 wigs and falls? Rebecca Hyman, from Georgia, has written a basic book which is required reading. Called The Complete Guide to Wigs and Hairpieces, this easy-to-read manual covers every phase of the subject from selection to fitting, styling, cleaning and storing. Eight chapters of facts and pictures tell and show how to analyze human hair for quality, the difference between man- and machine-made wigs and tips on how to restyle, cut and even dye your wig. Confused about how to tease your hair? A series of illustrated lessons shows you how. New hair styles, how to put on a wig or hairpiece and scores of other helpful hints are all here. Because of the tremendous interest in wigs, PARADE is offering the book to readers at only $1 a copy. Order yours today.

Rebecca Hyman, author of "The Complete Guide to Wigs and Hairpieces," practices what she preaches. Her three wiglets atop blonde hair give doll-like effect.

Skinny braids cascade from top of the head to wear on gala evenings at home.

All washed up at 5½.

All she did was get her playsuit dirty. All mom did was wash the playsuit in White King D detergent. And look what happened.

Suds control rinsed the dirt out completely. Borax made the playsuit smell fresh as a flower. Power brighteners kept the colors crisp.

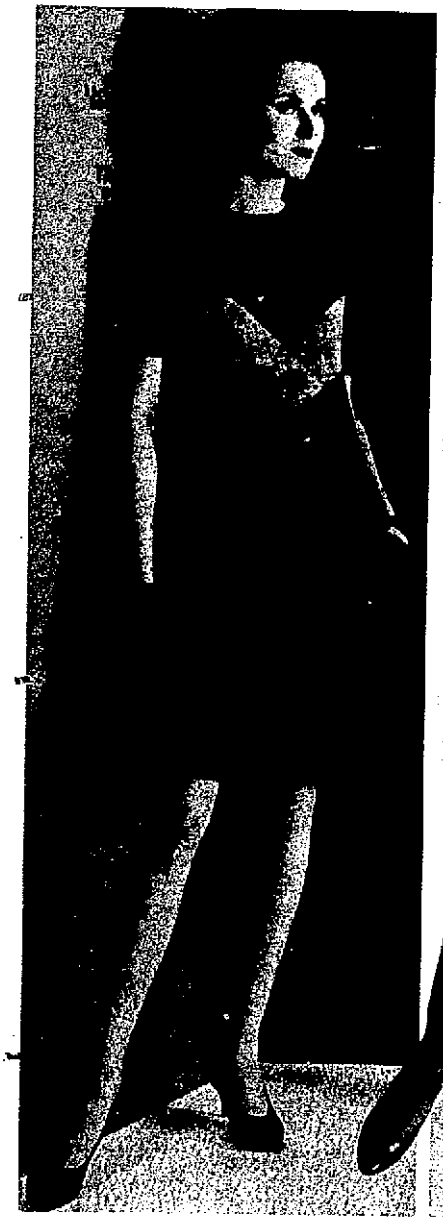

Dishes and fine fabrics get the White King treatment, too. With White King Liquid detergent. This hard-working pink lotion liquid is gentle as a lamb to hands. Which makes mom happy. After all, dirty dishes pile up fast.

Don't bet on that playsuit staying clean very long, either. Because kids are kids. And White King is White King. So she'll look all washed up again in no time.

Our Favorite Jokes

by Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara, the husband-wife comedy team, have become well known to television audiences from their many appearances on the Ed Sullivan, Johnny Carson, Merv Griffin and other variety programs. They write all their own sketches, trade heavily on their Jewish-Irish marriage for gags, via their characters Hershey Horowitz and Mary Elizabeth Doyle, but also draw their material from the fabric of American life.

Jerry was reared in Brooklyn, N.Y. His large Jewish family once won the Irish sweepstakes. Anne grew up in predominantly Jewish communities on nearby Long Island and learned Yiddish from her aunt, Eleanor Dempsey. Jerry and Anne both loved acting and met in a theatrical agent's office about 12 years ago. Home base for the Stillers is Manhattan where they live with their children, 6-year-old Amy and 2-year-old Benjamin.

Many of their "favorite jokes" are comments about one another from their new Columbia LP, Ed Sullivan Presents the Last Two People in the World: Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara.

Hershey Horowitz and Mary Elizabeth Doyle find themselves the last two people in the world. Hershey tells Mary Elizabeth that it's up to them to repopulate. She says she's not that kind of girl.

Friends of ours have told us that we go together like hot pastrami on white bread.

Our families didn't go crazy for each other—they just went crazy.

We had a hard time deciding on the music for the wedding. Jerry wanted Lenny Hershkowitz and the Orchestra—I wanted Tommy Tuey and his Donegal Five. We settled for Pepe Moletto and the Rhumbas.

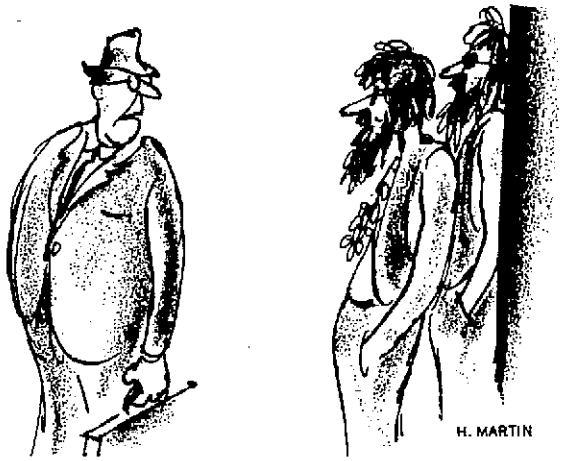

Friends ask us why we left Shakespeare to start a comedy team. It happened when we discovered the ushers made $70 a week and we made $50.

Anne has a strange sensation when she goes behind the curtain to vote on Election Day. She wants to try on a new dress.

We saw a movie the other day that was so clean and wholesome the theater wouldn't let in anyone over 16.

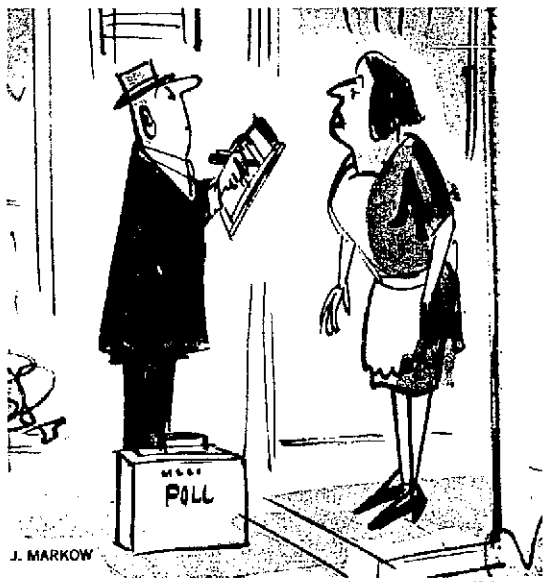

A certain politician's speech was so long that we went to see The Sound of Music between his opening and closing remarks.

We read a book that was so sexy it probably won't be made into a movie for at least a year.

"You individualists all look alike."

It's To Laugh

"I always wait until my husband decides on a candidate—then I vote for his opponent."

"I've been meditating on what I'm going to do when this fad blows over."

How You May

Never Take a Laxative Again!

New Miracle Regulator Helps Relief Come Naturally

New York, N.Y. (Special)—Research has discovered a wonder-working substance that helps correct constipation without laxatives!

Doctors say most constipation occurs when waste loses moisture in the colon. To give relief, laxatives have to force action—flush, irritate or distend the intestine.

The new miracle substance works in a completely different way. It helps natural moisture in the colon work more effectively. Thus by working on the problem, not on you, it helps correct constipation as no laxative can.

This discovery is now available under the name REGUTOL. It is not habit-forming. No warning on the label—no prescription needed. Try REGUTOL — you may never take a laxative again!

I'VE OFTEN WONDERED.... HOW COME YOU NEVER MARRIED?

OH...I GUESS I'M ALLERGIC TO CAPABLE WOMEN, CAREER GIRLS, KNOW-IT-ALLS, AND THE ONES WHO WANT TO RUN YOUR LIFE!

APPARENTLY YOU HAVEN'T MET THE RIGHT GIRL YET!

IN OUR HOUSE MEN ARE MEN AND WOMEN ARE JUST WOMEN!

THAT'S A PRETTY NICE ARRANGEMENT!

DON'T GET ME WRONG...I LOVE WOMEN AND I THINK THEY'RE HERE TO STAY, BUT THEY SHOULD BE OUR INSPIRATION BY BEING SIMPLY WOMEN!

IF WOMEN WANT SECURITY THEY MUST FIRST MAKE THEIR HUSBANDS FEEL SECURE!

YEAH, A SMART WIFE IS PRACTICALLY A PSYCHOANALIST! SHE KNOWS WHEN TO ENCOURAGE HER MAN AND WHEN TO HOLD HIM DOWN!

MAKING HER HUSBAND FEEL LIKE A KING IS A NEAT TRICK! THEN SHE AUTOMATICALLY BECOMES A QUEEN!

I'LL BUY THAT!

by V. T. Hamlin

Y'KNOW, OOP, SINCE WE LEFT GUZ, SUMPIN IN MY HEAD'S BEEN GOIN' BUZZ, BUZZ, BUZZ!

THERE'S A GUY TAILING US...I'VE BEEN WATCHING 'IM FOR QUITE A SPELL

SUPPOSE OL' GUZ SENT HIM TO SPY... AN' IF HE DID, I WONDER WHY?

I DUNNO, BUT I'M GONNA FIND OUT!

T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

WHUH....?? WHERE'S OOP? WHERE'D HE GO?

NOWHERE, STUPE! WHASSA IDEA, TAGGIN' US AROUND?

GUZ TOLD ME T'KEEP AN EYE ON YOU...SEE Y'DIDN'T DO ANYTHING SUSPICIOUS!

SUSPICIOUS?? US? WHY, THAT'S RIDICULOUS!

...WHO'D EVER BE SUSPICIOUS OF GENTLEMEN LIKE US, FOR CATSAKE??

WHY I SHOULD SAY! SILLIEST THING I'VE HEARD TODAY!

OH, YES SIR, I QUITE AGREE!
